EASTERN STORM CLAIMS 16 LIVES

U.S. To Bolster Mediterranean Marine Force

Undisclosed Number Will Sail On Jan. 6

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (AP)—The Navy announced today that an undisclosed number of marines will sail January 6 from Moorehead City, N. C., to the Mediterranean for duty aboard the aircraft carrier Midway and three light cruisers, one of which is at Piraeus, Greece.

The marines are from the Second Division. The Navy declined to say how many marines were involved in its descriptive phrase "a group of marines" but it was learned that they are going over on a "normal size transport of 12,000 to 15,000 tons fully loaded."

The Navy's terse eight-line "memo to the press" said the objective is "to augment the shipboard training of marines." It likewise said that "the increase will restore the total personnel on board to approximately the normal overall complement of the ship."

Figures "Top Secret"

On the basis that such figures are "top secret," the Navy declined to give the present number of Navy and Marine personnel aboard the Midway now at Naples, Italy, and the three cruisers, the Portsmouth at Genoa, Italy, the Providence at Leghorn, Italy and the Little Rock at Piraeus.

State Department officials told inquiring reporters that they were consulted in advance about the Navy move. They said the department advised the Navy it had no objections. They declined further comment.

The Navy said the normal overall complement of a large aircraft carrier such as the Midway is 2,200, of whom about 100 are marines and that of light cruisers is 1,000 of whom about 50 are marines.

But for some time American Navy ships have been undermanned, the Navy said. The inference is that it would take more than the normal number of marines to bring the total personnel aboard the four ships involved to the "normal overall complement."

10 Destroyers In Area

The Navy, commenting in response to questions, disclosed that in addition to the Midway and the three cruisers, there are 10 destroyers in the total Mediterranean area. This Mediterranean fleet is commanded by Vice Adm. Bernhard Bieri.

Two of these destroyers are in Greek waters—the K. D. Bailey at Piraeus and the Gyatt at Salonika. The Leary is at Arieste; the Steinaker at Leghorn; Vogelsang at Genoa; the Dyess at Venice. At Naples are the H. J. Ellison, the Gearing, the E. A. Greene and the C. R. Ware.

The Navy declined to say whether it contemplates sending additional detachments of marines or any other naval ships to the Mediterranean.

Truman Authorizes Aid To Victims Of Tornado

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (AP) — President Truman today directed the Federal Works Agency to provide emergency aid to southern tornado victims.

He asked Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, Federal Works Administrator, to make available surplus personal property to state and local governments of Louisiana and Arkansas. He acted under a law providing for such aid in emergencies of that nature.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, meanwhile, authorized disaster loans to the tornado affected areas in the two states.

Chairman John D. Goodloe announced that the RFC's Little Rock, Ark., and New Orleans offices had been authorized to accept applications for loans to aid in recovery from tornado caused property damage.

D. C. Gas Allotments Cut

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (AP) — January gasoline allotments for Washington will be cut sharply, major suppliers notified dealers today. The cut may range up to 20 per cent in some instances.

Movie Exhibitors Again Rate Crosby As Most Popular

BING CROSBY

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 2 (AP)—Bing Crosby, for the fourth successive year, was the screen's top box-office attraction in 1947, the Motion Picture Herald announced today after a poll of exhibitors.

Others in the first 10, in the order of their ranking are:

Betty Grable, who moved up from ninth place last year; Ingrid Bergman, second in 1946; Gary Cooper, who also was fourth last year; Humphrey Bogart, who moved up from sixth; Bob Hope, Clark Gable, Gregory Peck, Claudette Colbert and Alan Ladd.

Schuman Regime In Jeopardy; Aid Treaty Approved

Tax Bill Showdown Looms In Assembly

PARIS, Jan. 2. (AP)—The life of the government of Premier Robert Schuman was in jeopardy tonight, even as it agreed in a treaty to conditions of American winter aid.

There was considerable doubt whether the stooped, balding Premier, who less than a month ago beat down a Communist-led strike surge, could push through an angry National Chamber of Deputies an unpopular income tax bill to raise an additional 125,000,000,000 francs ($1,041,000,000).

The Premier took the drastic step today of withdrawing his original anti-inflation tax bill, which had been trimmed and manhandled by the legislators. He submitted a new "compromise" measure and declared he would resign unless it is passed without change.

Chamber To Consider Bill

"The country must know that we have behind us a Parliament which has confidence in us and accepts its responsibilities," he declared.

The Chamber was summoned to an extraordinary session beginning tomorrow to consider the new bill, and the Finance Commission of the Assembly went into what appeared would be an all-night session to complete its report on the measure. Rightist and Peasant Deputies apparently were in no mood to approve the bill without serious changes.

The government thus appeared in danger of falling at almost the moment it was assured of interim economic aid from the United States for the next few difficult months.

In signing the treaty with the United States agreeing to the con-

Pair Of Precedent-Making Decisions Issued Against Unions Under Labor Law

Workers At Four Cable Firms Strike

[By The Associated Press]

Two precedent-making decisions were issued against unions under the Taft-Hartley labor law yesterday as new strikes broke out against four overseas communications firms and against a Texas oil refinery.

On one of the Taft-Hartley decisions, issued in Washington, an examiner of the National Labor Relations Board, J. J. Fitzpatrick, ruled for the first time that a union had engaged in an unfair labor practice.

Such charges against unions were barred under the Wagner Act, which permitted them only against employers.

In the other Taft-Hartley case, Federal District Judge Stephen W. Brennan at Utica, N. Y., issued an injunction prohibiting the AFL Teamsters Local 294 from engaging in six acts of alleged unfair labor practices. This was the first injunction obtained under the new labor law, the NLRB said in Washington.

Communications Walkout

The overseas communications strike involved a walkout of 3,500 workers employed by four firms handling an estimated two-thirds of the message transmissions between the United States and abroad.

Two unions, the CIO American Communications Association and the All-America Cables Employes Association, an independent union, were involved in the strike, demanding a 30 per cent pay boost.

Approximately 1,400 workers, members of the CIO Oil Workers Union walked out at the Pan-American Refining Corporation plant in Texas City, Tex., after the breakdown of negotiations over a new contract. The workers asked renewal of a 22 cents hourly increase cost of living allowance agreement which expired December 31, plus an additional 28 cents hourly increase to the basic wage. This strike was significant because of the winter oil shortage and pay increase demands from oil workers elsewhere.

The union held NLRB Examiner Fitzpatrick to have been engaging in an unfair labor practice was Local 74 of the AFL Carpenters Union at Chattanooga, Tenn. He ruled the local had committed a secondary boycott in violation of the Taft-Hartley law.

"Feather-Bedding"

Fitzpatrick found that a strike of four union carpenters on a home remodeling job was called for the purpose of requiring their employer to "cease doing business" with a flooring installation firm which had assigned non-union workmen to the same project.

Judge Brennan's injunction decision restrains the teamsters' local, among other things, from insisting that the Conway Express Company pay to the union the equivalent of the wages for a union driver, as penalty for a trip handled by a non-union driver.

In this respect, the court invoked the Taft-Hartley law ban against forcing an employer to pay for work not performed, or so-called "feather-bedding." The court injunction is to stand until the NLRB can decide in the teamsters' local is, in fact, guilty of the six alleged unfair labor charges.

POLICEMAN SUBDUES MAN ATTEMPTING TO COMMIT SUICIDE IN N. Y. SUBWAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 (AP) — In a fierce struggle under a stopped subway train, a policeman today subdued a man who police said was trying to commit suicide by seizing the third rail of the track.

Scores of horror-stricken passengers on the station platforms witnessed the fight.

Police said the man, whom they identified as Joseph Giannola, 35, left his wife on the platform and leaped in front of an incoming train at the 59th Street station of the Lexington Avenue I.R.T. subway line.

The train ground to a halt, the first car clearing the man's body and leaving him trapped under the second car.

Patrolman Timothy Long, summoned to the scene dropped to the tracks and crawled to the man who was trying to reach the third rail. Meanwhile, a ticket agent threw a switch, shutting off power in the third rail.

Long and Patrolman John Cully finally subdued Giannola who they said succeeded in touching the third rail after the power was cut off. Giannola was taken to Bellevue Hospital for mental observation.

Oklahoma State Capitol Damaged By Fire, Smoke

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 2 (AP)—Fire which started in a basement storeroom at the State Capitol here late today caused heavy smoke damage to the Supreme Court chamber on the second floor and the House of Representatives chamber on the fourth floor.

The blaze itself was confined to the storeroom.

Fire Chief G. R. McAlpine, who directed firemen in bringing the blaze under control, said he believed it was caused by someone smoking in the storeroom.

There was no immediate estimate of damage.

Gen. Graham's Grain Trading Probed By FBI

Brokerage House Is Asked For Data

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (AP) — A New York brokerage house notified Sen. Knowland (R-Calif) today that the FBI has called on it for information on the grain trading activities of Brig. Gen. Wallace H. Graham, President Truman's personal physician.

Knowland is a member of a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee which is looking into reports that government "insiders" profited from speculation in foodstuffs.

He told reporters, however, he did not know why the Federal Bureau of Investigation was inquiring into the White House doctor's account, since it is not illegal to trade in grain or other commodity futures.

Insistence Follows Dispute

The California Senator has been insisting that the exact nature of the business arrangements between Graham and his brokers be made clear. This insistence followed a dispute which arose after the publication of Graham's name last Monday on a list of government officials who have traded in the commodity markets.

Graham issued a statement saying he turned some money over to the broker with instructions to "use his own judgment." Bache and Company, the brokers, said Graham was kept fuly informed of every transaction.

Knowland received word of the FBI's interest in Graham's trading today. He received a letter, over the typed name of William Reid, a partner in Bache and Company, which said in part:

"Information in regard to the account of Brig. Gen. Graham has been furnished to the government as the FBI has called upon us and obtained same."

Knowland said that after he received the letter, he telephoned Reid, who told him that an FBI agent named Pardo had called at Bache and Company about Graham's account.

FBI Declines Comment

Knowland said Reid told him that, as well as he could remember, the incident occurred about December 24, and that the FBI man was given a copy of Graham's account.

FBI headquarters here declined to comment on Graham's or any other individual brokerage account, but acknowledged that since last November it has been conducting a general investigation of the effect of grain speculation on the retail price of grain products.

Meanwhile, another list of government employes reported to have traded in commodities was given to the investigating senators.

The list named 17 Department of Commerce workers who hold assignments ranging from patent examiner to airport engineer.

144 Meet Violent Death Over New Year's Holiday

(By The Associated Press)

Accidents on the nation's highways, railroads and those from miscellaneous causes took 144 lives over the New Year's holiday.

One hundred and ten persons were killed in automobile and railroad mishaps and 34 in other accidental violence between 6 p. m. Wednesday and midnight Thursday.

This year's acident toll was somewhat higher than the 116 which marked the advent of 1947, but considerably under the 288 violent deaths over the recent Christmas holiday.

A rear-end collision of two Missouri Pacific passenger trains near Otterville, Mo., took 14 lives.

Timber Workers' Strike May Idle 100,000 Miners

Lack Of "Cribbing" Material Predicted

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Jan. 2 (INS) —The United Construction Workers threatened tonight to go on a strike that might throw more than 100,000 soft coal miners in three states out of work.

Thomas P. McTigue, Uniontown, regional director of the UCW, an offshoot of the United Mine Workers, said today that he had issued an ultimatum to timber operators that unless his demands for a 28½ per cent wage increase are met by Saturday he would order a strike.

His union members cut the timbers used in "cribbing" the roofs of coal mines in the area. Without timbers, the mines would have to cease operations as soon as present supplies were exhausted.

McTigue said one mine already had closed because of a walkout of some of his timber workers during wage negotiations. He added that other mines may be shut down tomorrow.

The union director said the wage fight is not between his union and the timber operators, but is a battle of both against the coal operators. He declared:

"The timber operators are unable to meet our wage demands unless they can get more for their product. The coal operators have refused to meet their demands for higher prices.

"We actually are working together, and in sympathy, on this thing.

"It will be only a matter of days until several hundred mines employing more than 100,000 miners, are shut down unless the timber operators can get more money so they can meet our wage demands."

He listed the following numbers of miners to be affected eventually by lack of timbers if the wage demands are not met.

Southwestern Pennsylvania 72,000, Northern West Virginia, 27,000, Allegany and Garrett Counties in Maryland, 6,000.

McTigue said about 16,000 members of his own union would be affected by the strike order.

House Sideswipes Car

EL DORADO, Kas., Jan. 2 (AP)—Reversing the usual order of things, a house sideswiped a motor car here.

The building, being moved by Otto W. Hobson to a new location, careened into a parked automobile. Damage was estimated at $10 to the car and none to the house.

Dog That Killed Month-Old Baby To Be Executed

SEATTLE, Jan. 4 (AP) —A sheriff's death decree was issued today for a German shepherd dog that killed its master's month-old daughter after tipping over her bassinet.

The execution order was set at the request of the master, Sgt. May, 28, Saltillo, Texas, the baby's father and owner of the dog.

The tragedy occurred New Year's morning. May, who is stationed at Fort Lawton, had kept the previously gentle dog in the house overnight because it had got out of the garage the previous evening.

Coal Output Hits Peacetime High

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (AP)—The bituminous coal industry's gift to a fuel-hungry world was a record peacetime production of about 617,000,000 tons in 1947, National Coal Association figures disclosed today.

This output has only been exceeded once, in the war year of 1944 when the total was 619,000,000.

The biggest bituminous producing state of them all—West Virginia—actually set an all-time record for any year, war or no war.

Pennsylvania, second in bituminous output, was far ahead of its 1946 figure.

John D. Battle, executive secretary of the coal association, estimated that of last year's output in the United States, approximately 42,000,000 tons went overseas. This was about double the export tonnage of 1946.

In West Virginia, the year's production was estimated at 172,500,000 tons, or 7,500,000 more than in 1944. A statement by the West Virginia Coal Association said that earnings were the highest in history, with a $400,000,000 payroll estimated.

Pennsylvania bituminous production last year amounted to 140,500,000 tons, as compared to 121,375,000 in 1946. Anthracite output was 57,500,000 well below the 61,104,000 in 1946.

Barkley Says Marshall Plan Is Vital To Nation

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (AP)—Sen. Barkley, of Kentucky, Senate Democratic leader, declared tonight the Marshall plan will be "infinitely cheaper in dollars to the American people than another war which might see the destruction of civilization itself."

Barkley's remarks, from Paris, were prepared for a half-hour Democratic Party radio to rally support behind the Marshall plan and the administration's proposals to halt rising prices.

"America's vital interests are deeply concerned with this whole (European relief) project," Barkley said. "We cannot afford merely to nibble at the bite. We must sink our teeth into it, however unpleasant the taste."

Actress Ann Sothern Divorces Robert Sterling

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 2 (AP) — The Hollywood divorce parade for 1948 got under way today headed by pretty blonde Ann Sothern.

The actress was granted a decree from Actor Robert Sterling on the allegations that he caused her "grievous mental suffering" by telling her he didn't want the responsibility of marriage. They were married May 23, 1943 and separated last November.

15 Per Cent Gas Cut

BALTIMORE, Jan. 2 (AP) — The American Oil Company announced here today that allotments to its gasoline dealers in the eastern states will be cut 15 per cent during January.

Sen. Taft Urges GOP Agreement On European Aid

Calls For Changes In Marshall Plan

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (AP) — Sen. Taft, of Ohio, called today for an agreement among congressional Republicans on a GOP version of the Marshall plan.

Taft told a reporter he can not support President Truman's proposal for a four-year outlay that might, the Senator said, total upwards of $20,000,000,000. The administration has put the cost at $17,000,000,000.

But he said he was "very anxious" that the Republicans get together as soon as possible on a program of economic assistance to Western Europe.

"I think we will have to spend between $4,000,000,000 and $5,000,000,000 in the first year in helping European nations help themselves and thus aid them in containing Communism within its present bounds," the Ohioan said.

Program, As Is, Unacceptable

"But if the administration insists on the Marshall plan in its present form and resists changes in it, then I cannot support it. I cannot back a program that, essentially, merely figures up the difference between our exports and our imports for the next four years and just hand that difference over to other nations."

The administration's program, based on proposals made by Secretary of State Marshall, envisions aid to 16 Western European countries and Western Germany.

Taft, an announced candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, said he had received as yet no general reaction to a series of political speeches in Missouri last week in which he criticized proposed expenditures under the Marshall plan.

President Truman estimated cost of the proposed aid for the first 15 months at $6,800,000,000. Taft has contended that little if any of this money would be spent before July 1 and that the total outlay of American dollars proposed for foreign aid in the year beginning July 1 will reach $8,000,000,000.

Wants $5,000,000,000 Limit

He said he personally wants all foreign assistance held within a $5,000,000,000 limit, including the cost of feeding civilians in Germany but not the expense of maintaining American occupation forces abroad.

In this connection Taft said he doubts that Congress will act in the forthcoming session officially to end hostilities, since that action might cast some legal doubt on the maintenance of American armed forces in the occupied areas.

Taft said he probably will call together Monday the Senate Republican Policy Committee, which he heads, to begin looking over the

Damage Heavy In Ice-Coated New York City

New Storm Swirling Into Northeast Area

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 (AP)—Metropolitan New York, with thousands suffering the discomforts of darkness and cold, was gripped tonight by an icy siege as the second snowstorm in a week swirled into the nation's populous northwestern region.

Sixteen persons already were dead in the entire storm-swept area—one in New York, one in New Jersey, four in Connecticut, and 10 in Massachusetts.

The snowstorm had not reached New York City by 11 p. m. (EST) although some snow fell tonight on outlying sections and in Long Island suburbs. An inch or more covered Nassau County in Long Island tonight and La Guardia Field experienced a slight fall of fresh snow.

Meanwhile, Charles H. Sells, New York state fuel co-ordinator, announced that representatives of major fuel suppliers had agreed to a statewide program by which distribution of fuel oil to consumers would be reduced 15 per cent immediately.

He told newsmen that "if consumers cut 15 per cent, there is every indication at the present time that we will get through the winter safely."

Trees Snap Under Weight

Just recovering from the effects of a 25.8 inch record snowfall last Friday, citizens' spirits were lowed by the night-long ice storm and the approach of a new snowstorm. The Weather Bureau forecast two or three inches of snow in New York and up to a foot in New England, accompanied by high winds and freezing temperatures.

The storm which was spread across most of New England and New York and New Jersey appeared to affect normal routine most in the heavily populated, complexly mechanized New York metropolitan area.

The New York Stock Exchange, the Curb Exchange, and the Cotton Exchange announced trading will be suspended tomorrow because of storm conditions.

Highways were hazardous and local officials warned motorists to stay home.

Flying operations were curtailed at LaGuardia Field where the cancellation of 442 flights over a two-day period affected an estimated 16,000 passengers. Officials said only domestic planes departed between last midnight and 1:30 p. m. (EST) today.

Railroad schedules were disrupted, with commuters' trains running late. Derailment of freight cars delayed through trains of the Pennsylvania Railroad outside Elizabeth, N. J., and the New York Central near Peekskill, N. Y.

Thousands Trapped In Subway

All emergency crews of power and telephone companies rushed into action.

In the New York boroughs of Brooklyn, Queens and the Bronx alone, 10,000 customers were without electricity, the Consolidated Edison Company reported. In Queens, Richmond and the Bronx 2,018 fireboxes were out of commission. Power failure caused oil burners to stop. Oil deliveries already were

Two Burned To Death In Crash Of Airplane

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Jan. 2 (AP) — Two unidentified men were burned to death in an airplane crash near Chattanooga tonight, Signal Mountain Police Chief Charles Brown said.

The plane, said to be a Coast Guard J4F2 en route from Memphis to Chattanooga, crashed at 8:05 p. m., (CST) according to Eyewitness Bill Vandergriff.

He said he rushed to the plane but couldn't "save the two occupants because of the fierce heat."

House Speaker Predicts Bill To Slash Taxes Will Be Approved This Month

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2. — (AP) — Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr., predicted today that the House will pass a tax reduction bill this month.

With Congress reconvening next Tuesday, the Speaker told a news conference:

"Tax reduction is one of the very first things on the program.

"It is absolutely essential to have tax reduction this year. It will provide more take-home money and an incentive to production and thereby help relieve high prices."

Although Martin said he had no particular tax-cutting measure in mind, Chairman Knutson (R-Minn), of the Ways and Means Committee, is trying to line up support for a bill which would lop $5,600,000,000 off the current load.

The Speaker expressed doubt that the Senate would pass a tax cut bill in January, but he said action by the House would serve notice on the White House that such legislation was on the way.

Sen. Taft (R-Ohio), chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, told a news conference that senators will want to take a look at the budget and the possible cost of economic aid to Europe before they are called upon to vote on a tax-reduction bill.

Similarly Chairman Millikin (R-Colo), of the Senate Finance Committee, said his group will wait to see what kind of a bill the House produces before it acts.

President Truman twice vetoed during the past year bills which would have trimmed the tax load by some $4,000,000,000. He argued that the tax cuts would have increased the inflationary pressure and that the proposed laws would have given disproportionate benefits to the well-to-do.

Martin said the amount that taxes can be reduced depends largely "on the co-operation we get from the administration in reducing government expenses."

Conductor Believes Train Involved In Missouri Wreck "Going Too Fast"

SEDALIA, Mo., Jan. 2 (AP)—The conductor of a Missouri Pacific passenger train involved in a wreck which took 14 lives near Otterville, Mo., said today he thought "we were going too fast" and had started to pull the rope just before the crash occurred.

Interviewed in a hospital here, J. B. Rogers, the conductor, also told a reporter for the Sedalia Democrat-Capital that block signals were not functioning properly because of the icy weather.

Rogers' train, the second section of the "Missourian," plowed into the rear of the first section of the St. Louis-to-Kansas City train in a blinding snowstorm yesterday, telescoping a Pullman car and killing all the occupants, one of whom still was unidentified. The dead included Alexander W. Weddell, former ambassador to Spain, and his wife.

Cause of the accident had not been determined pending an investigation, but Rogers' assertion that block signals were faulty was at variance with a statement issued yesterday by the railroad's chief executive officer, Paul J. Neff.

Neff said that "the block signals were working perfectly" and that there "probably was flagrant negligence on the part of certain employes."

(Block signals are automatically operated lights that show when a train is within a specified distance of the signal light. A train following another on the same track is thus "blocked" by the signal from approaching too close to the lead train.)

"The block lights were not functioning properly x x x. The last clear block we had was at McGirk

Air Safety Board Calls For Better Fire Protection, Working Conditions

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (INS)— President Truman's Air Safety Board recommended today improved fire protection, better working conditions, and increased government research and control to check the rising toll taken by aviation accidents.

The special board, headed by retiring Civil Aeronautics Board Chairman James M. Landis, in its final report made 94 recommendations, 56 of which had been advanced in five preliminary reports.

The final report, which had constructive criticism for airlines, pilots and Congress alike, was signed by four of the five board members, with Brig. Gen. M. W. Arnold, vice president of the Air Transport Association, submitting a dissenting report.

Arnold claimed the board exceeded its air safety mandate and took up subjects of "general air policy and economics" already being studied by two commissions.

Capt. H. B. Cox, airline pilot representing the Air Line Pilots Association, signed the report but dissented from the recommendation that pilot grievances be submitted promptly to arbitration.

A key recommendation called for establishment by the air lines of the position of safety director. This official should be given ample executive authority and adequate staff, the report declared.

The report discussed, but did not recommend, a number of air safety suggestions in addition to the 94 main points. These suggestions included jet-assisted takeoffs and constructions of barriers on runways similar to those carried by aircraft carriers to arrest runaway planes.

Weather Report

Communications Walkout

The overseas communications strike involved a walkout of 3,500 workers employed by four firms handling an estimated two-thirds of the message transmissions between the United States and abroad.

Two unions, the CIO American Communications Association and the All-America Cables Employes Association, an independent union, were involved in the strike, demanding a 30 per cent pay boost.

Approximately 1,400 workers, members of the CIO Oil Workers Union walked out at the Pan-American Refining Corporation plant in Texas City, Tex., after the breakdown of negotiations over a new contract. The workers asked renewal of a 22 cents hourly increase cost of living allowance agreement which expired December 31, plus an additional 28 cents hourly increase to the basic wage. This strike was significant because of the winter oil shortage and pay increase demands from oil workers elsewhere.

The union held NLRB Examiner Fitzpatrick to have been engaging in an unfair labor practice was Local 74 of the AFL Carpenters Union at Chattanooga, Tenn. He ruled the local had committed a secondary boycott in violation of the Taft-Hartley law.

"Feather-Bedding"

Fitzpatrick found that a strike of four union carpenters on a home remodeling job was called for the purpose of requiring their employer to "cease doing business" with a flooring installation firm which had assigned non-union workmen to the same project.

Judge Brennan's injunction decision restrains the teamsters' local, among other things, from insisting that the Conway Express Company pay to the union the equivalent of the wages for a union driver, as penalty for a trip handled by a non-union driver.

In this respect, the court invoked the Taft-Hartley law ban against forcing an employer to pay for work not performed, or so-called "feather-bedding." The court injunction is to stand until the NLRB can decide in the teamsters' local is, in fact, guilty of the six alleged unfair labor charges.

Movie Exhibitors Again Rate Crosby As Most Popular

BING CROSBY

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 2 (AP)—Bing Crosby, for the fourth successive year, was the screen's top box-office attraction in 1947, the Motion Picture Herald announced today after a poll of exhibitors.

Others in the first 10, in the order of their ranking are:

Betty Grable, who moved up from ninth place last year; Ingrid Bergman, second in 1946; Gary Cooper, who also was fourth last year; Humphrey Bogart, who moved up from sixth; Bob Hope, Clark Gable, Gregory Peck, Claudette Colbert and Alan Ladd.

Schuman Regime In Jeopardy; Aid Treaty Approved

Tax Bill Showdown Looms In Assembly

PARIS, Jan. 2. (AP)—The life of the government of Premier Robert Schuman was in jeopardy tonight, even as it agreed in a treaty to conditions of American winter aid.

There was considerable doubt whether the stooped, balding Premier, who less than a month ago beat down a Communist-led strike surge, could push through an angry National Chamber of Deputies an unpopular income tax bill to raise an additional 125,000,000,000 francs ($1,041,000,000).

The Premier took the drastic step today of withdrawing his original anti-inflation tax bill, which had been trimmed and manhandled by the legislators. He submitted a new "compromise" measure and declared he would resign unless it is passed without change.

Chamber To Consider Bill

"The country must know that we have behind us a Parliament which has confidence in us and accepts its responsibilities," he declared.

The Chamber was summoned to an extraordinary session beginning tomorrow to consider the new bill, and the Finance Commission of the Assembly went into what appeared would be an all-night session to complete its report on the measure. Rightist and Peasant Deputies apparently were in no mood to approve the bill without serious changes.

The government thus appeared in danger of falling at almost the moment it was assured of interim economic aid from the United States for the next few difficult months.

In signing the treaty with the United States agreeing to the con-

POLICEMAN SUBDUES MAN ATTEMPTING TO COMMIT SUICIDE IN N.Y. SUBWAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 (AP) — In a fierce struggle under a stopped subway train, a policeman today subdued a man who police said was trying to commit suicide by seizing the third rail of the track.

Scores of horror-stricken passengers on the station platforms witnessed the fight.

Police said the man, whom they identified as Joseph Giannola, 35, left his wife on the platform and leaped in front of an incoming train at the 59th Street station of the Lexington Avenue I.R.T. subway line.

The train ground to a halt, the first car clearing the man's body and leaving him trapped under the second car.

Patrolman Timothy Long, summoned to the scene dropped to the tracks and crawled to the man who was trying to reach the third rail. Meanwhile, a ticket agent threw a switch, shutting off power in the third rail.

Long and Patrolman John Cully finally subdued Giannola who they said succeeded in touching the third rail after the power was cut off. Giannola was taken to Bellevue Hospital for mental observation.

Oklahoma State Capitol Damaged By Fire, Smoke

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 2 (AP)—Fire which started in a basement storeroom at the State Capitol here late today caused heavy smoke damage to the Supreme Court chamber on the second floor and the House of Representatives chamber on the fourth floor.

The blaze itself was confined to the storercom.

Fire Chief G. R. McAlpine, who directed firemen in bringing the blaze under control, said he believed it was caused by someone smoking in the storercom.

There was no immediate estimate of damage.

Gen. Graham's Grain Trading Probed By FBI

Brokerage House Is Asked For Data

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (AP) — A New York brokerage house notified Sen. Knowland (R-Calif) today that the FBI has called on it for information on the grain trading activities of Brig. Gen. Wallace H. Graham, President Truman's personal physician.

Knowland is a member of a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee which is looking into reports that government "insiders" profited from speculation in foodstuffs.

He told reporters, however, he did not know why the Federal Bureau of Investigation was inquiring into the White House doctor's account, since it is not illegal to trade in grain or other commodity futures.

Insistence Follows Dispute

The California Senator has been insisting that the exact nature of the business arrangements between Graham and his brokers be made clear. This insistence followed a dispute which arose after the publication of Graham's name last Monday on a list of government officials who have traded in the commodity markets.

Graham issued a statement saying he turned some money over to the broker with instructions to "use his own judgment." Bache and Company, the brokers, said Graham was kept fuly informed of every transaction.

Knowland received word of the FBI's interest in Graham's trading today. He received a letter, over the typed name of William Reid, a partner in Bache and Company, which said in part:

"Information in regard to the account of Brig. Gen. Graham has been furnished to the government as the FBI has called upon us and obtained same."

Knowland said that after he received the letter, he telephoned Reid, who told him that an FBI agent named Pardo had called at Bache and Company about Graham's account.

FBI Declines Comment

Knowland said Reid told him that, as well as he could remember, the incident occurred about December 24, and that the FBI man was given a copy of Graham's account.

FBI headquarters here declined to comment on Graham's or any other individual brokerage account, but acknowledged that since last November it has been conducting a general investigation of the effect of grain speculation on the retail price of grain products.

Meanwhile, another list of government employes reported to have traded in commodities was given to the investigating senators.

144 Meet Violent Death Over New Year's Holiday

(By The Associated Press)

Accidents on the nation's highways, railroads and those from miscellaneous causes took 144 lives over the New Year's holiday.

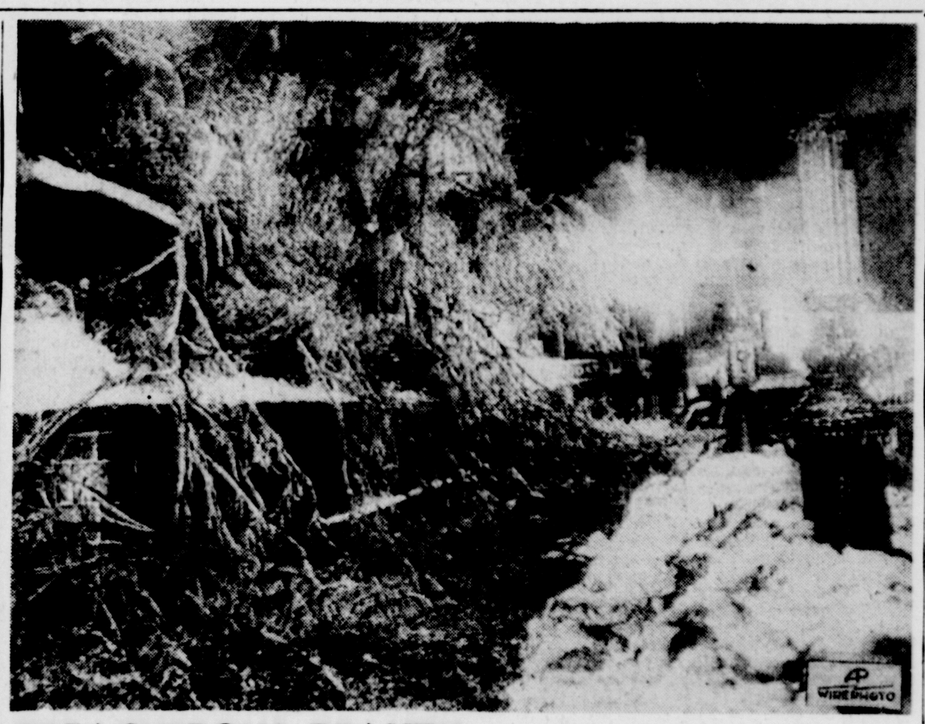
One hundred and ten persons were killed in automobile and railroad mishaps and 34 in other accidental violence between 6 p. m. Wednesday and midnight Thursday.

This year's acident toll was somewhat higher than the 116 which marked the advent of 1947, but considerably under the 288 violent deaths over the recent Christmas holiday.

A rear-end collision of two Missouri Pacific passenger trains near Otterville, Mo., took 14 lives.

Ferguson Reappointed

BALTIMORE, Jan. 2 (AP)—Milton J. Ferguson, Wayne, W. Va., has been reappointed district director of the Farm Credit Administration for Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia, I. W. Duggan, administration governor, announced today.



TREACHEROUS BEAUTY—A thick coating of ice formed by the freezing of an all-night rain weighed down and broke trees in New York's Union Square yesterday. The freeze-up, following last week's record snowfall, felled power and communication lines and crippled transportation.

Timber Workers' Strike May Idle 100,000 Miners

Lack Of "Cribbing" Material Predicted

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Jan. 2 (INS)—The United Construction Workers threatened tonight to go on a strike that might throw more than 100,000 soft coal miners in three states out of work.

Thomas P. McTigue, Uniontown, regional director of the UCW, an offshoot of the United Mine Workers, said today that he had issued an ultimatum to timber operators that unless his demands for a 28½ per cent wage increase are met by Saturday he would order a strike.

His union members cut the timbers used in "cribbing" the roofs of coal mines in the area. Without timbers, the mines would have to cease operations as soon as present supplies were exhausted.

McTigue said one mine already had closed because of a walkout of some of his timber workers during wage negotiations. He added that other mines may be shut down tomorrow.

The union director said the wage fight is not between his union and the timber operators, but is a battle of both against the coal operators. He declared:

"The timber operators are unable to meet our wage demands unless they can get more for their product. The coal operators have refused to meet their demands for higher prices.

"We actually are working together, and in sympathy, on this thing.

"It will be only a matter of days until several hundred mines employing more than 100,000 miners, are shut down unless the timber operators can get more money so they can meet our wage demands."

He listed the following numbers of miners to be affected eventually by lack of timbers if the wage demands are not met.

Southwestern Pennsylvania 72,000, Northern West Virginia, 27,000, Allegany and Garrett Counties in Maryland, 6,000.

McTigue said about 16,000 members of his own union would be affected by the strike order.

House Sideswipes Car

EL DORADO, Kas., Jan. 2 (AP)—Reversing the usual order of things, a house sideswiped a motor car here.

The building, being moved by Otto W. Hobson to a new location, careened into a parked automobile. Damage was estimated at $10 to the car and none to the house.

Dog That Killed Month-Old Baby To Be Executed

SEATTLE, Jan. 4 (AP) —A sheriff's death decree was issued today for a German shepherd dog that killed its master's month-old daughter after tipping over her bassinet.

The execution order was set at the request of the master, Sgt. May, 28, Saltillo, Texas, the baby's father and owner of the dog.

The tragedy occurred New Year's morning. May, who is stationed at Fort Lawton, had kept the previously gentle dog in the house overnight because it had got out of the garage the previous evening.

Coal Output Hits Peacetime High

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (AP)—The bituminous coal industry's gift to a fuel-hungry world was a record peacetime production of about 617,000,000 tons in 1947, National Coal Association figures disclosed today.

This output has only been exceeded once, in the war year of 1944 when the total was 619,000,000.

The biggest bituminous producing state of them all—West Virginia—actually set an all-time record for any year, war or no war.

Pennsylvania, second in bituminous output, was far ahead of its 1946 figure.

John D. Battle, executive secretary of the coal association, estimated that of last year's output in the United States, approximately 42,000,000 tons went overseas. This was about double the export tonnage of 1946.

In West Virginia, the year's production was estimated at 172,500,000 tons, or 7,500,000 more than in 1944. A statement by the West Virginia Coal Association said that earnings were the highest in history, with a $400,000,000 payroll estimated.

Pennsylvania bituminous production last year amounted to 140,500,000 tons, as compared to 121,375,000 in 1946. Anthracite output was 57,500,000 well below the 61,104,000 in 1946.

Barkley Says Marshall Plan Is Vital To Nation

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (AP)—Sen. Barkley, of Kentucky, Senate Democratic leader, declared tonight the Marshall plan will be "infinitely cheaper in dollars to the American people than another war which might see the destruction of civilization itself."

Barkley's remarks, from Paris, were prepared for a half-hour Democratic Party radio to rally support behind the Marshall plan and the administration's proposals to halt rising prices.

"America's vital interests are deeply concerned with this whole (European relief) project," Barkley said. "We cannot afford merely to nibble at the bite. We must sink our teeth into it, however unpleasant the taste."

Actress Ann Sothern Divorces Robert Sterling

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 2 (AP) — The Hollywood divorce parade for 1948 got under way today headed by pretty blonde Ann Sothern.

The actress was granted a decree from Actor Robert Sterling on the allegations that he caused her "grievous mental suffering" by telling her he didn't want the responsibility of marriage. They were married May 23, 1943 and separated last November.

15 Per Cent Gas Cut

BALTIMORE, Jan. 2 (AP) — The American Oil Company announced here today that allotments to its gasoline dealers in the eastern states will be cut 15 per cent during January.

Sen. Taft Urges GOP Agreement On European Aid

Calls For Changes In Marshall Plan

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (AP) — Sen. Taft, of Ohio, called today for an agreement among congressional Republicans on a GOP version of the Marshall plan.

Taft told a reporter he can not support President Truman's proposal for a four-year outlay that might, the Senator said, total upwards of $20,000,000,000. The administration has put the cost at $17,000,000,000.

But he said he was "very anxious" that the Republicans get together as soon as possible on a program of economic assistance to Western Europe.

"I think we will have to spend between $4,000,000,000 and $5,000,000,000 in the first year in helping European nations help themselves and thus aid them in containing Communism within its present bounds," the Ohioan said.

Program, As Is, Unacceptable

"But if the administration insists on the Marshall plan in its present form and resists changes in it, then I cannot support it. I cannot back a program that, essentially, merely figures up the difference between our exports and our imports for the next four years and just hand that difference over to other nations."

The administration's program, based on proposals made by Secretary of State Marshall, envisions aid to 16 Western European countries and Western Germany.

Taft, an announced candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, said he had received as yet no general reaction to a series of political speeches in Missouri last week in which he criticized proposed expenditures under the Marshall plan.

President Truman estimated cost of the proposed aid for the first 15 months at $6,800,000,000. Taft has contended that little if any of this money would be spent before July 1 and that the total outlay of American dollars proposed for foreign aid in the year beginning July 1 will reach $8,000,000,000.

Wants $5,000,000,000 Limit

He said he personally wants all foreign assistance held within a $5,000,000,000 limit, including the cost of feeding civilians in Germany but not the expense of maintaining American occupation forces abroad.

In this connection Taft said he doubts that Congress will act in the forthcoming session officially to end hostilities, since that action might cast some legal doubt on the maintenance of American armed forces in the occupied areas.

Taft said he probably will call together Monday the Senate Republican Policy Committee, which he heads, to begin looking over the

Damage Heavy In Ice-Coated New York City

New Storm Swirling Into Northeast Area

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 (AP)—Metropolitan New York, with thousands suffering the discomforts of darkness and cold, was gripped tonight by an icy siege as the second snowstorm in a week swirled into the nation's populous northwestern region.

Sixteen persons already were dead in the entire storm-swept area—one in New York, one in New Jersey, four in Connecticut, and 10 in Massachusetts.

The snowstorm had not reached New York City by 11 p. m. (EST) although some snow fell tonight on outlying sections and in Long Island suburbs. An inch or more covered Nassau County in Long Island tonight and La Guardia Field experienced a slight fall of fresh snow.

Meanwhile, Charles H. Sells, New York state fuel co-ordinator, announced that representatives of major fuel suppliers had agreed to a statewide program by which distribution of fuel oil to consumers would be reduced 15 per cent immediately.

He told newsmen that "if consumers cut 15 per cent, there is every indication at the present time that we will get through the winter safely."

Trees Snap Under Weight

Just recovering from the effects of a 25.8 inch record snowfall last Friday, citizens' spirits were bowed by the night-long ice storm and the approach of a new snowstorm. The Weather Bureau forecast two or three inches of snow in New York and up to a foot in New England, accompanied by high winds and freezing temperatures.

The storm which was spread across most of New England and New York and New Jersey appeared to affect normal routine most in the heavily populated, complexly mechanized New York metropolitan area.

The New York Stock Exchange, the Curb Exchange, and the Cotton Exchange announced trading will be suspended tomorrow because of storm conditions.

Highways were hazardous and local officials warned motorists to stay home.

Flying operations were curtailed at LaGuardia Field where the cancellation of 442 flights over a two-day period affected an estimated 16,000 passengers. Officials said only domestic planes departed between last midnight and 1:30 p. m. (EST) today.

Railroad schedules were disrupted, with commuters' trains running late. Derailment of freight cars delayed through trains of the Pennsylvania Railroad outside Elizabeth, N. J., and the New York Central near Peekskill, N. Y.

Thousands Trapped In Subway

All emergency crews of power and telephone companies rushed into action.

In the New York boroughs of Brooklyn, Queens and the Bronx alone, 10,000 customers were without electricity, the Consolidated Edison Company reported. In Queens, Richmond and the Bronx 2,018 fireboxes were out of commission. Power failure caused oil burners to stop. Oil deliveries already were

Two Burned To Death In Crash Of Airplane

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Jan. 2 (AP) — Two unidentified men were burned to death in an airplane crash near Chattanooga tonight, Signal Mountain Police Chief Charles Brown said.

The plane, said to be a Coast Guard J4F2 en route from Memphis to Chattanooga, crashed at 8:05 p. m., (CST) according to Eyewitness Bill Vandergriff.

He said he rushed to the plane but couldn't "save the two occupants because of the fierce heat."

House Speaker Predicts Bill To Slash Taxes Will Be Approved This Month

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2. — (AP) — Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr., predicted today that the House will pass a tax reduction bill this month.

With Congress reconvening next Tuesday, the Speaker told a news conference:

"Tax reduction is one of the very first things on the program.

"It is absolutely essential to have tax reduction this year. It will provide more take-home money and an incentive to production and thereby help relieve high prices."

Although Martin said he had no particular tax-cutting measure in mind, Chairman Knutson (R-Minn), of the Ways and Means Committee, is trying to line up support for a bill which would lop $5,600,000,000 off the current load.

The Speaker expressed doubt that the Senate would pass a tax cut bill in January, but he said action by the House would serve notice on the White House that such legislation was on the way.

Sen. Taft (R-Ohio), chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, told a news conference that senators will want to take a look at the budget and the possible cost of economic aid to Europe before they are called upon to vote on a tax-reduction bill.

Similarly Chairman Millikin (R-Colo), of the Senate Finance Committee, said his group will wait to see what kind of a bill the House produces before it acts.

President Truman twice vetoed during the past year bills which would have trimmed the tax load by some $4,000,000,000. He argued that the tax cuts would have increased the inflationary pressure and that the proposed laws would have given disproportionate benefits to the well-to-do.

Martin said the amount that taxes can be reduced depends largely "on the co-operation we get from the administration in reducing government expenses."

Conductor Believes Train Involved In Missouri Wreck "Going Too Fast"

SEDALIA, Mo., Jan. 2 (AP)—The conductor of a Missouri Pacific passenger train involved in a wreck which took 14 lives near Otterville, Mo., said today he thought "we were going too fast" and had started to pull the rope just before the crash occurred.

Interviewed in a hospital here, J. B. Rogers, the conductor, also told a reporter for the Sedalia Democrat-Capital that block signals were not functioning properly because of the icy weather.

Rogers' train, the second section of the "Missourian," plowed into the rear of the first section of the St. Louis-to-Kansas City train in a blinding snowstorm yesterday, telescoping a Pullman car and killing all the occupants, one of whom still was unidentified. The dead included Alexander W. Weddell, former ambassador to Spain, and his wife.

Cause of the accident had not been determined pending an investigation, but Rogers' assertion that block signals were faulty was at variance with a statement issued yesterday by the railroad's chief executive officer, Paul J. Neff.

Neff said that "the block signals were working perfectly" and that there "probably was flagrant negligence on the part of certain employes."

(Block signals are automatically operated lights that show when a train is within a specified distance of the signal light. A train following another on the same track is thus "blocked" by the signal from approaching too close to the lead train.)

"The block lights were not functioning properly x x x. The last clear block we had was at McGirk

Air Safety Board Calls For Better Fire Protection, Working Conditions

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (INS)—President Truman's Air Safety Board recommended today improved fire protection, better working conditions, and increased government research and control to check the rising toll taken by aviation accidents.

The special board, headed by retiring Civil Aeronautics Board Chairman James M. Landis, in its final report made 94 recommendations, 56 of which had been advanced in five preliminary reports.

The final report, which had constructive criticism for airlines, pilots and Congress alike, was signed by four of the five board members, with Brig. Gen. M. W. Arnold, vice president of the Air Transport Association, submitting a dissenting report.

Arnold claimed the board exceeded its air safety mandate and took up subjects of "general air policy and economics" already being studied by two commissions.

Capt. H. B. Cox, airline pilot representing the Air Line Pilots Association, signed the report but dissented from the recommendation that pilot grievances be submitted promptly to arbitration.

A key recommendation called for establishment by the air lines of the position of safety director. This official should be given ample executive authority and adequate staff, the report declared.

The report discussed, but did not recommend, a number of air safety suggestions in addition to the 94 main points. These suggestions included jet-assisted takeoffs and constructions of barriers on runways similar to those carried by aircraft carriers to arrest runaway planes.

Ruth Ellen Rice Becomes Bride Of W. H. Smith, Jr.

Ceremony Performed New Year's Eve

Mr. and Mrs. S. Victor Rice, 310 Harrison Street, announce the marriage of their daughter, Ruth Ellen, to William Henry Smith, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Smith, 414 Maryland Avenue.

The ceremony was performed New Year's Eve in the parsonage of Kingsley Methodist Church, with Rev. M. A. Keesecker, pastor, officiating.

The couple had no attendants. The bridegroom's parents witnessed the ceremony.

The bride, a former student at Fort Hill High School, wore a golden brown crepe dress with dark brown accessories and orchid corsage.

Mrs. Smith chose a street-length dress of teal blue, with black accessories, for her son's wedding.

The bridegroom, who was graduated from Fort Hill in 1939, attended aviation school in California for one year before accepting a position as aircraft inspector at the Glenn L. Martin plant in Baltimore, where he is now employed.

He was discharged from the Army in July, 1946, with the rating of master sergeant, after serving two years, including 18 months in the European theater.

Immediately following the ceremony, the couple left on a short motor trip to eastern cities. They will reside in Baltimore.

Yu Hoodi Club Meets

The Yu Hoodi Club was entertained recently at the home of Mrs. Charles Callis, Williams Road, when secret sisters were revealed, new ones selected and gifts exchanged. Nine persons attended.

Mrs. Blanche Collins returned to Rockville, Md., after spending the holidays with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Collins, 107 Karns Avenue. Robin and Scotty Collins accompanied their grandmother home.

Pfc. James D. Simmons left yesterday for Fort Jackson, S. C., after spending the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Simmons, 621 Frederick Street.

Miss Jean Curl, 709 Montgomery Avenue, and Miss Jacqueline Barnett, 416 Robbins Terrace, are representing Centre Street Methodist Church and First Methodist Church, respectively, at the Methodist Youth Conference being held in Cleveland this week.

Ole Miss Quarterback Bobby Oswalt topped the Southeastern Conference last season in extra point totals, making good 26 of 37.

Mary Helene Young To Be Wed Today To Roy D. Teter

Miss Mary Helene Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Francis Young, 528 Beall Street, will become the bride of Roy Dixon Teter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Andrew Teter, Baltimore, this morning.

The ceremony will be solemnized at SS. Peter and Paul Church, Fayette Street, with a nuptial low mass at 10 o'clock. Rev. Peter Holhman, O.F.M. Cap., will officiate.

Peter Schumaker will play a program of nuptial music and the traditional wedding marches. Thomas Cumiskey will sing "Mother Beloved," "Ave Maria," "Penis Angelicus" and "On This Happy Wedding Day" during the mass.

Mrs. Ambrose R. McKenzie, sister of the bride, will be matron of honor, and Miss Tommy Lou Coleman, Arlington, Va., will be bridesmaid. Paul Hammond Young, brother of the bride, will serve as Mr. Teter's best man. Jack Price and Ira Stroup will be the ushers.

The bride, who will be given in marriage by her father, will wear a white chiffon velvet gown fashioned with a high neck ending in a rolled collar, with long pointed sleeves and a full bustle back ending in a long sweeping train. She will wear a fingertip length veil of old lace, and carry a cascade of white roses tied with white satin ribbons and white flowers.

The matron of honor will wear a gown of rose taffeta faille made complementary to the bride's gown. She will carry a nosegay of old fashioned flowers.

The bridesmaid will wear a gown of aqua taffeta faille made on the same lines as the bride's gown. She also will carry a nosegay of old fashioned flowers.

Following the ceremony a breakfast will be served at the Algonquin Hotel for members of the bridal party only.

After the breakfast, Mr. and Mrs. Young will entertain the bridal party, their families and friends at their home, 528 Beall Street, where the decorations will be carried out in the holiday motif of pine boughs and laurel.

Miss Catherine Lippold, aunt of the bride, will preside at the punch bowl. She will be assisted in serving by Mrs. G. Ray Lippold, Miss Alta Earl and Miss Mary Lou Lippold.

The bride is a graduate of Ursuline Academy, this city, and of Georgetown Hospital School of Nursing, Washington.

Mr. Teter, a graduate of Allegany High School, and a veteran of World War II, is at present a student at Columbia Technical School of Engineering, Washington.

The couple will leave for a wedding trip to eastern cities. For traveling the bride will wear a brown suit with a dusty pink Cloche and brown accessories. A corsage of bride's roses will complete her costume.

They will reside in their Mars Estate apartment, Middle River, Baltimore.

Ruth Ellen Rice Becomes Bride Of W. H. Smith, Jr.

Ceremony Performed New Year's Eve

Mr. and Mrs. S. Victor Rice, 310 Harrison Street, announce the marriage of their daughter, Ruth Ellen, to William Henry Smith, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Smith, 414 Maryland Avenue.

The ceremony was performed New Year's Eve in the parsonage of Kingsley Methodist Church, with Rev. M. A. Keesecker, pastor, officiating.

The couple had no attendants. The bridegroom's parents witnessed the ceremony.

The bride, a former student at Fort Hill High School, wore a golden brown crepe dress with dark brown accessories and orchid corsage.

Mrs. Smith chose a street-length dress of teal blue, with black accessories, for her son's wedding.

The bridegroom, who was graduated from Fort Hill in 1939, attended aviation school in California for one year before accepting a position as aircraft inspector at the Glenn L. Martin plant in Baltimore, where he is now employed.

He was discharged from the Army in July, 1946, with the rating of master sergeant, after serving two years, including 18 months in the European theater.

Immediately following the ceremony, the couple left on a short motor trip to eastern cities. They will reside in Baltimore.

Yu Hoodi Club Meets

The Yu Hoodi Club was entertained recently at the home of Mrs. Charles Callis, Williams Road, when secret sisters were revealed, new ones selected and gifts exchanged. Nine persons attended.

The next meeting will be held Friday, January 16, at the home of Mrs. Clifford Moyer, Ellerslie.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Brooke and their daughter, Linda Kay, of Angola, Ind., are spending the holidays with their respective parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Brooke, Wiley Ford, W. Va., and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Shanholtz, 123 Fifth Street. Mr. Brooke is attending Tri-State College in Angola. They plan to return tomorrow night.

Jack Allen Murrell, Ridgeley, W. Va., is visiting his grandfather, A. W. Allen, Wilmington, N. C.

Mrs. Nina Lichtenstein, 317 Washington Street, is reported improving at Allegany Hospital, where she has been a pneumonia patient for two weeks.

Miss Mary Morse, R. N., returned to her home in Bedford, Pa., after spending the holidays with Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Barringer, 420 Louisiana Avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Seuerstein and daughter Jean Maxine, Mauchchunk, Pa., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Allen R. McDaniel, Bedford Road, for the Christmas holidays. Mrs. Seuerstein is the former Ethel McDaniel.

CPO and Mrs. Allen M. Wilson have returned to Arlington, Va., after visiting Mr. and Mrs. Harold W. Hawkins, 641 Columbia Avenue.

Mrs. Blanche Collins returned to Rockville, Md., after spending the holidays with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Collins, 107 Karns Avenue. Robin and Scotty Collins accompanied their grandmother home.

Pfc. James D. Simmons left yesterday for Fort Jackson, S. C., after spending the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Simmons, 621 Frederick Street.

Miss Jean Curl, 709 Montgomery Avenue, and Miss Jacqueline Barnett, 416 Robbins Terrace, are representing Centre Street Methodist Church and First Methodist Church, respectively, at the Methodist Youth Conference being held in Cleveland this week.

Ole Miss Quarterback Bobby Oswalt topped the Southeastern Conference last season in extra point totals, making good 26 of 37.

Mary Helene Young To Be Wed Today To Roy D. Teter

Miss Mary Helene Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Francis Young, 528 Beall Street, will become the bride of Roy Dixon Teter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Andrew Teter, Baltimore, this morning.

The ceremony will be solemnized at SS. Peter and Paul Church, Fayette Street, with a nuptial low mass at 10 o'clock. Rev. Peter Holhman, O.F.M. Cap., will officiate.

Peter Schumaker will play a program of nuptial music and the traditional wedding marches. Thomas Cumiskey will sing "Mother Beloved," "Ave Maria," "Penis Angelicus" and "On This Happy Wedding Day" during the mass.

Mrs. Ambrose R. McKenzie, sister of the bride, will be matron of honor, and Miss Tommy Lou Coleman, Arlington, Va., will be bridesmaid. Paul Hammond Young, brother of the bride, will serve as Mr. Teter's best man. Jack Price and Ira Stroup will be the ushers.

The bride, who will be given in marriage by her father, will wear a white chiffon velvet gown fashioned with a high neck ending in a rolled collar, with long pointed sleeves and a full bustle back ending in a long sweeping train. She will wear a fingertip length veil of old lace, and carry a cascade of white roses tied with white satin ribbons and white flowers.

The matron of honor will wear a gown of rose taffeta faille made complementary to the bride's gown. She will carry a nosegay of old fashioned flowers.

The bridesmaid will wear a gown of aqua taffeta faille made on the same lines as the bride's gown. She also will carry a nosegay of old fashioned flowers.

Following the ceremony a breakfast will be served at the Algonquin Hotel for members of the bridal party only.

After the breakfast, Mr. and Mrs. Young will entertain the bridal party, their families and friends at their home, 528 Beall Street, where the decorations will be carried out in the holiday motif of pine boughs and laurel.

Miss Catherine Lippold, aunt of the bride, will preside at the punch bowl. She will be assisted in serving by Mrs. G. Ray Lippold, Miss Alta Earl and Miss Mary Lou Lippold.

The bride is a graduate of Ursuline Academy, this city, and of Georgetown Hospital School of Nursing, Washington.

Mr. Teter, a graduate of Allegany High School, and a veteran of World War II, is at present a student at Columbia Technical School of Engineering, Washington.

The couple will leave for a wedding trip to eastern cities. For traveling the bride will wear a brown suit with a dusty pink Cloche and brown accessories. A corsage of bride's roses will complete her costume.

They will reside in their Mars Estate apartment, Middle River, Baltimore.

Patton, Pa., Man Killed In Crash Near Petersburg

James H. Luzier, 32, Is Badly Injured

A Patton, Pa., man was instantly killed and a former Riverton, W. Va., man seriously injured when the car in which they were riding careened from Route 28, five miles west of Petersburg, W. Va., and crashed against a culvert early Thursday morning.

The dead man was identified as Ralph A. Hoover, 32, Patton, Pa., driver of the car.

James Henry Luzier, 32, Patton, a former resident of Riverton, W. Va., who was riding with Hoover, was reported in a fair condition last night in Memorial Hospital where he was taken for treatment of a fractured right hip and possible chest injuries.

Grant County authorities said Hoover and Luzier had traveled from Patton, a distance of 200 miles, and were on their way to Luzier's home in Riverton when the accident occurred on North Fork Road. Luzier said he was asleep when the crash occurred.

Cpl. O. G. Webley, Petersburg, said the car was headed toward Mouth of Seneca when it hit the culvert, catapulted into the air and reversed its course, landing on its top with the dead man trapped inside.

Cpl. Webley said investigation indicated the vehicle was traveling at a "high rate of speed" when it hit the wall about 6:20 a. m.

Trooper C. H. Lewis, B. F. Mitchell, prosecuting attorney; C. H. Park, justice of the peace, and Constable C. L. Lord also participated in the investigation.

Hoover is survived by his widow and five children, all of Patton, and three brothers.

Four Youths, Man Held In Car Theft

Four 17-year-old youths and a 26-year-old man will be arraigned in Juvenile Court this morning on delinquency charges resulting, according to police, from the theft of a car New Year's eve.

The youths, Wilbur George, Leroy Dicken and Calvin Rummer, all of Bowman's Addition and Keath Helmick, Deer Park, were arrested Thursday morning, while the man, Eugene Appold, Bowman's Addition, was taken into custody yesterday afternoon at his home. Trooper Harry Bosley made the arrests.

The four youths will be charged with juvenile delinquency and Appold faces charges of contributing to the delinquency of minors, Trooper Bosley said.

The quartet was arrested at Lovers Leap service station,Route 40, when the trooper saw them pull into the station and then jump from the car and run as they saw him. Appold escaped but was arrested yesterday.

They were charged with unauthorized use of a car reported stolen by the owner, Dorothy Scarpelli, 37 Prospect Square, who told police she parked the car at 37 Euclid Place about 7 p. m. New Year's eve.

The four youths were held in City Jail until Thursday morning and then transferred to Allegany County Jail. All, according to police, signed confessions admitting taking part in the theft.

They, along with Appold, were returned to Allegany County Jail yesterday after being questioned in the office of the Stat's Attorny.

Children Petition Court To Declare Father Dead

Three brothers and a sister, petitioned the judges of Circuit Court here yesterday, to declare their father, George Wilbur Barnstricker, Sr., legally dead. The petitioners claim $314.02 in a bank account, as the legal heirs of the man, whom they claim has been missing for a quarter of a century.

Gorman D. Getty, attorney, filed the petition for George W. Barnstricker, Jr. and Wiliam A. Barnstricker, this city, Mrs. Florence Barnstricker Jenkins and Jesse F. Barnstricker, both of Baltimore.

The petitioners claim George Wilbur Barnstricker Sr. was employed by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and lived at 301 Fifth Street, here, until 25 years ago when he disappeared. He was last heard from in Pittsburgh in 1922.

His wife, Mary Etta Barnstricker, died in 1944, and his mother, Senny Barnstricker, died in Baltimore several years ago, the petitioners state.

When his mother died, Barnstricker's share of her estate was $269, which was deposited in the Carrolton Bank of Baltimore, subject to orders of the Orphans Court. The account has now increased to $314.02, and the petitioners want the money distributed to them.

It is claimed their father, if living, would be 66 years of age.

Orthopedic Clinic Is Scheduled January 9

An orthopedic clinic will be held next Friday, January 9, at headquarters of the Allegany County League for Crippled Children, according to Mrs. Hume O. Annan, executive secretary.

New cases will be examined and a few special cases will be rechecked by Dr. George Eaton, Baltimore specialist.

Clinic hours will be from 9:30 a. m. until 3 p. m. Approximately 100 appointments have been made. Examination will be by appointment only.

To Examine Reservists

Under a recent Naval Reserve ruling, all members of the Organized Naval Reserve Division, will be examined once a year to determine fitness for active duty, Lt. Comdr. Walter N. Herdick, organizing officer here, announced yesterday.

Comdr. Hedrick explained the examinations will be conducted throughout the year, with a few of the local division's 200 members being examined each week by Comdr. Richard J. Williams, division doctor.

Telephone Company To Spend $308,000

Allocation of $308,000 for improvement of telephone facilities in the Cumberland area was announced yesterday by the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City.

These improvements include long distance and exchange cable facilities, placement of 47 miles of aerial and underground cable, 320 miles of wire and 945 poles.

The program is a result of the 900 unfilled applications for service in the city and 300 in adjacent areas, the company announced, and Howard M. Smith, local manager, said the expansion of outside facilities will run concurrently with the new exchange building being erected at Union and South Centre Streets.

In addition, $86,000 was allocated for more long distance circuits between Baltimore and Frederick, Hagerstown and Cumberland, and Frederick and Washington. Six other groups of Western Maryland long distance circuits also will be expanded under the appropriation.

An allocation of $3,869,000 has been made for the state, with $2,000,000 of the sum earmarked for routine construction and replacement and removal of plant equipment.

Good Wins Prizes With His Chickens

Lester E. Good, who has been a breeder of exhibition chickens for many years, and who has shown his breeds throughout the country, competing with some of the best nationally-known poultry breeders, was among the several hundred to place birds in the Uniontown, Pa., show of the Uniontown Poultry and Farm Products Association this week.

Mr. Good, who resides in LaVale, exhibited Columbians and Buff Orphingtons, and out of 11 birds sent to the show he captured 11 awards. He won first and second prize in the cock class, first and second hens, first and second cockerels and first and second pullets in the Columbian class. In the Buff Orphington, the one cockerel exhibited was awarded a blue ribbon, while two pullets in the same class placed first and second.

Approximately 1,500 chickens and other feathered creatures have been on exhibit in the Uniontown show this week. It closes tonight.

Korba Receives Brazil Assignment

John Korba, foreign representative in the export division of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company will sail from New York January 15 for Brazil, where he has been permanently assigned.

His headquarters will be in Rio de Janeiro, but he will travel throughout the entire country to further production and sales of the company's tires, which will be produced for the firm in Brazil and will be distributed by one of the major oil distributors in that country.

A. A. Verner, sales manager in Kelly's export division, explained it will be the first time the company will have tires manufactured locally in a foreign country, a new phase in export policy.

If the experiment is successful, he said, further expansion in other major production areas of the world is planned.

Verner expects to spend about two months in South American countries, leaving here in February, in connection with the export program.

Korba, whose home is in Eddystone, Pa., has been associated with Kelly for 15 months. A graduate of the School of Foreign Service of Georgetown University, he took Oriental studies at Yale before serving in the China-Burma-India Theater as a member of the Office of Strategic Services.

During his stay in Cumberland he addressed a number of service clubs on the Far East.

DiMaggio Is Reported To Have Asked $75,000; Yanks Decline Comment

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 (AP) — The New York Baseball Yankees disclosed today that General Manager George Weiss had conferred with Joe DiMaggio, but declined comment on published reports that the American League's most valuable player had asked a 1948 salary of $75,000.

"The New York Yankees do not deny that they have entered into contract negotiations with Joe Di Maggio and other members of the team," the club said in a prepared statement.

"It has been mutually agreed by Di Maggio and George Weiss, vice president and general manager of the Yankees that no publicity will be given on any details of these negotiations."

At the same time, the club denied current reports that Ed Barrow, former Yankee president, would be offered an executive position in the organization.

Major Security Exchanges To Remain Closed Today

NEW YORK, Jan 2 (AP) — The nation's major security exchanges and some commodity markets will remain closed tomorrow—an action rarely taken — because of severe weather conditions in many sections.

One closing announcement followed on the heels of another throughout the East after the New York Stock Exchange announced its decision to close until Monday.

The New York Curb Exchange, the National Association of Security Dealers, which conducts "over-the-counter" dealings, and the New York Cotton Exchange took similar action on the heels of the initial announcement.

Securities exchanges in Chicago, Boston, Cincinnati, Baltimore, Detroit, St. Louis, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia rapidly followed suit.

East Side Firemen Quench First Blazes

The first two fire calls of 1948, both resulting from flue fires, were answered by East Side Fire Company yesterday afternoon.

The company was called to the home of Howard Alderton, 521 Woodside Avenue, at 1:25 p. m. and to the home of Mrs. John Everett, 725 Columbia Avenue, at 3:50 p. m. Fireman said soot burning in flues caused both alarms and that both fires were extinguished before any

Army Seeks Men For ZI Commands

The local recruiting office of the United States Army announced yesterday that enlistments of men with prior service which terminated on or after May 12, 1945, will be accepted for the Second, Third, Fourth and Sixth Army Areas in the United States.

The local office also announced opening in eight Army units now stationed in the Zone of Interior. They are Second Infantry Division, Fort Lewis, Wash.; Second Armored Division, Camp Hood, Texas; 82nd Airborne Division, Fort Bragg, N. C.; Second Engineer Special Brigade, Fort Worden, Wash.; Third Armored Division, Fort Knox, Ky.; Fourth Infantry Division, Fort Ord, Calif.; Fifth Infantry Division, Fort Jackson, S. C.; Ninth Infantry Division, Fort Dix, N. J.

Enlistments in all cases will be for three, four or five years. Men are guaranteed a minimum of three years in unit of choice except those who prove unsatisfactory in performance of duty.

Individuals enlisting will be sent directly from place of enlistment to unit of choice without processing

Improvement To Be Made In '48 By Gas Company

Plans to invest more than $700,000 in gas service improvement projects have been made by the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company, according to Carl C. Robins, local manager. A $13,000,000 budget for construction work this year in the five-state area of the Pittsburgh group of the Columbia Gas System has been set up.

Robbins said yesterday that district workers will continue their program of laying new booster lines and replacing old lines during 1948.

According to Irving K. Peck, vice president and general manager, the actual start of many of the proposed projects will depend upon the gas company receiving required approvals from Federal and State regulatory bodies. Another important factor is the obtaining of deliveries for steel pipe, valves, pumps and similar equipment.

The gas company plans to build in 1948 a high pressure gas transmission line near Oakland. When completed, it will increase pressure for the delivery of gas from a new field in Preston county, West Virginia.

Also planned for next year is the further development of a new field in Tucker County, West Virginia, which seems to have possibilities of becoming a good source for natural gas.

If sufficient quantities of steel pipe can be obtained, Mr. Peck reported that the gas company also plans to both replace and extend portions of its network of high pressure gas transmission lines.

For the most part, this construction will provide new and additional connections between main high pressure transportation lines and major points for gas distribution.

Among other gas service improvement projects planned by Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company during 1948 are numerous pipe lines laid for relatively short distances so that gas can be supplied to communities from more than one direction.

"All of these construction projects," commented Mr. Peck, will be undertaken as soon as is possible in order that we may improve our gas service. The investment is large, primarily due to the high costs for postwar construction. The result will be a better gas service supplied at prewar rates."

Three Men Hurt When Car Strikes Hancock Bridge

Two men were admitted and another treated in Allegany Hospital here yesterday morning for injuries suffered when the car in which they were riding was demolished when it crashed against a bridge at Hancock.

State Police said the sedan driven by William E. Jeffries, 156 Greene Street, Frostburg, crashed into the concrete bridge at the west end of Hancock.

Jeffries and the two occupants of the machine, Alfred P. Jeffries, 37, 218 Glenn Street and Joseph Stakem, 116 Decatur Street, this city, were taken to Allegany Hospital in an ambulance.

Hospital attaches said Stakem was admitted for observation of possible head and back injuries. Alfred Jeffries, who suffered a deep laceration of the head, was also admitted for X-rays and observation. William Jeffries was treated for a laceration of the right hand and discharged.

State Trooper Harold Basore, who is investigating the wreck, said that no charges have been filed pending a complete check and the outcome of the injuries of the men admitted to the hospital.

In another accident case handled at the hospital yesterday, Paul Shaffer, Wellersburg, an employe of the Cumberland Cement and Supply Company, was treated for a back injury suffered in a fall from a truck.

Harriet Coughenour, 63, Bond Street was treated for a right arm injury received when she fell at her home.

Donald O'Toole, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin O'Toole, 621 North Mechanic Street, was treated at Memorial Hospital yesterday for a cut on the mouth suffered in a fall and Leroy Fisher, 414 East Oldtown Road, for a nose laceration suffered in a fall on a sidewalk.

Patton, Pa., Man Killed In Crash Near Petersburg

James H. Luzier, 32, Is Badly Injured

A Patton, Pa., man was instantly killed and a former Riverton, W. Va., man seriously injured when the car in which they were riding careened from Route 28, five miles west of Petersburg, W. Va., and crashed against a culvert early Thursday morning.

The dead man was identified as Ralph A. Hoover, 32, Patton, Pa., driver of the car.

James Henry Luzier, 32, Patton, a former resident of Riverton, W. Va., who was riding with Hoover, was reported in a fair condition last night in Memorial Hospital where he was taken for treatment of a fractured right hip and possible chest injuries.

Grant County authorities said Hoover and Luzier had traveled from Patton, a distance of 200 miles, and were on their way to Luzier's home in Riverton when the accident occurred on North Fork Road. Luzier said he was asleep when the crash occurred.

Cpl. O. G. Webley, Petersburg, said the car was headed toward Mouth of Seneca when it hit the culvert, catapulted into the air and reversed its course, landing on its top with the dead man trapped inside.

Cpl. Webley said investigation indicated the vehicle was traveling at a "high rate of speed" when it hit the wall about 6:20 a. m.

Trooper C. H. Lewis, B. F. Mitchell, prosecuting attorney; C. H. Park, justice of the peace, and Constable L. Lord also participated in the investigation.

Hoover is survived by his widow and five children, all of Patton, and three brothers.

Four Youths, Man Held In Car Theft

Four 17-year-old youths and a 26-year-old man will be arraigned in Juvenile Court this morning on delinquency charges resulting, according to police, from the theft of a car New Year's eve.

The youths, Wilbur George, Leroy Dicken and Calvin Rummer, all of Bowman's Addition and Keath Helmick, Deer Park, were arrested Thursday morning, while the man, Eugene Appold, Bowman's Addition, was taken into custody yesterday afternoon at his home. Trooper Harry Bosley made the arrests.

The four youths will be charged with juvenile delinquency and Appold faces charges of contributing to the delinquency of minors, Trooper Bosley said.

The quartet was arrested at Lovers Leap service station,Route 40, when the trooper saw them pull into the station and then jump from the car and run as they saw him. Appold escaped but was arrested yesterday.

They were charged with unauthorized use of a car reported stolen by the owner, Dorothy Scarpelli, 37 Prospect Square, who told police she parked the car at 37 Euclid Place about 7 p. m. New Year's eve.

The four youths were held in City Jail until Thursday morning and then transferred to Allegany County Jail. All, according to police, signed confessions admitting taking part in the theft.

They, along with Appold, were returned to Allegany County Jail yesterday after being questioned in the office of the Stat's Attorny.

Children Petition Court To Declare Father Dead

Three brothers and a sister, petitioned the judges of Circuit Court here yesterday, to declare their father, George Wilbur Barnstricker, Sr., legally dead. The petitioners claim $314.02 in a bank account, as the legal heirs of the man, whom they claim has been missing for a quarter of a century.

Gorman E. Getty, attorney, filed the petition for George W. Barnstricker, Jr. and Wiliam A. Barnstricker, this city, Mrs. Florence Barnstricker Jenkins and Jesse F. Barnstricker, both of Baltimore.

The petitioners claim George Wilbur Barnstricker Sr. was employed by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and lived at 301 Fifth Street, here, until 25 years ago when he disappeared. He was last heard from in Pittsburh in 1922.

His wife, Mary Etta Barnstricker, died in 1944, and his mother, Senny Barnstricker, died in Baltimore several years ago, the petitioners state.

When his mother died, Barnstricker's share of her estate was $280, which was deposited in the Carrollton Bank of Baltimore, subject to orders of the Orphans Court. The account has now increased to $314.02, and the petitioners want the money distributed to them.

It is claimed their father, if living, would be 66 years of age.

Telephone Company To Spend $308,000

Allocation of $308,000 for improvement of telephone facilities in the Cumberland area was announced yesterday by the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City.

These improvements include long distance and exchange cable facilities, placement of 47 miles of aerial and underground cable, 320 miles of wire and 945 poles.

The program is a result of the 900 unfilled applications for service in the city and 300 in adjacent areas, the company announced, and Howard M. Smith, local manager, said the expansion of outside facilities will run concurrently with the new exchange building being erected at Union and South Centre Streets.

In addition, $86,000 was allocated for more long distance circuits between Baltimore and Frederick, Hagerstown and Cumberland, and Frederick and Washington. Six other groups of Western Maryland long distance circuits also will be expanded under the appropriation.

An allocation of $3,869,000 has been made for the state, with $2,000,000 of the sum earmarked for routine construction and replacement and removal of plant equipment.

Good Wins Prizes With His Chickens

Lester E. Good, who has been a breeder of exhibition chickens for many years, and who has shown his breeds throughout the country, competing with some of the best nationally-known poultry breeders, was among the several hundred to place birds in the Uniontown, Pa., show of the Uniontown Poultry and Farm Products Association this week.

Mr. Good, who resides in LaVale, exhibited Columbians and Buff Orphingtons, and out of 11 birds sent to the show he captured 11 awards. DiMaggio Is Reported To Have Asked $75,000; Yanks Decline Comment

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 (AP) — The New York Baseball Yankees disclosed today that General Manager George Weiss had conferred with Joe DiMaggio, but declined comment on published reports that the American League's most valuable player had asked a 1948 salary of $75,000.

"The New York Yankees do not deny that they have entered into contract negotiations with Joe DiMaggio and other members of the team," the club said in a prepared statement.

"It has been mutually agreed by Di Maggio and George Weiss, vice president and general manager of the Yankees that no publicity will be given on any details of these negotiations."

At the same time, the club denied current reports that Ed Barrow, former Yankee president, would be offered an executive position in the organization.

Army Seeks Men For ZI Commands

The local recruiting office of the United States Army announced yesterday that enlistments of men with prior service which terminated on or after Aug. 12, 1945, will be accepted for the Second, Third, Fourth and Sixth Army Areas in the United States.

The local office also announced opening in eight Army units now stationed in the Zone of Interior. They are Second Infantry Division, Fort Lewis, Wash.; Second Armored Division, Camp Hood, Texas; 82nd Airborne Division, Fort Bragg, N. C.; Second Engineer Special Brigade, Fort Worden, Wash.; Third Armored Division, Fort Knox, Ky.; Fourth Infantry Division, Fort Ord, Calif.; Fifth Infantry Division, Fort Jackson, S. C.; Ninth Infantry Division, Fort Dix, N. J.

Enlistments in all cases will be for three, four or five years. Men are guaranteed a minimum of three years in unit of choice except those who prove unsatisfactory in performance of duty.

Individuals enlisting will be sent directly from place of enlistment to unit of choice without processing

Major Security Exchanges To Remain Closed Today

NEW YORK, Jan 2 (AP) — The nation's major security exchanges and some commodity markets will remain closed tomorrow, action rarely taken — because of severe weather conditions in many sections.

One closing announcement followed on the heels of another throughout the East after the New York Stock Exchange announced its decision to close until Monday.

The New York Curb Exchange, the National Association of Security Dealers, which conducts "over-the-counter" dealings, and the New York Cotton Exchange took similar action on the heels of the initial announcement.

Securities exchanges in Chicago, Boston, Cincinnati, Baltimore, Detroit, St. Louis, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia rapidly followed suit.

East Side Firemen Quench First Blazes

The first two fire calls of 1948, both resulting from flue fires, were answered by East Side Fire Company yesterday afternoon.

The company was called to the home of Howard Alderton, 521 Woodside Avenue, at 1:25 p. m. and to the home of Mrs. John Everett, 725 Columbia Avenue, at 3:50 p. m. Fireman said soot burning in flues caused both alarms and that both fires were extinguished before any

Improvement To Be Made In '48 By Gas Company

Plans to invest more than $700,000 in gas service improvement projects have been made by the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company, according to Carl C. Robins, local manager. A $13,000,000 budget for construction work this year in the five-state area of the Pittsburgh group of the Columbia Gas System has been set up.

Robbins said yesterday that district workers will continue their program of laying new booster lines and replacing old lines during 1948.

According to Irving K. Peck, vice president and general manager, the actual start of many of the proposed projects will depend upon the gas company receiving required approvals from Federal and State regulatory bodies. Another important factor is the obtaining of deliveries for steel pipe, valves, pumps and similar equipment.

The gas company plans to build in 1948 a high pressure gas transmission line near Oakland. When completed, it will increase pressure for the delivery of gas from a new field in Preston county, West Virginia.

Also planned for next year is the further development of a new field in Tucker County, West Virginia, which seems to have possibilities of becoming a good source for natural gas.

If sufficient quantities of steel pipe can be obtained, Mr. Peck reported that the gas company also plans to both replace and extend portions of its network of high pressure gas transmission lines.

For the most part, this construction will provide new and additional connections between main high pressure transportation lines and major points for gas distribution.

Among other gas service improvement projects planned by Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company during 1948 are numerous pipe lines laid for relatively short distances so that gas can be supplied to communities from more than one direction.

"All of these construction projects," commented Mr. Peck, will be undertaken as soon as is possible in order that we may improve our gas service. The investment is large, primarily due to the high costs for postwar construction. The result will be a better gas service supplied at prewar rates."

Three Men Hurt When Car Strikes Hancock Bridge

Two men were admitted and another treated in Allegany Hospital here yesterday morning for injuries suffered when the car in which they were riding was demolished when it crashed against a bridge at Hancock.

State Police said the sedan driven by William E. Jeffries, 156 Greene Street, Frostburg, crashed into the concrete bridge at the west end of Hancock.

Jeffries and the two occupants of the machine, Alfred P. Jeffries, 37, 218 Glenn Street and Joseph Stakem, 116 Decatur Street, this city, were taken to Allegany Hospital in an ambulance.

Hospital attaches said Stakem was admitted for observation of possible head and back injuries. Alfred Jeffries, who suffered a deep laceration of the head, was also admitted for X-rays and observation. William Jeffries was treated for a laceration of the right hand and discharged.

State Trooper Harold Basore, who is investigating the wreck, said that no charges have been filed pending a complete check and the outcome of the injuries of the men admitted to the hospital.

In another accident case handled at the hospital yesterday, Paul Shaffer, Wellersburg, an employe of the Cumberland Cement and Supply Company, was treated for a back injury suffered in a fall from a truck.

Harriet Coughenour, 63, Bond Street was treated for a right arm injury received when she fell at her home.

Donald O'Toole, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin O'Toole, 621 North Mechanic Street, was treated at Memorial Hospital yesterday for a cut on the mouth suffered in a fall and Leroy Fisher, 414 East Oldtown Road, for a nose laceration suffered in a fall on a sidewalk.

A letter expressing this view will be sent to all West Virginia senators and congressmen over the signature of the post commander, Courtney L. Pratt.

Universal military training has been endorsed by the national organization of the Legion and a similar resolution will be passed by most of the Legion posts throughout the nation.

Aubrey Eugene Evans resigned as adjutant of the post and as secretary-treasurer of the American Legion Club, effective January 1. Milton McNeill was elected adjutant of the post to fill out the unexpired term of Evans and McNeill was appointed secretary-treasurer of the club by the board of directors.

Daniel Wilson, chairman of the 1948 membership committee, announced that the post had 227 members this year. The next meeting of the club will be held January 27.

Street Work Deferred

The State Roads Commission discontinued work on the Moorefield street project until the winter freezing season is over. Work will be resumed during the latter part of March or the first of April.

A curb has been built along Main Street with the exception of a few spring. The new storm sewers are about half completed. The storm sewer along the business section remains to be installed in the spring.

When the work resumes in the spring, Main Street will be torn up, regardless, releveled and surfaced.

Workmen spent the week prior to Christmas filling low spots along the new curbs in preparation for winter.

Marriage Announced

A quiet wedding was solemnized at Flagler Street Baptist Church in Miami, Fla., December 5, when Miss Evelyn Marie Yeates, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Yeates, Keyton, Fla., became the bride of Haven Eugene Keller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Keller, Palmetto, Fla., formerly of Martinsburg. Garrett County School Officials Sell 2 Buildings

By GEORGE H. HANST

Two school buildings were sold this week at public auction by the Board of Education.

The New Herrington one - room school, located on Hutton Road, was purchased by Rev. Dan H. McAllister, Oakland, for the sum of $450, according to F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent of schools. He plans to remodel the structure into a dwelling, it was stated.

The Sang Run two-room building was purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Albert L. Friend, Sang Run, for the sum of $285. They plan to remodel it into a home.

Rathbun said there were no protests concerning the sale of the buildings from any residents of those areas. The Sang Run School, which was built about 40 years ago, had been unoccupied for six or seven years. The Herrington School had been unoccupied for three or four years, he said.

The sale was conducted Tuesday morning in the Court House with about 30 persons attending.

Daniel Wilson, chairman of the 1948 membership committee, announced that the post had 227 members this year. The next meeting of the club will be held January 27.

Street Work Deferred

The State Roads Commission discontinued work on the Moorefield street project until the winter freezing season is over. Work will be resumed during the latter part of March or the first of April.

A curb has been built along Main Street with the exception of a few spring. The new storm sewers are about half completed. The storm sewer along the business section remains to be installed in the spring.

When the work resumes in the spring, Main Street will be torn up, regardless, releveled and surfaced.

Workmen spent the week prior to Christmas filling low spots along the new curbs in preparation for winter.

Marriage Announced

A quiet wedding was solemnized at Flagler Street Baptist Church in Miami, Fla., December 5, when Miss Evelyn Marie Yeates, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Yeates, Cavetown, Mo., became the bride of Haven Eugene Keller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rex Keller, Palmetto, Fla., formerly of Martinsburg. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Davidson.

The bride wore a French beige suit with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Her only attendant, Mrs. Samuel E. Decker, chose a powder blue dress with white accessories and a corsage of red rosebuds. Samuel E. Decker served as best man.

Following the ceremony, the couple left for a brief honeymoon in Havana, Cuba. On their return, they will reside in Miami.

Mrs. Keller attended Hagerstown High School and Mr. Keller attended Martinsburg High School before serving three years in the Navy. At present he is employed by Samuel Smieton, painting contractor of Miami.

Charles E. Keller, father of the bridegroom, was from the Lost River section of Hardy county and has many friends here.

Garrett County School Officials Sell 2 Buildings

By GEORGE H. HANST

Two school buildings were sold this week at public auction by the Board of Education.

The New Herrington one - room school, located on Hutton Road, was purchased by Rev. Dan H. McAllister, Oakland, for the sum of $450, according to F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent of schools. He plans to remodel the structure into a dwelling, it was stated.

The Sang Run two-room building was purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Albert L. Friend, Sang Run, for the sum of $285. They plan to remodel it into a home.

Rathbun said there were no protests concerning the sale of the buildings from any residents of those areas. The Sang Run School, which was built about 40 years ago, had been unoccupied for six or seven years. The Herrington School had been unoccupied for three or four years, he said.

The sale was conducted Tuesday morning in the Court House with about 30 persons attending.

Firemen Hold Election

Melvin Kesner was re - elected president of the Accident Volunteer Fire Department at a regular meeting of the group held recently in Accident High School.

Others elected were Luther Boxser, vice president; succeeding Frank Spoerlein; Charles Strauss, secretary, succeeding Aubrey Goehringer; Orlando Hetrick, treasurer, succeeding Roy Turney; Roy Broadwater, fire chief, succeeding John Shoemaker; Earl Haentling, captain, succeeding Roy Broadwater; and Rev. Robert Johns, chaplain, reelected.

Kesner appointed committee chairmen and announced that all fire calls coming to the department should be made to Accident 135.

Chambers Rites Held

A funeral service was conducted Tuesday afternoon from the Bolden Funeral Home, for William Henry Chambers, 69, caretaker for Hemlock Hollow," two miles east of Gortner, who was found dead at his home last Sunday afternoon by John Shaffer, a neighbor. Shaffer went to the home to make an investigation when Mr. Chambers failed to come for his mail last Friday and Saturday.

The man was discovered lying on the floor and Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, deputy county medical examiner, said the man had died of natural causes. He declared the man had been dead for over 24 hours when found.

Shaffer reached a telephone at the home of Grover Lee and notified the sheriff's office. State's Attorney Walter W. Dawson, Deputy Sheriff Paul W. Fisher and Emroy Bolden, undertaker, were compelled to go by sled to the Chambers home where the former two made their investigation.

Dr. Baumgartner said Mr. Chambers was subject to heart attacks, the last previous one having occurred in September.

Mr. Chambers was born October 15, 1878, in Oakland, a son of the late Lloyd and Louise Jankey Chambers.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Louise Ferragatti, Jackson Heights, N. Y.; two sisters, Mrs. Grace Brown, New Mexico; and Mrs. Estelle Shippy, Connellsville, Pa.; and three brothers, Robert Chambers, Pittsburgh; Harry Chambers, Washington, D. C.; and Charles Chambers, Connellsville.

Services were conducted by Rev. Austin F. Schildwachter, Episcopal minister, and interment was in Oakland Cemetery.

Marriage Announced

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Suzanna Elizabeth DeWitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Parker DeWitt, Sang Run, to Owen Frazee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Frazee, Oakland.

The ceremony took place December 24, with Rev. C. W. Fraker, McHenry, officiating.

Attendants were Mr. and Mrs. William Burdette, Oakland, brother-in-law and sister of the bride.

The bride was attired in a light brown suit with matching accessories, and wore a corsage of pink rosebuds.

She is a graduate of Friendsville High school and is employed at the Half Price Store in Oakland. The bridegroom is employed by his father on their farm near Oakland. The couple will reside temporarily at the home of the bridegroom's parents.

Advice To The Lovelorn

Honesty Not Only Best Policy
But Almost Always Pays Off

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Honesty is not only the best policy from a moral point of view, but it almost always pays off in the end. Conversely, the lack of honesty, in one instance, is apt to lead into another, and then another, until the situation becomes so involved that it is not possible to straighten it out without having the whole thing collapse.

That is the kind of involved mess in which the fiance of one of my women correspondents has got himself.

She writes me that a month or so ago her fiance failed to come to see her one Saturday night when she expected him, and subsequently explained to her the reason for his non-appearance. This reason concerned a young woman he had known before he met this girl, and with whom he had had an affair. He had never planned to tell his fiancee about this girl, he said, believing that "time would take care of everything" as she puts it. But, in the meantime, he is afraid to tell the first woman about his engagement, fearing what she might do. Having now failed in his efforts to keep his fiancee from knowing about the other, he still is frantically anxious to keep the first woman from knowing the facts, and so is stalling along, hoping that some miracle will solve his problem for him.

Disillusioned and heartsick, his fiancee now writes me to ask if her young man "owes" this first woman anything, and if he should keep postponing their marriage until the miracle he is apparently waiting for occurs and he feels he can marry her without the danger of the other girl making a scandal.

Now, if this young man had had the courage, in the beginning, to put a definite end to his unfortunate relationship with the first girl before courting the second girl, or if he had had the courage to be frank and honest with the second about his involvement with the first, he would obviously not now find himself in his current state of psychological paralysis, unable to take any steps toward the future because he is entangled in the past.

Obviously, someone has got to act, if this deadlock is to be broken. And since the young man apparently has not the character to take any action himself, this girl had better make some sort of move herself. As to whether or not her fiance "owes" his former girl friend anything, that is a question which only his conscience could decide. But the question of whether or not he should keep the second girl waiting any longer is something that she can and should decide for herself right now. No matter how much she may love him, she will certainly soon lose all respect for him if he lets their present situation continue indefinitely. It would hardly be surprising if she had lost it already.

My suggestion is that she tell him, in no uncertain terms, to choose at once between settling up past scores for good, or losing her. And to be quite frank, if she decided to let him go without giving him any choice of alternatives, I think she would be much happier in the end. A man so weak that he has to be pushed into action is hardly likely to be the sort of strong husband every woman wants.

Burglar Finds Crime Doesn't Pay

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. (AP)—When a burglar invaded the home of Mrs. Edythe M. Winters, it was she who obtained the loot.

Mrs. Winters said the prowler fled out the back door as her family entered through the front door. She told police nothing was missing but the prowler left: a small sports coat, an apron, a package of cigarettes, and 51 cents.

Advice To The Lovelorn

Honesty Not Only Best Policy
But Almost Always Pays Off

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Honesty is not only the best policy from a moral point of view, but it almost always pays off in the end. Conversely, the lack of honesty, in one instance, is apt to lead into another, and then another, until the situation becomes so involved that it is not possible to straighten it out without having the whole thing collapse.

That is the kind of involved mess in which the fiance of one of my women correspondents has got himself.

She writes me that a month or so ago her fiance failed to come to see her one Saturday night when she expected him, and subsequently explained to her the reason for his non-appearance. This reason concerned a young woman he had known before he met this girl, and with whom he had had an affair. He had never planned to tell his fiancee about this girl, he said, believing that "time would take care of everything" as she puts it. But, in the meantime, he is afraid to tell the first woman about his engagement, fearing what she might do. Having now failed in his efforts to keep his fiancee from knowing about the other, he still is frantically anxious to keep the first woman from knowing the facts, and so is stalling along, hoping that some miracle will solve his problem for him.

Disillusioned and heartsick, his fiancee now writes me to ask if her young man "owes" this first woman anything, and if he should keep postponing their marriage until the miracle he is apparently waiting for occurs and he feels he can marry her without the danger of the other girl making a scandal.

Now, if this young man had had the courage, in the beginning, to put a definite end to his unfortunate relationship with the first girl before courting the second girl, or if he had had the courage to be frank and honest with the second about his involvement with the first, he would obviously not now find himself in his current state of psychological paralysis, unable to take any steps toward the future because he is entangled in the past.

Obviously, someone has got to act, if this deadlock is to be broken. And since the young man apparently has not the character to take any action himself, this girl had better make some sort of move herself. As to whether or not her fiance "owes" his former girl friend anything, that is a question which only his conscience could decide. But the question of whether or not he should keep the second girl waiting any longer is something that she can and should decide for herself right now. No matter how much she may love him, she will certainly soon lose all respect for him if he lets their present situation continue indefinitely. It would hardly be surprising if she had lost it already.

My suggestion is that she tell him, in no uncertain terms, to choose at once between settling up past scores for good, or losing her. And to be quite frank, if she decided to let him go without giving him any choice of alternatives, I think she would be much happier in the end. A man so weak that he has to be pushed into action is hardly likely to be the sort of strong husband every woman wants.

Job of Political Sabotage As Practiced By Mr. Truman

In announcing his reluctancy to sign the anti-inflation bill, President Truman said, "The legislative and executive branches of the Government must work together if this grave peril is to be conquered." Does Mr. Truman actually believe that he was co-operating with Congress when he made his sweeping denunciation of the bill he proposed to sign?

Of course there has been little co-operation between the White House and Congress on the inflation issue. The President asked Congress to restore his wartime powers to fix prices and wages and to ration goods. Believing such powers improper, unnecessary and probably doomed to failure in peacetime, the Republican Congress refused. Instead, it extended several current administration powers and voted its own voluntary anti-inflation program. Congress thus was carrying out its legislative duties under the Constitution. Under the same Constitution, the President had a right to veto the bill. But neither the Constitution nor the dictates of sound policy justified any President in making a bill into law and then, by a political attack on it, insuring the failure of that law in practice.

The Truman denunciation of the bill was laced with such phrases as "feeble steps," "pitifully inadequate," "meager authority" and "obvious insufficiency." At one point, he deplored his lack of authority to compel "non-co-operating" members of an industry to enter voluntary agreements with "public-spirited" members in order to share scarce raw materials. Does Mr. Truman think he is encouraging the public-spirited members by stating that "the public must be misled into believing that this bill will do the job?"

The Truman statement was a job of political sabotage. It was also an insult to the public intelligence. Mr. Truman implies that the Republican Congress is entirely to blame for current high prices. He himself was partly responsible for the inflation by his political attempt, after the war, to maintain price ceilings while calling for still higher wages. Perhaps he is getting ready to repeat that strategy. His statement significantly omits any menion of wage controls in its otherwise exact recital of his 10-point program, which include such controls.

Most glaring of all is the President's failure even to mention the Marshall Plan and its influence on prices. To ignore the effect of that plan upon prices, while blaming the Republican Congress for inflation, is a bid for votes in 1948 that smacks of Kansas City machine politics.

A new electrically-operated knife cuts so fine that slices are invisible to the naked eye. The mystery is how ham sandwichmakers were able to obtain this gadget so speedily.

"Fair Trade" Laws Are Sometimes Inflationary

Those who insist that "fair trade" laws do not add to retail costs may be hard put to it to explain a recent ruling in New York state which forbade a chain store to sell a certain kind of perfume at less than $1.60 per ampule.

The store had been selling the ampules at ten cents each.

Under state fair trade laws, which would be in restraint of trade if they were not allowed specific exemption by the federal Miller-Tydings Act, the owner of a trade-mark may set a retail price on his goods below which no retailer may sell.

In the New York case, the owner of the perfume trade-mark had set a minimum price of $1.60 for "one dram or less." A rebottling company bought the perfume in the "open market" and put it into smaller bottles which held only one-seventieth of a dram each, and then sold the smaller bottles to the chain store.

At 10 cents a bottle, or ampule, the chain store was retailing the perfume at $7 a dram, but because it was not charging $1.60 for any amount of less than one dram, the courts said it was acting illegally.

If the store had been charging $1.60 for the 10-cent bottles, the law would not have interferred. Any law which results in such grotesque trade regulations as those resulting from the court rulings in the New York case is not only inflationary but indefensible.

What has become of those German chemists who bragged during the war that they could make beefsteak out of wood?

The Red Army

The "invincibility" of the Red Army is "one of the greatest legends of all time," according to an article in the current issue of The Reserve Officer, a monthly magazine. Furthermore, that army is "poorly armed, poorly equipped, poorly trained and has low morale."

These are the words of one Arnold Purre who, according to the editors of the magazine, is respected in Sweden as a military expert unusually well informed on the Soviet fighting force. He should be, since he was "absorbed" into it when Estonia was occupied in 1940 and he fought against it as a guerilla after he escaped in 1941. He ought to know whereof he speaks.

Still, it is only sensible to be wary of building mistaken conclusions on his testimony and his opinions. It may be that there are "numerous instances" of Estonians fighting and defeating Russians "at a ratio of one Estonian against 10 or more Russias."

It may be that the German army was half-starved, half-frozen and in generally poor shape after 1943, so it took "no great prowess" for the Russians to defeat it. It is true that the Russians were in their own country and had some American food and American weapons.

But it took some "prowess" for the red army to accept defeat after defeat before 1943, retreat and retreat and retreat, suffer tremendous losses, and still fight on to turn the tide in the end.

The Red Army is not "invincible." It is probably no better than Purre says it is from the standpoint of arms, equipment, training and morale. Yet it bore the brunt of the German army, which smashed a dozen others in brief campaigns, for years. It never gave up. It shouldered its share of the final offensive. It marched to Berlin.

Americans should not be stupid enough to underestimate the army that did all this—or the nation that produced it.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Don't Scratch Itching Ears Or More Woe May Develop

HEAT AND MOISTURE are natural allies of ringworm organisms. Wet skin macerates readily becoming more vulnerable to infection. The added warmth provides the fungus with a cozy atmosphere and before long it grows luxuriantly. These can attach themselves to any part of the body but favor the less well aerated regions such as between the toes or wherever the surface is thrown into folds. A fairly popular location is within the outer ear canal which is often left damp from perspiration or after washing or swimming.

When infection occurs in this area the condition is known as "otomycosis" or "mycotic otitis externa." The disease has many nicknames including fungous, mildew, itching, swimming, dhobie, Panama, and Singapore ear, jungle rot, and stink ear.

Itching is the earliest manifestation. As a result, the victim scratches or digs with a finger, toothpick, paper clip, hairpin, or whatever instrument is available. This often leads to further trouble.

The infection exists in all imaginable degrees. There is usually little wax because this material interferes with the growth of molds. As a rule, the membranes lining the canal are wrinkled or scaly. In more advanced cases the wall is coated with a cottonlike substance that looks like wet blotting paper, moist bread, or glazier's putty. Sometimes there is so much debris that the opening is plugged.

Treatment is begun by swabbing the ear with cotton, irrigating with water, and drying thoroughly. This procedure in itself removes millions of fungi. In many instances some of the material taken from the ear is placed under a microscope for further study. There are at least 53 different types of molds capable of producing the malady and the aspergillis group account for the majority.

Among the many antiseptic solutions employed are metacresyl acetate, camphor, phenol mixtures, zinc peroxide, and sulfonamides. X-ray is used occasionally especially if the disorder has been neglected and is severe. Streptomycin ointment has been tried in the Pseudomonas type, with controversial results.

Some individuals have repeated bouts. Many have ringworm infection in another part of the body such as the groin or armpits or between the toes. These must be eradicated. The ears should be kept dry to prevent recurrences. This can be done by applying a solution of one to ten thousand parts bichloride of mercury in 70% alcohol after swimming or bathing.

Many of us notice itching of the ears now and then. If it persists, medical care should be sought early because otomycosis is easier to treat during its inception than after becoming fully established.

VENTILATION

W. C. writes: Several friends were discussing the fresh air problem while sleeping. Is it proper to leave bedroom window open or should the room be aired out thoroughly before retiring and the window then closed?

REPLY

A steady supply of fresh air is desirable but drafts must be avoided.

Today's Talk

Enjoyment

In Plato's "The Symposium of Supper," Appolodorus meets a friend, Pharlerian, and hails him. So the friend stopped and said: "Appolodorus, you are the very man I have been questing. I want to ask about that party when Agathon, Socrates, Alcibiades and others were present, and about the erotic speeches they made." And then later he says: "Whenever I am talking or listening to talk about Philosophy, apart from the improvement I expect, I enjoy myself wonderfully."

It seems to me that therein lies one of the most important statements that we should all make note of. In the reading of a good book, or in talking to an intelligent, and interesting person, "apart from the improvement" we expect, we should enjoy outselves wonderfully!

I like that small word Gaiety. It expresses so much. It almost seems to be garnered with a richness of beauty, flower scented, and surrounded with happy, dancing elves! It is a suggestion of enjoyment of the whole being.

After one of the famous evenings of conversation and discussion, of which Boswell writes, in his famous book about Dr. Johnson, I can imagine the smile that passed over the great Doctor, as he remarked to one of his guests, "Well, Sir, didn't we have good talk!" That surely is fine enjoyment.

The naturalist is never so happy, nor so full of enjoyment, as when he is alone, wandering among the mysteries and revelations of nature, searching for new notes to thrill him, new discoveries to jot down, and new secrets to enliven his interest.

In reading the fine books of W. H. Hudson, the naturalist, you are all the time aware of the man's loneliness and disappointment, yet ever aware of his deep and tremendous interest in all things in nature. An abiding enthusiasm, and joyousness are ever to be noted in all his writings. He and nature were one—and therein hs was happy. In his last book "A Hind in Richmond Park," you scent his enjoyment as he looked upon the Hind, fascinated, and would whistle to note the movements of the Hind's ears.

We gain the most enjoyment from the doing of things that we want most to do.: Thus is personal expdession most sincere and the most thrilling.

Says ROBERT S. ALLEN

ROME, Jan. 2.—(by wireless)—I hear from home that some editors are bored with having me say nice things about people and think it's about time I began punching noses again. Despite that, however, I'm going to start the new year by saying something else nice about a few people.

In fact, I want to rectify a couple of injustices. Shortly before I left home I wrote a volumn referring to Army promotions in which I pointed to the fact that Gen. Manton S. Eddy, though only major general, had been promoted over the heads of several well-known lieutenant generals, the inference being that he was promoted because he was in charge of Army press relations. This inference, I am now convinced, was wrong. While the Army does attach great importance to its press relations, General Eddy also had a great combat record and his promotion was not at all out of line with this fine record.

And while I am getting things off my chest, one diplomat I have criticized a lot in the past is Jimmy Dunn, now U. S. Ambassador to Italy. Regardless of the past, I have watched Jimmy work close up in Rome and there's no question but that he's an A-1 Ambassador. He knows Italian psychology, has been tireless in promoting the right kind of friendship between the United States and Italy, and has proved himself the kind of representative the United States can be proud of. Though Jimmy Dunn comes from the opposite side of the railroad tracks from the present Italian Government, he has worked most sympathetically to straighten out their problems. We could use more like him in other countries.

How To Prevent War

There was something quite touching about the ceremony of unloading the first Italian Friend Ship in the bombed-out city of Naples. There were piles of rubble on one side, gutted buildings on the other and old German bomb shelters in front. And around the dock were Italian school children, crowding, waving flags and shouting "Viva America!"

Up above the harbor, scarcely discernible through the clouds, towered Mount Vesuvius. In the harbor itself a crew of 400 stevedores had worked all day Sunday to unload the ship and stevedores aren't easily persuaded to work on Sundays in this part of the world. The cheering children, the grim, bombed-out buildings all seemed like a new Italy smiling and struggling to lift itself out of the tragic blunders of the past.

I couldn't help but remember as I watched the crowd that it was only two brief years ago that the United States and Italy were at war and that if, despite the bitterness of war, people can get together with people and help each other as Americans are now helping the people of Italy, then maybe that's one very important way to prevent war in the future.

In The Soviet Soup

In Italy, which is almost cheek and jowl with Tito, they make a specialty of sizing up Moscow's next moves. They have to. For if they guess wrong they may be in the Soviet soup.

The Russian Politburo, claim the Moscow specialists, believe in shifting strategy. When it fails with one move, it makes a lightning change to another. Thus, when the Truman Plan was adopted and U. S. advisers and money poured into Greece, Moscow answered by suddenly shifting to Hungary. There it kicked out the anti-Communist, freely elected government and set up a government of its own.

Next, Moscow strategy centered on France and Italy and those countries were given a hot dose of politically inspired strikes. When this strategy failed, Moscow shifted—only last week—back to Greece. Obviously, the new Communist republic of Greece is going to get most of Moscow's attention for a while, and the United States is going to be the recipient of all sorts of resultant headaches. But simultaneously the Soviet experts also predict that shenanigans are brewing in Austria. Just how soon the Russians will move to set up their own puppet government in their part of Austria is only a guess, but it's sure to come fairly soon. The gentlemen in Moscow believe in versatility.

Orlando Toasts U. S.

Sprightly, 87-year-old ex-Premier Vittorio Orlando, Italian delegate to the 1918 peace conference and revered elder statesman of Italy, proposed a toast to the United States and the Friendship Train.

"Friendship," he said at a private dinner, is different from love. Love sometimes goes back on you, is not always reciprocated. But friendship never.

"And the United States," he continued, "never goes back on you. When American troops came to France in 1917, some Allied officers looked at them and remarked that they could not stand up in battle. But they won the war.

"Later," said Orlando, "I was in New York with Colonel House and we passed the George Washington bridge. I was amazed at its length and height.

"'Oh,' replied Colonel House, 'we will build a better one.' And not only have you built bigger and better bridges, but when the American Army came back to Europe in this last war it was far, far better than the Army of 1917-18.

"So," concluded the 87-year-old Italian statesman. "Here's to American friendship—you can always rely on it and it gets better with every year."

Political Leaders Speculate On Wallace Non-Labor Stand

By MARK SULLIVAN

In one of many gestures toward a third party which Mr. Henry A. Wallace made during the past year, he wrote last July 3rd in the New Republic: "A decade hence it is all too possible we shall say, 'The third party was conceived the day the southern Democrats voted to override the Taft-Hartley labor bill veto.'"

Six months after that date of conception, three shorter than normal gestation takes, the third party was delivered December 29, but during the pregnancy an extraordinary change had taken place. Mr. Wallace's delivery of the third party was made in some three thousand words-but not one of the words was "Taft-Hart'ley" or any equivalent.

This absence of mention of the Taft-Hartley law is one of several characteristics that Make Mr. Wallace's launching of his third party strange to the point of being almost inexpliciable, and make the party itself, so far as any person experienced in politics can foresee, likely to stand in the history of third party movements as an exceptionally unpromising adventure. Not merely is it futile as respects any prospect of success in the sense of electing Mr. Wallace, that goes without saying. It takes away from the school of thought Mr. Wallace symbolizes substantially all possibility of practical effectiveness. Regardless of how many votes Mr. Wallace personally may get as candidate for President, it is not likely to be enough, in Congressional districts, to elect any candidate who runs on his ticket and on his position of opposition to the two old parties.

Emphasizes Former Affiliation

Before Mr. Wallace set up his third party, it was possible for followers and lieutenants of him to enter Democratic primaries for nominations to Congress, and some important ones planned to do so. These are now obliged to abandon their plans or disavow the new party. But disavowal has the effect, on Democratic voters, of emphasizing the former affiliation. Former followers or lieutenants of Mr. Wallace who now seek Democratic Party nominations, will receive less credit for apostacy than handicap for the previous association now made conspicuous and emphasized by Mr. Wallace's attack upon the party and his endangering its success nationally.

Mr. Wallace's school of thought had already suffered split, following defeat it received in the Congressional elections of November, 1946. Before the split, now become almost disintergration, Mr. Wallace and his school of thought was strong enough to contemplate taking over the Democratic Party. At the Democratic Jefferson Day Dinner in early 1946, Mr. Wallace, then a member of the cabinet, made the principal address, and in it implied that conservative Democrats should be read out of the party. At that time it was almost a question whether Mr. Wallace or President Truman had the real headship of the Democratic Party. Now, by Mr. Wallace's setting up of a third party, the conservative wing of the Democrats are presented with a dominance which they could not have achieved by head-on attack against Mr. Wallace in an inter-party struggle.

Silence On Labor Bill

Much of the political potency Mr. Wallace once had came from labor, especially CIO. The CIO Political Action Committee was the spear-head of the drive, almost successful, to renominate Mr. Wallace for Vice President in the Democratic National Convention of 1944. During the six months since the Taft-Hartley labor law was enacted, denunciation of it, declaration that members of Congress who voted for it should be defeated, has been practically universal on the part of labor leaders. Why Mr. Wallace by silence on the Taft-Hartley law, should alienate this important group is a mystery upon which political leaders speculate.

In the sequence of events, cleavage between Mr. Wallace and labor leaders began before Mr. Wallace's speech. Events in early December which forecast a Wallace third party were followed by defections of labor leaders from him, some giving as their reason Mr. Wallace's attacks upon the foreign policy shared by the Truman Administration and the Republicans. In effect, the labor leaders took the initiative in cleavage, and this may explain Mr. Wallace's silence in his speech. In any event, the fact, bearing strongly on Mr. Wallace's prospects, is that important leaders of CIO and AFL, and of the American Labor Party, are in opposition to him.

Baering Down On The News

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

This is a land of contrasts and you are either in the Rose Bowl or under the sink.

But it is the only land of opportunity left in the world. And our burlap is velvet in Europe.

As years go it went and there was nothing to stop it. One of the outstanding events of the year was the Freedom Train.

That was fine and dandy. But it seems that the Good Samaritan has had a nice long walk and it's about time he sang, "Back In The Saddle Again."

No Economic Justification For A Recession In Nation

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 — Looking ahead in a presidential campaign year has its handicaps ordinarily but when an attempt is made to appraise a trend in a year of economic crisis as well, the hazards of prophesy are multiplied.

Yet there are certain obvious signs visible on the horizon. Back in the summer of 1929 they were visible, too, but the Pollyanna tendency of people generally is to turn away from facts and engage instead in wishful thinking.

The political situation is intertwined with the economic crisis of our times. The crisis is not just national but world-wide. The whole world is suffering from the effects of the most devastating war in all history.

Can the peoples of the world work together, increase production and defeat inflation? Or will they follow misguided, selfish leaders interested in their own ambitions and selfish purposes and remain unwilling to face facts—the oldest and most obvious facts of all history?

Inflation cannot be solved by legislation or currency devaluations. It can be solved only by a widespread understanding by the people of what their real duty is to each other. It cannot be solved as long as business men impose a price on scarce goods beyond real values and as long as labor leaders insist that workers must be paid more and more wages for less and less work.

Selfishness A Drawback

It cannot be solved by politicians either in government or in labor unions or trade associations who insist on their own particular interests without regard to anybody else's interest.

Increased production and inventive genius can augment materially the amount of goods that are in short supply. Monopolistic power to hold prices at fixed levels by concerted action of producers can stunt production just as monopolistic power by labor unions to reduce work weeks and the amount of work done while demanding higher and higher wages can paralyze the entire economic machine.

Too many demagogues are deliberately misleading the American people and many workers by telling them that profits are high enough to stand another round of wage increases. Other demagogues are arguing for an excess-profits tax with reckless disregard of the fact that this will help the well-heeled companies and plunge into bankrupcy the many smaller businesses of the country whose opportunities to get credit and working capital to compete with the larger units is dependent on a better record of earnings than was possible last year.

Too many demagogues profess to be interested in the public welfare but they really want to demolish the profit-and-loss system and substitute a system of government ownership, government financing, and state socialism.

As long as the rank and file listen to these misguided spokesmen and production is retarded during 1948 by strikes and demands for higher wages, there is a chance of a severe depression breaking early in the summer which will make 1929 look like a mild recession. It would mean the defeat of the Truman administration and more restrictive amendments to the Taft-Hartley Law to curb labor monopolies.

If ever there was a time for labor statesmanship 1848 is the year for it. There are many sensible labor leaders who know economic facts. Can they prevail on their radical brethren to hold the line? On the answer to that question depends the fate of 1948 and that's why prophesying the future this time is trying to predict whether labor leaders are going to commit economic suicide. If one were to guess, it would be that the true facts about business profits in most industries will become known and that fears of a closing down and unemployment will have a salutary effect on labor-management policies.

There is no economic justification for a recession. The elements that need adjustments are well known Inflation can be defeated by co-operation but cooperation is possible only when the facts about what's happening inside business are better known and understood.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Lies! Lies! Lies!

THE following is as much of an article printed in the "Tagliche Rundschau," published in Berlin on October 15, 1947, as I have space for in this column. The article speaks for itself—and it ought to speak out loud to Americans:

"The Youth Of Two Worlds"

"'Young man, 20 healthy and robust, seeking any kind of position. Any offer accepted.'

"'Discharged soldier, 23, completed high school education, ready to accept any kind of work, even that of workshop apprentice.'

"'Girl, 21, single, capable in accomplishing any kind of work, seeks occupation no matter what kind.'

"The American newspapers are jammed with such ads. They can be seen on many gates, exposed on poster-columns and on placards carried through the streets of all towns of the United States by numbers of weary and prostrate young people.

"The doors of the factroies, in front of which crowds of unemployed are gathered continuously, among whom are many juveniles, bear big posters with the concise words: 'No employment.'

"There is no work, no means of existence. How to find only a way to start, how carry on to make a living, how build a future? These are the questions which steadily torment the youth in the countries of capitalism.

"In its very substance, the capitalistic system is exclusively concerned with the interests of a small group of society. A group of people who, holding in their hands all the capital and means of production, live through the exploitation of the great majority of the population. This proviiged class have plenty to eat, dress well, lie in nice, comfortable homes and are dominated by an ever growing greed for profit. They are surrounded by faithful servants sitting in the State Department, always ready to please their masters for a small and modest alm. Faithful and devoted to the bourgeoisie, they keep careful watch on their wealth and welfare. They are their pliant tools and assist them in fattening their purses, in exploiting the working man, getting rich at the hard expense of the misery of an immense stratum of the population.

"The working youth in the capitalistic countries have no present, no future. From the very first day of independent life, the specter of hunger and starvation hangs upon them as a dark menace. . .

"In the hosts of millions of America's unemployed, there are today many of minor age who, forced by misery, wander about the towns all day in vain search for employment. . .

"(Here a few Russian employment advertisements are cited.) These are the ads which fill the newspapers, the shopwindows of Soviet Russia. Everywhere they can be seen, in the streetcars, in the subways, in the railroad stations all over the Union. In all factories, all construction-plants throughout the country, there is need for laborhands, engineers, technicians and employees. Working power is scarce, and therefore there is a widely expanded net of schools and institutes for the education and training of specialists in all branches and grades of activity. . .

"There are, in the Soviet Union, over 800 universities, filled with hundreds of thousands of boy and girl students. In this one year alone, 180,000 students have been admitted to the different colleges and institutions. And how many girls and boys learn in the various schools and training courses! Over half a million people are going to enter this October the agrarian schools, where they will be instructed in all branches of economy and agriculture.

". . .While in some capitalistic countries part of the youth are excluded from political life by age-limits, ownership census, (property census) etc., all citizens in the socialistic state, who have reached the age of 18 have active voting right and at the age of 23 are eligible for election. .

". . .The youth of the Soviet Union feel solid ground under their feet; they are not afraid of the days to come. They are, on the contrary, looking forward to each new day, because every new day brings them closer to the realization of the dream every boy or girl cherishes.

"For youth, the socialistic soviet order has opened wide the gates into the future."

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

From now on, the only way a killer will be able to do any rubbing out on the screen is with an eraser.

Yes, sir, the Johnston office has just announced that no more killers will be glorified in the cinema.

I know it must be true. Yesterday I saw Humphrey Bogardt and Alan Ladd reading the want ads.

From now on the climax of the melodramatic movies will be when the hero tells the heavy to put up his hands, and then tickles him to death. The killer's will all be nice guys from now on. In fact, the first law of the hard-boiled movies will be that before a crook enters the house he will have to take off his halo.

And now you don't have to worry about that bulge in the heavy's pocket. It's no 45.. It's just a small edition of Emily Post.

They even fired one actor last week in the middle of the scene. They caught him making a fist.

Even the movie titles have been censored; no more titles that play up crime. I heard they're changing "Dillinger" to "This Man Played Hookey." And "Brute Force" will be reissued as "Stop, You're Hurting My Arm." Of course, "Murder, My Sweet" has been changed completely. You'll now see it under the title "I Don't Take You Up On the Roof To Show You the View."

But seriously, I think it's a good idea not to let crime be a profitable profession on the screen. On second thought, maybe I'm talking myself out of a job.

Job of Political Sabotage As Practiced By Mr. Truman

In announcing his reluctancy to sign the anti-inflation bill, President Truman said, "The legislative and executive branches of the Government must work together if this grave peril is to be conquered." Does Mr. Truman actually believe that he was co-operating with Congress when he made his sweeping denunciation of the bill he proposed to sign?

Of course there has been little co-operation between the White House and Congress on the inflation issue. The President asked Congress to restore his wartime powers to fix prices and wages and to ration goods. Believing such powers improper, unnecessary and probably doomed to failure in peacetime, the Republican Congress refused. Instead, it extended several current administration powers and voted its own voluntary anti-inflation program. Congress thus was carrying out its legislative duties under the Constitution. Under the same Constitution, the President had a right to veto the bill. But neither the Constitution nor the dictates of sound policy justified any President in making a bill into law and then, by a political attack on it, insuring the failure of that law in practice.

The Truman denunciation of the bill was laced with such phrases as "feeble steps," "pitifully inadequate," "meager authority" and "obvious insufficiency." At one point, he deplored his lack of authority to compel "non-co-operating" members of an industry to enter voluntary agreements with "public-spirited" members in order to share scarce raw materials. Does Mr. Truman think he is encouraging the public-spirited members by stating that "the public must be misled into believing that this bill will do the job?"

The Truman statement was a job of political sabotage. It was also an insult to the public intelligence. Mr. Truman implies that the Republican Congress is entirely to blame for current high prices. He himself was partly responsible for the inflation by his political attempt, after the war, to maintain price ceilings while calling for still higher wages. Perhaps he is getting ready to repeat that strategy. His statement significantly omits any menion of wage controls in its otherwise exact recital of his 10-point program, which include such controls.

Most glaring of all is the President's failure even to mention the Marshall Plan and its influence on prices. To ignore the effect of that plan upon prices, while blaming the Republican Congress for inflation, is a bid for votes in 1948 that smacks of Kansas City machine politics.

A new electrically-operated knife cuts so fine that slices are invisible to the naked eye. The mystery is how ham sandwichmakers were able to obtain this gadget so speedily.

"Fair Trade" Laws Are Sometimes Inflationary

Those who insist that "fair trade" laws do not add to retail costs may be hard put to it to explain a recent ruling in New York state which forbade a chain store to sell a certain kind of perfume at less than $1.60 per ampule.

The store had been selling the ampules at ten cents each.

Under state fair trade laws, which would be in restraint of trade if they were not allowed specific exemption by the federal Miller-Tydings Act, the owner of a trade-mark may set a retail price on his goods below which no retailer may sell.

In the New York case, the owner of the perfume trade-mark had set a minimum price of $1.60 for "one dram or less." A rebottling company bought the perfume in the "open market" and put it into smaller bottles which held only one-seventieth of a dram each, and then sold the smaller bottles to the chain store.

At 10 cents a bottle, or ampule, the chain store was retailing the perfume at $7 a dram, but because it was not charging $1.60 for any amount of less than one dram, the courts said it was acting illegally.

If the store had been charging $1.60 for the 10-cent bottles, the law would not have interferred. Any law which results in such grotesque trade regulations as those resulting from the court rulings in the New York case is not only inflationary but indefensible.

What has become of those German chemists who bragged during the war that they could make beefsteak out of wood?

The Red Army

The "invincibility" of the Red Army is "one of the greatest legends of all time," according to an article in the current issue of The Reserve Officer, a monthly magazine. Furthermore, that army is "poorly armed, poorly equipped, poorly trained and has low morale."

These are the words of one Arnold Purre who, according to the editors of the magazine, is respected in Sweden as a military expert unusually well informed on the Soviet fighting force. He should be, since he was "absorbed" into it when Estonia was occupied in 1940 and he fought against it as a guerilla after he escaped in 1941. He ought to know whereof he speaks.

Still, it is only sensible to be wary of building mistaken conclusions on his testimony and his opinions. It may be that there are "numerous instances" of Estonians fighting and defeating Russians "at a ratio of one Estonian against 10 or more Russias."

It may be that the German army was half-starved, half-frozen and in generally poor shape after 1943, so it took "no great prowess" for the Russians to defeat it. It is true that the Russians were in their own country and had some American food and American weapons.

But it took some "prowess" for the red army to accept defeat after defeat before 1943, retreat and retreat and retreat, suffer tremendous losses, and still fight on to turn the tide in the end.

The Red Army is not "invincible." It is probably no better than Purre says it is from the standpoint of arms, equipment, training and morale. Yet it bore the brunt of the German army, which smashed a dozen others in brief campaigns, for years. It never gave up. It shouldered its share of the final offensive. It marched to Berlin.

Americans should not be stupid enough to underestimate the army that did all this—or the nation that produced it.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Don't Scratch Itching Ears Or More Woe May Develop

HEAT AND MOISTURE are natural allies of ringworm organisms. Wet skin macerates readily becoming more vulnerable to infection. The added warmth provides the fungus with a cozy atmosphere and before long it grows luxuriantly. These can attach themselves to any part of the body but favor the less well aerated regions such as between the toes or wherever the surface is thrown into folds. A fairly popular location is within the outer ear canal which is often left damp from perspiration or after washing or swimming.

When infection occurs in this area the condition is known as "otomycosis" or "mycotic otitis externa." The disease has many nicknames including fungous, mildew, itching, swimming, dhobie, Panama, and Singapore ear, jungle rot, and stink ear.

Itching is the earliest manifestation. As a result, the victim scratches or digs with a finger, toothpick, paper clip, hairpin, or whatever instrument is available. This often leads to further trouble.

The infection exists in all imaginable degrees. There is usually little wax because this material interferes with the growth of molds. As a rule, the membranes lining the canal are wrinkled or scaly. In more advanced cases the wall is coated with a cottonlike substance that looks like wet blotting paper, moist bread, or glazier's putty. Sometimes there is so much debris that the opening is plugged.

Treatment is begun by swabbing the ear with cotton, irrigating with water, and drying thoroughly. This procedure in itself removes millions of fungi. In many instances some of the material taken from the ear is placed under a microscope for further study. There are at least 53 different types of molds capable of producing the malady and the aspergillis group account for the majority.

Among the many antiseptic solutions employed are metacresyl acetate, camphor, phenol mixtures, zinc peroxide, and sulfonamides. X-ray is used occasionally especially if the disorder has been neglected and is severe. Streptomycin ointment has been tried in the Pseudomonas type, with controversial results.

Some individuals have repeated bouts. Many have ringworm infection in another part of the body such as the groin or armpits or between the toes. These must be eradicated. The ears should be kept dry to prevent recurrences. This can be done by applying a solution of one to ten thousand parts bichloride of mercury in 70% alcohol after swimming or bathing.

Many of us notice itching of the ears now and then. If it persists, medical care should be sought early because otomycosis is easier to treat during its inception than after becoming fully established.

VENTILATION

REPLY

A steady supply of fresh air is desirable but drafts must be avoided.

Today's Talk

Enjoyment

In Plato's "The Symposium of Supper," Appolodorus meets a friend, Pharlerian, and hails him. So the friend stopped and said: "Appolodorus, you are the very man I have been questing. I want to ask about that party when Agathon, Socrates, Alcibiades and others were present, and about the erotic speeches they made." And then later he says: "Whenever I am talking or listening to talk about Philosophy, apart from the improvement I expect, I enjoy myself wonderfully."

It seems to me that therein lies one of the most important statements that we should all make note of. In the reading of a good book, or in talking to an intelligent, and interesting person, "apart from the improvement" we expect, we should enjoy outselves wonderfully!

I like that small word Gaiety. It expresses so much. It almost seems to be garnered with a richness of beauty, flower scented, and surrounded with happy, dancing elves! It is a suggestion of enjoyment of the whole being.

After one of the famous evenings of conversation and discussion, of which Boswell writes, in his famous book about Dr. Johnson, I can imagine the smile that passed over the great Doctor, as he remarked to one of his guests, "Well, Sir, didn't we have good talk!" That surely is fine enjoyment.

The naturalist is never so happy, nor so full of enjoyment, as when he is alone, wandering among the mysteries and revelations of nature, searching for new notes to thrill him, new discoveries to jot down, and new secrets to enliven his interest.

In reading the fine books of W. H. Hudson, the naturalist, you are all the time aware of the man's loneliness and disappointment, yet ever aware of his deep and tremendous interest in all things in nature. An abiding enthusiasm, and joyousness are ever to be noted in all his writings. He and nature were one—and therein hs was happy. In his last book "A Hind in Richmond Park," you scent his enjoyment as he looked upon the Hind, fascinated, and would whistle to note the movements of the Hind's ears.

We gain the most enjoyment from the doing of things that we want most to do.: Thus is personal expdession most sincere and the most thrilling.

Gen. Manton S. Eddy's Promotion Not Out Of Line; U. S. Can Be Proud Of Ambassador Dunn As Its Representative Abroad; Moscow Shifts Strategy

Says ROBERT S. ALLEN

ROME, Jan. 2.—(by wireless)—I hear from home that some editors are bored with having me say nice things about people and think it's about time I began punching noses again. Despite that, however, I'm going to start the new year by saying something else nice about a few people.

In fact, I want to rectify a couple of injustices. Shortly before I left home I wrote a volumn referring to Army promotions in which I pointed to the fact that Gen. Manton S. Eddy, though only major general, had been promoted over the heads of several well-known lieutenant generals, the inference being that he was promoted because he was in charge of Army press relations. This inference, I am now convinced, was wrong. While the Army does attach great importance to its press relations, General Eddy also had a great combat record and his promotion was not at all out of line with this fine record.

And while I am getting things off my chest, one diplomat I have criticized a lot in the past is Jimmy Dunn, now U. S. Ambassador to Italy. Regardless of the past, I have watched Jimmy work close up in Rome and there's no question but that he's an A-1 Ambassador. He knows Italian psychology, has been tireless in promoting the right kind of friendship between the United States and Italy, and has proved himself the kind of representative the United States can be proud of. Though Jimmy Dunn comes from the opposite side of the railroad tracks from the present Italian Government, he has worked most sympathetically to straighten out their problems. We could use more like him in other countries.

How To Prevent War

There was something quite touching about the ceremony of unloading the first Italian Friend Ship in the bombed-out city of Naples. There were piles of rubble on one side, gutted buildings on the other and old German bomb shelters in front. And around the dock were Italian school children, crowding, waving flags and shouting "Viva America!"

Up above the harbor, scarcely discernible through the clouds, towered Mount Vesuvius. In the harbor itself a crew of 400 stevedores had worked all day Sunday to unload the ship and stevedores aren't easily persuaded to work on Sundays in this part of the world. The cheering children, the grim, bombed-out buildings all seemed like a new Italy smiling and struggling to lift itself out of the tragic blunders of the past.

I couldn't help but remember as I watched the crowd that it was only two brief years ago that the United States and Italy were at war and that if, despite the bitterness of war, people can get together with people and help each other as Americans are now helping the people of Italy, then maybe that's one very important way to prevent war in the future.

In The Soviet Soup

In Italy, which is almost cheek and jowl with Tito, they make a specialty of sizing up Moscow's next moves. They have to. For if they guess wrong they may be in the Soviet soup.

The Russian Politburo, claim the Moscow specialists, believe in shifting strategy. When it fails with one move, it makes a lightning change to another. Thus, when the Truman Plan was adopted and U. S. advisers and money poured into Greece, Moscow answered by suddenly shifting to Hungary. There it kicked out the anti-Communist, freely elected government and set up a government of its own.

Next, Moscow strategy centered on France and Italy and those countries were given a hot dose of politically inspired strikes. When this strategy failed, Moscow shifted—only last week—back to Greece. Obviously, the new Communist republic of Greece is going to get most of Moscow's attention for a while, and the United States is going to be the recipient of all sorts of resultant headaches. But simultaneously the Soviet experts also predict that shenanigans are brewing in Austria. Just how soon the Russians will move to set up their own puppet government in their part of Austria is only a guess, but it's sure to come fairly soon. The gentlemen in Moscow believe in versatility.

Orlando Toasts U. S.

Sprightly, 87-year-old ex-Premier Vittorio Orlando, Italian delegate to the 1918 peace conference and revered elder statesman of Italy, proposed a toast to the United States and the Friendship Train.

"Friendship," he said at a private dinner, is different from love. Love sometimes goes back on you, is not always reciprocated. But friendship never.

"And the United States," he continued, "never goes back on you. When American troops came to France in 1917, some Allied officers looked at them and remarked that they could not stand up in battle. But they won the war.

"Later," said Orlando, "I was in New York with Colonel House and we passed the George Washington bridge. I was amazed at its length and height.

"'Oh,' replied Colonel House, 'we will build a better one.' And not only have you built bigger and better bridges, but when the American Army came back to Europe in this last war it was far, far better than the Army of 1917-18.

"So," concluded the 87-year-old Italian statesman. "Here's to American friendship—you can always rely on it and it gets better with every year."

Political Leaders Speculate On Wallace Non-Labor Stand

By MARK SULLIVAN

In one of many gestures toward a third party which Mr. Henry A. Wallace made during the past year, he wrote last July 3rd in the New Republic: "A decade hence it is all too possible we shall say, 'The third party was conceived the day the southern Democrats voted to override the Taft-Hartley labor bill veto.'"

Six months after that date of conception, three shorter than normal gestation takes, the third party was delivered December 29, but during the pregnancy an extraordinary change had taken place. Mr. Wallace's delivery of the third party was made in some three thousand words-but not one of the words was "Taft-Hart'ley" or any equivalent.

This absence of mention of the Taft-Hartley law is one of several characteristics that Make Mr. Wallace's launching of his third party strange to the point of being almost inexplicable, and make the party itself, so far as any person experienced in politics can foresee, likely to stand in the history of third party movements as an exceptionally unpromising adventure. Not merely is it futile as respects any prospect of success in the sense of electing Mr. Wallace, that goes without saying. It takes away from the school of thought Mr. Wallace symbolizes substantially all possibility of practical effectiveness. Regardless of how many votes Mr. Wallace personally may get as candidate for President, it is not likely to be enough, in Congressional districts, to elect any candidate who runs on his ticket and on his position of opposition to the two old parties.

Emphasizes Former Affiliation

Before Mr. Wallace set up his third party, it was possible for followers and lieutenants of him to enter Democratic primaries for nominations to Congress, and some important ones planned to do so. These are now obliged to abandon their plans or disavow the new party. But disavowal has the effect, on Democratic voters, of emphasizing the former affiliation. Former followers or lieutenants of Mr. Wallace who now seek Democratic Party nominations, will receive less credit for apostacy than handicap for the previous association now made conspicuous and emphasized by Mr. Wallace's attack upon the party and his endangering its success nationally.

Mr. Wallace's school of thought had already suffered split, following defeat it received in the Congressional elections of November, 1946. Before the split, now become almost disintergration, Mr. Wallace and his school of thought was strong enough to contemplate taking over the Democratic Party. At the Democratic Jefferson Day Dinner in early 1946, Mr. Wallace, then a member of the cabinet, made the principal address, and in it implied that conservative Democrats should be read out of the party. At that time it was almost a question whether Mr. Wallace or President Truman had the real headship of the Democratic Party. Now, by Mr. Wallace's setting up of a third party, the conservative wing of the Democrats are presented with a dominance which they could not have achieved by head-on attack against Mr. Wallace in an inter-party struggle.

Silence On Labor Bill

Much of the political potency Mr. Wallace once had came from labor, especially CIO. The CIO Political Action Committee was the spearhead of the drive, almost successful, to renominate Mr. Wallace for Vice President in the Democratic National Convention of 1944. During the six months since the Taft-Hartley labor law was enacted, denunciation of it, declaration that members of Congress who voted for it should be defeated, has been practically universal on the part of labor leaders. Why Mr. Wallace by silence on the Taft-Hartley law, should alienate this important group is a mystery upon which political leaders speculate.

In the sequence of events, cleavage between Mr. Wallace and labor leaders began before Mr. Wallace's speech. Events in early December which forecast a Wallace third party were followed by defections of labor leaders from him, some giving as their reason Mr. Wallace's attacks upon the foreign policy shared by the Truman Administration and the Republicans. In effect, the labor leaders took the initiative in cleavage, and this may explain Mr. Wallace's silence in his speech. In any event, the fact, bearing strongly on Mr. Wallace's prospects, is that important leaders of CIO and AFL, and of the American Labor Party, are in opposition to him.

Baering Down On The News

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

This is a land of contrasts and you are either in the Rose Bowl or under the sink.

But it is the only land of opportunity left in the world. And our burlap is velvet in Europe.

As years go it went and there was nothing to stop it. One of the outstanding events of the year was the Freedom Train.

That was fine and dandy. But it seems that the Good Samaritan has had a nice long walk and it's about time he sang, "Back In The Saddle Again."

No Economic Justification For A Recession In Nation

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 — Looking ahead in a presidential campaign year has its handicaps ordinarily but when an attempt is made to appraise a trend in a year of economic crisis as well, the hazards of prophesy are multiplied.

Yet there are certain obvious signs visible on the horizon. Back in the summer of 1929 they were visible, too, but the Pollyanna tendency of people generally is to turn away from facts and engage instead in wishful thinking.

The political situation is intertwined with the economic crisis of our times. The crisis is not just national but world-wide. The whole world is suffering from the effects of the most devastating war in all history.

Can the peoples of the world work together, increase production and defeat inflation? Or will they follow misguided, selfish leaders interested in their own ambitions and selfish purposes and remain unwilling to face facts—the oldest and most obvious facts of all history?

Inflation cannot be solved by legislation or currency devaluations. It can be solved only by a widespread understanding by the people of what their real duty is to each other. It cannot be solved as long as business men impose a price on scarce goods beyond real values and as long as labor leaders insist that workers must be paid more and more wages for less and less work.

Selfishness A Drawback

It cannot be solved by politicians either in government or in labor unions or trade associations who insist on their own particular interests without regard to anybody else's interest.

Increased production and inventive genius can augment materially the amount of goods that are in short supply. Monopolistic power to hold prices at fixed levels by concerted action of producers can stunt production just as monopolistic power by labor unions to reduce work weeks and the amount of work done while demanding higher and higher wages can paralyze the entire economic machine.

Too many demagogues are deliberately misleading the American people and many workers by telling them that profits are high enough to stand another round of wage increases. Other demagogues are arguing for an excess-profits tax with reckless disregard of the fact that this will help the well-heeled companies and plunge into bankrupcy the many smaller businesses of the country whose opportunities to get credit and working capital to compete with the larger units is dependent on a better record of earnings than was possible last year.

Too many demagogues profess to be interested in the public welfare but they really want to demolish the profit-and-loss system and substitute a system of government ownership, government financing and state socialism.

As long as the rank and file listen to these misguided spokesmen and production is retarded during 1948 by strikes and demands for higher wages, there is a chance of a severe depression breaking early in the summer which will make 1929 look like a mild recession. It would mean the defeat of the Truman administration and more restrictive amendments to the Taft-Hartley Law to curb labor monopolies.

If ever there was a time for labor statesmanship 1848 is the year for it. There are many sensible labor leaders who know economic facts. Can they prevail on their radical brethren to hold the line? On the answer to that question depends the fate of 1948 and that's why prophesying the future this time is trying to predict whether labor leaders are going to commit economic suicide. If one were to guess, it would be that the true facts about business profits in most industries will become known and that fears of a closing down and unemployment will have a salutary effect on labor-management policies.

There is no economic justification for a recession. The elements that need adjustments are well known Inflation can be defeated by co-operation but cooperation is possible only when the facts about what's happening inside business are better known and understood.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Lies! Lies! Lies!

THE following is as much of an article printed in the "Tagliche Rundschau," published in Berlin on October 15, 1947, as I have space for in this column. The article speaks for itself—and it ought to speak out loud to Americans:

"The Youth Of Two Worlds"

"'Young man, 20 healthy and robust, seeking any kind of position. Any offer accepted.'

"'Discharged soldier, 23, completed high school education, ready to accept any kind of work, even that of workshop apprentice.'

"'Girl, 21, single, capable in accomplishing any kind of work, seeks occupation no matter what kind.'

"'The American newspapers are jammed with such ads. They can be seen on many gates, exposed on poster-columns and on placards carried through the streets of all towns of the United States by numbers of weary and prostrate young people.

"The doors of the factroies, in front of which crowds of unemployed are gathered continuously, among whom are many juveniles, bear big posters with the concise words: 'No employment.'

"There is no work, no means of existence. How to find only a way to start, how carry on to make a living, how build a future? These are the questions which steadily torment the youth in the countries of capitalism.

"In its very substance, the capitalistic system is exclusively concerned with the interests of a small group of society. A group of people who, holding in their hands all the capital and means of production, live through the exploitation of the great majority of the population. This proviliged class have plenty to eat, dress well, lie in nice, comfortable homes and are dominated by an ever growing greed for profit. They are surrounded by faithful servants sitting in the State Department, always ready to please their masters for a small and modest alm. Faithful and devoted to the bourgeoisie, they keep careful watch on their wealth and welfare. They are their pliant tools and assist them in fattening their purses, in exploiting the working man, getting rich at the hard expense of the misery of an immense stratum of the population.

"The working youth in the capitalistic countries have no present, no future. From the very first day of independent life, the specter of hunger and starvation hangs upon them as a dark menace. . .

"In the hosts of millions of America's unemployed, there are today many of minor age who, forced by misery, wander about the towns all day in vain search for employment. . .

"(Here a few Russian employment advertisements are cited.) These are the ads which fill the newspapers, the shopwindows of Soviet Russia. Everywhere they can be seen, in the streetcars, in the subways, in the railroad stations all over the Union. In all factories, all construction-plants throughout the country, there is need for laborhands, engineers, technicians and employees. Working power is scarce, and therefore there is a widely expanded net of schools and institutes for the education and training of specialists in all branches and grades of activity. . .

"There are, in the Soviet Union, over 800 universities, filled with hundreds of thousands of boy and girl students. In this one year alone, 180,000 students have been admitted to the different colleges and institutions. And how many girls and boys learn in the various schools and training courses! Over half a million people are going to enter this October the agrarian schools, where they will be instructed in all branches of economy and agriculture.

". . .While in some capitalistic countries part of the youth are excluded from political life by age-limits, ownership census, (property census) etc., all citizens in the socialistic state, who have reached the age of 18 have active voting right and at the age of 23 are eligible for election. .

". . .The youth of the Soviet Union feel solid ground under their feet; they are not afraid of the days to come. They are, on the contrary, looking forward to each new day, because every new day brings them closer to the realization of the dream every boy or girl cherishes.

"For youth, the socialistic soviet order has opened wide the gates into the future."

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

From now on, the only way a killer will be able to do any rubbing out on the screen is with an eraser.

Yes, sir, the Johnston office has just announced that no more killers will be glorified in the cinema.

I know it must be true. Yesterday I saw Humphrey Bogardt and Alan Ladd reading the want ads.

From now on the climax of the melodramatic movies will be when the hero tells the heavy to put up his hands, and then tickles him to death. The killer's will all be nice guys from now on. In fact, the first law of the hard-boiled movies will be that before a crook enters the house he will have to take off his halo.

And now you don't have to worry about that bulge in the heavy's pocket. It's no 45.. It's just a small edition of Emily Post.

They even fired one actor last week in the middle of the scene. They caught him making a fist.

Even the movie titles have been censored; no more titles that play up crime. I heard they're changing "Dillinger" to "This Man Played Hookey." And "Brute Force" will be reissued as "Stop, You're Hurting My Arm." Of course, "Murder, My Sweet" has been changed completely. You'll now see it under the title "I Don't Take You Up On the Roof To Show You the View."

But seriously, I think it's a good idea not to let crime be a profitable profession on the screen. On second thought, maybe I'm talking myself out of a job.

Greeks Pursuing Guerilla Forces West Of Konitsa

ATHENS, Saturday, Jan. 3 (AP) — Greek troops that relieved the Konitsa garrison New Year's Eve moved westward out of the town yesterday to mop up guerrilla holdouts hampering the entry of further reinforcements, an Athens newspaper reported today.

The correspondent of the conservative, independent Embros said these guerrillas were northeast of the Bourozani bridge, spanning the Aoos River seven miles west of Konitsa, and were hindering engineers trying to restore the bridge, a link with Ioannina to the south.

In addition, the correspondent reported, a new battery of guerrilla artillery began firing yesterday on troop units south and southwest of the bridge. He said Eighth Division headquarters believed this battery was north of Kefalovrison, five miles southwest of the bridge, and very near to or across the Albanian border.

Headquarters feared, the reporter said, that the air force and artillery would have difficulty in destroying the battery because of the danger of violating the Albanian border, about three miles north of Kefalovrison. Abatement of a snowstorm yesterday enabled the air force to participate in the mop-up.

The Greek general staff had reported the siege of Konitsa lifted on New Year's Day, and yesterday authorities said some of the rebels had retreated into Albania or into the Grammos Mountains, 15 to 25 miles to the northeast.

Meanwhile, officials sought to restore normal living conditions in shell-scarred Konitsa where government troops broke a guerrilla siege in seven days of bitter fighting.

Large quantities of supplies were moving into the city where 44,000 refugees were reported to have sought protection from the guerrillas. There were no accounts thus far of the extent of damage to the city or of the number of civilian casualties from the guerrilla bombardment.

France Must Match Funds

He promised that "every Frenchman will know that a part of his daily bread, that a part of the raw materials which run his factories, of the fertilizers that improve his crops, were furnished by the gift, without recompense, of the people of the United States."

The chief condition in the treaty was that France will set aside in a special fund her own currency to the amount of the dollar value of each aid shipment she receives. This fund may be used to defray any expenses in francs of administration of the aid, for retirement of the French national debt or for withdrawal of excess currency from circulation.

Gov. Lane Plans Traffic Safety Drive In Maryland

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 2 (AP)—Gov. Lane said today he plans a traffic safety drive in Maryland this year.

Commenting on the recent statement of W. Lee Elgin, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, that regular automobile inspections should be reinstituted, Lane said:

"While inspection of automobiles might be a help in preventing accidents, I do not think it is the panacea or answer to traffic safety in the state.

"I am having a study made now to integrate all of the various state activities in connection with traffic accidents because I intend in 1948 to put on a drive to reduce the number of fatalities and injuries that have been our sad experience."

Surplus Building At Vets Hospital Will Be Sold

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Jan. 2 (AP)—Bids will be opened January 7 on a 4,216-square foot surplus building at the Newton D. Baker Veterans Hospital, Dr. E. L. Cook, manager, said today.

He reported that six other surplus buildings—all temporary and portable—have been sold to local bidders on a "where-as-is" basis.

Cook explained the buildings were no longer needed because the hospital was changed over a year ago from a 3,000-bed Army hospital to a 1,000-bed Veterans Administration institution.

Last Of Colorado Prison's Escaped Felons Captured

CANON CITY, Colo., Jan. 2 (AP) — A family was terrorized throughout the night by the last of the Colorado prison's escaped convicts before he was captured early today. A few hours after he relaxed his vigil to let the family's sick boy be taken to a doctor.

The surrender without a shot by Murderer James Sherbondy, 28, spun the last threads in the pattern of bitter reprisal for the 12 dangerous criminals who broke out of the cell block called "Little Siberia" Tuesday night.

In Manhattan, thousands were trapped in stalled subway trains when water from a broken main poured into a section of the Broadway-Seventh Avenue I. R. T. system, forcing a power shutdown of four hours and 45 minutes.

The weather hampered firemen in fighting a five-alarm fire which smudged Manhattan's West Side with smoke. Eleven firemen were injured, an 80-year-old woman leaped to safety and many others were led from burning buildings.

France, Austria Sign Aid Pacts

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (AP) — France and Austria signed agreements with the United States today accepting conditions laid down by Congress in granting them a share of a $522,000,000 program of stopgap winter aid.

The State Department announced at the same time an initial $69,300,000 allotment to France of cereals and coal and a $21,294,000 allotment to Austria for a varied list of products.

Italy also will share in the assistance designed to tide over the three countries through March 31 while Congress debates the long range $17,000,000,000 European recovery program submitted by President Truman. Italy's formal signature to a similar agreement is expected tomorrow.

France and Austria agreed to deposit in special funds local currency of the value of the commodities or credits received. These funds will be used for administration expenses, and for such financial and stabilization measures as retirement of national debt or withdrawal of currency from circulation.

Rail Fare Hikes Sought

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (AP) — Eighty-five western railroads today asked authority to increase their basic one way coach fares in the West from 2.2 to 2.5 cents a mile. Similar coach fare increases have been made in the East and on most southern railroads.

Paul Burton Executed At Moundsville, W. Va.

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Jan. 3 (AP)—Paul Burton, saying "I'm going to Heaven," dropped through the gallows at Moundsville Penitentiary at 8:58 p. m. tonight, as the state took his life as the result of a conviction on a first degree murder charge.

He was pronounced dead 11 minutes later, at 9:08, by Dr. R. A. Ashworth, veteran prison official.

Burton was on the gallows when the official witness entered, singing in a loud and steady voice "I'm going to meet my Maker."

Asked by Warden Orel J. Skeen if he had any final statement, Burton replied:

"I want everybody to know that I have been forgiven. God bless everybody in West Virginia. I am ready to go. I am going to heaven. Yes, I know it."

Crashes In Storm

British Women, Children Urged To Leave Palestine

JERUSALEM, Jan. 2 (AP) — High government sources disclosed tonight that wives and children of British officials in strife-torn Palestine "are being urged" to leave the country as soon as possible. They said there were no official plans yet for formal evacuation.

Twelve more persons were killed in the Holy Land. They included four Jews, four Arabs and four Britons. The unofficial count of violent deaths rose to 519 since the United Nations voted for partition November 29.

A government spokesman said British police tomorrow would take over the guarding of essential public service offices where Jews and Arabs had quit work in protest at inadequate protection.

Somerset, Pa., Man Held As Mail Thief

SOMERSET, Pa.—The apprehension Wednesday evening of Ralph Humbertson, 50, Somerset, is expected to clear up the disappearance of Christmas Seal sale funds from a lock box in the post office here, according to postal authorities.

Humbertson was nabbed in the post office lobby by Postmaster Oscar F. Sutliffe who said Humbertson was leaving the building with 16 letters that had been "planted" in the lock box.

The postmaster said Humbertson signed a statement before Postal Inspector J. J. Bryan, Pittsburgh, admitting that he took the fake letters from the box, but denying stealing the seal sale funds.

Disappearance of mail from the lock box of the Somerset County Tuberculosis Society began sometime after December 4 when one of the organization's clerks lost a key, authorities said.

Sutliffe began a watch at the post office and Wednesday noticed someone taking mail from the box rented by the society. Hurrying to the lobby, he saw Humbertson leaving, scuffled with him, retrieved the letters and held the man until Borough Officer David Metzgar arrived to place Humbertson under arrest, authorities reported, adding that the lock box key was found in Humbertson's possession.

The amount of money and checks taken from the lock box has not been determined.

Ohio Woman's Neck Broken; Car Upsets

A 35-year-old Ohio woman was in poor condition in Everett, Pa., Hospital last night after her neck was broken in an automobile accident on the Pennsylvania Turnpike 29 miles east of Bedford at 1:20 p. m. yesterday.

Pennsylvania State Police identified the woman as Mary J. Kurtz but were unable to give her address. Neither was the hospital at Everett.

Police said the injured woman was riding with Ida May Palley, 24, Youngstown, Ohio, when their eastbound coupe upset as they started to pass an automobile and house trailer.

The Palley woman, who was treated at the hospital for scratches, cut too far to the left and hit the soft dirt dividing strip between the traffic lanes and then cut sharply back to the right and lost control, police said.

No charges were filed against the driver.

Greeks Pursuing Guerilla Forces West Of Konitsa

ATHENS, Saturday, Jan. 3 (AP) — Greek troops that relieved the Konitsa garrison New Year's Eve moved westward out of the town yesterday to mop up guerrilla holdouts hampering the entry of further reinforcements, an Athens newspaper reported today.

The correspondent of the conservative, independent Embros said these guerrillas were northeast of the Bourozani bridge, spanning the Aoos River seven miles west of Konitsa, and were hindering engineers trying to restore the bridge, a link with Ioannina to the south.

In addition, the correspondent reported, a new battery of guerrilla artillery began firing yesterday on troop units south and southwest of the bridge. He said Eighth Division headquarters believed this battery was north of Kefalovrison, five miles southwest of the bridge, and very near to or across the Albanian border.

Headquarters feared, the reporter said, that the air force and artillery would have difficulty in destroying the battery because of the danger of violating the Albanian border, about three miles north of Kefalovrison. Abatement of a snowstorm yesterday enabled the air force to participate in the mop-up.

The Greek general staff had reported the siege of Konitsa lifted on New Year's Day, and yesterday authorities said some of the rebels had retreated into Albania or into the Grammos Mountains, 15 to 25 miles to the northeast.

Meanwhile, officials sought to restore normal living conditions in shell-scarred Konitsa where government troops broke a guerrilla siege in seven days of bitter fighting.

Large quantities of supplies were moving into the city where 44,000 refugees were reported to have sought protection from the guerrillas. There were no accounts thus far of the extent of damage to the city or of the number of civilian casualties from the guerrilla bombardment.

France Must Match Funds

He promised that "every Frenchman will know that a part of his daily bread, that a part of the raw materials which run his factories, of the fertilizers that improve his crops, were furnished by the gift, without recompense, of the people of the United States."

The chief condition in the treaty was that France will set aside in a special fund her own currency to the amount of the dollar value of each aid shipment she receives. This fund may be used to defray any expenses in francs of administration of the aid, for retirement of the French national debt or for withdrawal of excess currency from circulation.

He added, however, that no attempt will be made to solidify Republican views on the European recovery proposal until after Chairman Vandenberg (R-Mich) has developed more information about the Marshall plan through Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearings beginning next Thursday.

Gov. Lane Plans Traffic Safety Drive In Maryland

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 2 (AP)—Gov. Lane said today he plans a traffic safety drive in Maryland this year.

Commenting on the recent statement of W. Lee Elgin, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, that regular automobile inspections should be reinstituted, Lane said:

"While inspection of automobiles might be a help in preventing accidents, I do not think it is the panacea or answer to traffic safety in the state.

"I am having a study made now to integrate all of the various state activities in connection with traffic accidents because I intend in 1948 to put on a drive to reduce the number of fatalities and injuries that have been our sad experience."

Surplus Building At Vets Hospital Will Be Sold

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Jan. 2 (AP)—Bids will be opened January 7 on a 4,216-square foot surplus building at the Newton D. Baker Veterans Hospital, Dr. E. L. Cook, manager, said today.

He reported that six other surplus buildings—all temporary and portable—have been sold to local bidders on a "where-as-is" basis.

Cook explained the buildings were no longer needed because the hospital was changed over a year ago from a 3,000-bed Army hospital to a 1,000-bed Veterans Administration institution.

Last Of Colorado Prison's Escaped Felons Captured

CANON CITY, Colo., Jan. 2 (AP) — A family was terrorized throughout the night by the last of the Colorado prison's escaped convicts before he was captured early today. A few hours after he relaxed his vigil to let the family's sick boy be taken to a doctor.

The surrender without a shot by Murderer James Sherbondy, 28, spun the last threads in the pattern of bitter reprisal for the 12 dangerous criminals who broke out of the cell block called "Little Siberia" Tuesday night.

lagging as trucks were unable to deliver fuel through snow-clogged streets.

Many families ate cold breakfasts and dinners by candle light where power lines had not been patched.

In Manhattan, thousands were trapped in stalled subway trains when water from a broken main poured into a section of the Broadway-Seventh Avenue I. R. T. system, forcing a power shutdown of four hours and 45 minutes.

The weather hampered firemen in fighting a five-alarm fire which smudged Manhattan's West Side with smoke. Eleven firemen were injured, an 80-year-old woman leaped to safety and many others were led from burning buildings.

"A light train (four mail cars, three express cars and one coach) with a big engine like we had and headed downhill can gain considerable speed in a short distance," the conductor explained.

France, Austria Sign Aid Pacts

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (AP) — France and Austria signed agreements with the United States today accepting conditions laid down by Congress in granting them a share of a $522,000,000 program of stopgap winter aid.

The State Department announced at the same time an initial $69,300,000 allotment to France of cereals and coal and a $21,294,000 allotment to Austria for a varied list of products.

Italy also will share in the assistance designed to tide over the three countries through March 31 while Congress debates the long range $17,000,000,000 European recovery program submitted by President Truman. Italy's formal signature to a similar agreement is expected tomorrow.

France and Austria agreed to deposit in special funds local currency of the value of the commodities or credits received. These funds will be used for administration expenses, and for such financial and stabilization measures as retirement of national debt or withdrawal of currency from circulation.

Rail Fare Hikes Sought

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (AP) — Eighty-five western railroads today asked authority to increase their basic one way coach fares in the West from 2.2 to 2.5 cents a mile. Similar coach fare increases have been made in the East and on most southern railroads.

Paul Burton Executed At Moundsville, W. Va.

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Jan. 3 (AP)—Paul Burton, saying "I'm going to Heaven," dropped through the gallows at Moundsville Penitentiary at 8:58 p. m. tonight, as the state took his life as the result of a conviction on a first degree murder charge.

He was pronounced dead 11 minutes later, at 9:08, by Dr. R. A. Ashworth, veteran prison official.

Burton was on the gallows when the official witness entered, singing in a loud and steady voice "I'm going to meet my Maker."

Asked by Warden Orel J. Skeen if he had any final statement, Burton replied:

"I want everybody to know that I have been forgiven. God bless everybody in West Virginia. I am ready to go. I am going to heaven. Yes, I know it."

Crashes In Storm

British Women, Children Urged To Leave Palestine

JERUSALEM, Jan. 2 (AP) — High government sources disclosed tonight that wives and children of British officials in strife-torn Palestine "are being urged" to leave the country as soon as possible. They said there were no official plans yet for formal evacuation.

Twelve more persons were killed in the Holy Land. They included four Jews, four Arabs and four Britons. The unofficial count of violent deaths rose to 519 since the United Nations voted for partition November 29.

A government spokesman said British police tomorrow would take over the guarding of essential public service offices where Jews and Arabs had quit work in protest at inadequate protection.

Mrs. Hilda Lashley, has filed an application with the Allegany County Liquor Control Board for a beer license to be used at Homewood Addition, Mt. Savage Road.

Somerset, Pa., Man Held As Mail Thief

SOMERSET, Pa.—The apprehension Wednesday evening of Ralph Humbertson, 50, Somerset, is expected to clear up the disappearance of Christmas Seal sale funds from a lock box in the post office here, according to postal authorities.

Humbertson was nabbed in the post office lobby by Postmaster Oscar F. Sutliffe who said Humbertson was leaving the building with 16 letters that had been "planted" in the lock box.

The postmaster said Humbertson signed a statement before Postal Inspector J. J. Bryan, Pittsburgh, admitting that he took the fake letters from the box, but denying stealing the seal sale funds.

Disappearance of mail from the lock box of the Somerset County Tuberculosis Society began sometime after December 4 when one of the organization's clerks lost a key, authorities said.

Sutliffe began a watch at the post office and Wednesday noticed someone taking mail from the box rented by the society. Hurrying to the lobby, he saw Humbertson leaving, scuffled with him, retrieved the letters and held the man until Borough Officer David Metzgar arrived to place Humbertson under arrest, authorities reported, adding that the lock box key was found in Humbertson's possession.

The amount of money and checks taken from the lock box has not been determined.

A decree was signed in Circuit Court yesterday by Chief Judge William A. Huster, granting a divorce in the case of Ella E. Twigg, vs Thornton R. Twigg.

Ohio Woman's Neck Broken; Car Upsets

A 35-year-old Ohio woman was in poor condition in Everett, Pa., Hospital last night after her neck was broken in an automobile accident on the Pennsylvania Turnpike 29 miles east of Bedford at 1:20 p. m. yesterday.

Pennsylvania State Police identified the woman as Mary J. Kurtz but were unable to give her address. Neither was the hospital at Everett.

Police said the injured woman was riding with Ida May Palley, 24, Youngstown, Ohio, when their eastbound coupe upset as they started to pass an automobile and house trailer.

The Palley woman, who was treated at the hospital for scratches, cut too far to the left and hit the soft dirt dividing strip between the traffic lanes and then cut sharply back to the right and lost control, police said.

No charges were filed against the driver.

Go to Church this Sunday, your Church, any Church, but go!

Does it really matter what one believes, if he lives within the moral law?

The trouble with the inquiry is that it involves a contradiction. One cannot long live in a socially approved manner unless he thinks straight! What a man thinks or believes eventually determines his course of action. Every action was first a thought! An architect must design the house before he can build it.

No man can continually think wrong and live right. He cannot scheme selfishly and expect to live unselfishly. Conversely, one does not dream and plan and meditate on thoughts that ennoble without sooner or later finding that these thoughts literally chisel themselves into the features of his face. Unselfish thinking soon finds expression in unselfish living.

Jesus preached the memorable Sermon on the Mount in order to clarify man's thinking. When we think His thoughts after Him, we fortify ourselves in the best way possible for courageous, useful and happy living!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend and support the church of his choice. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to Church on Sunday and read your Bible daily

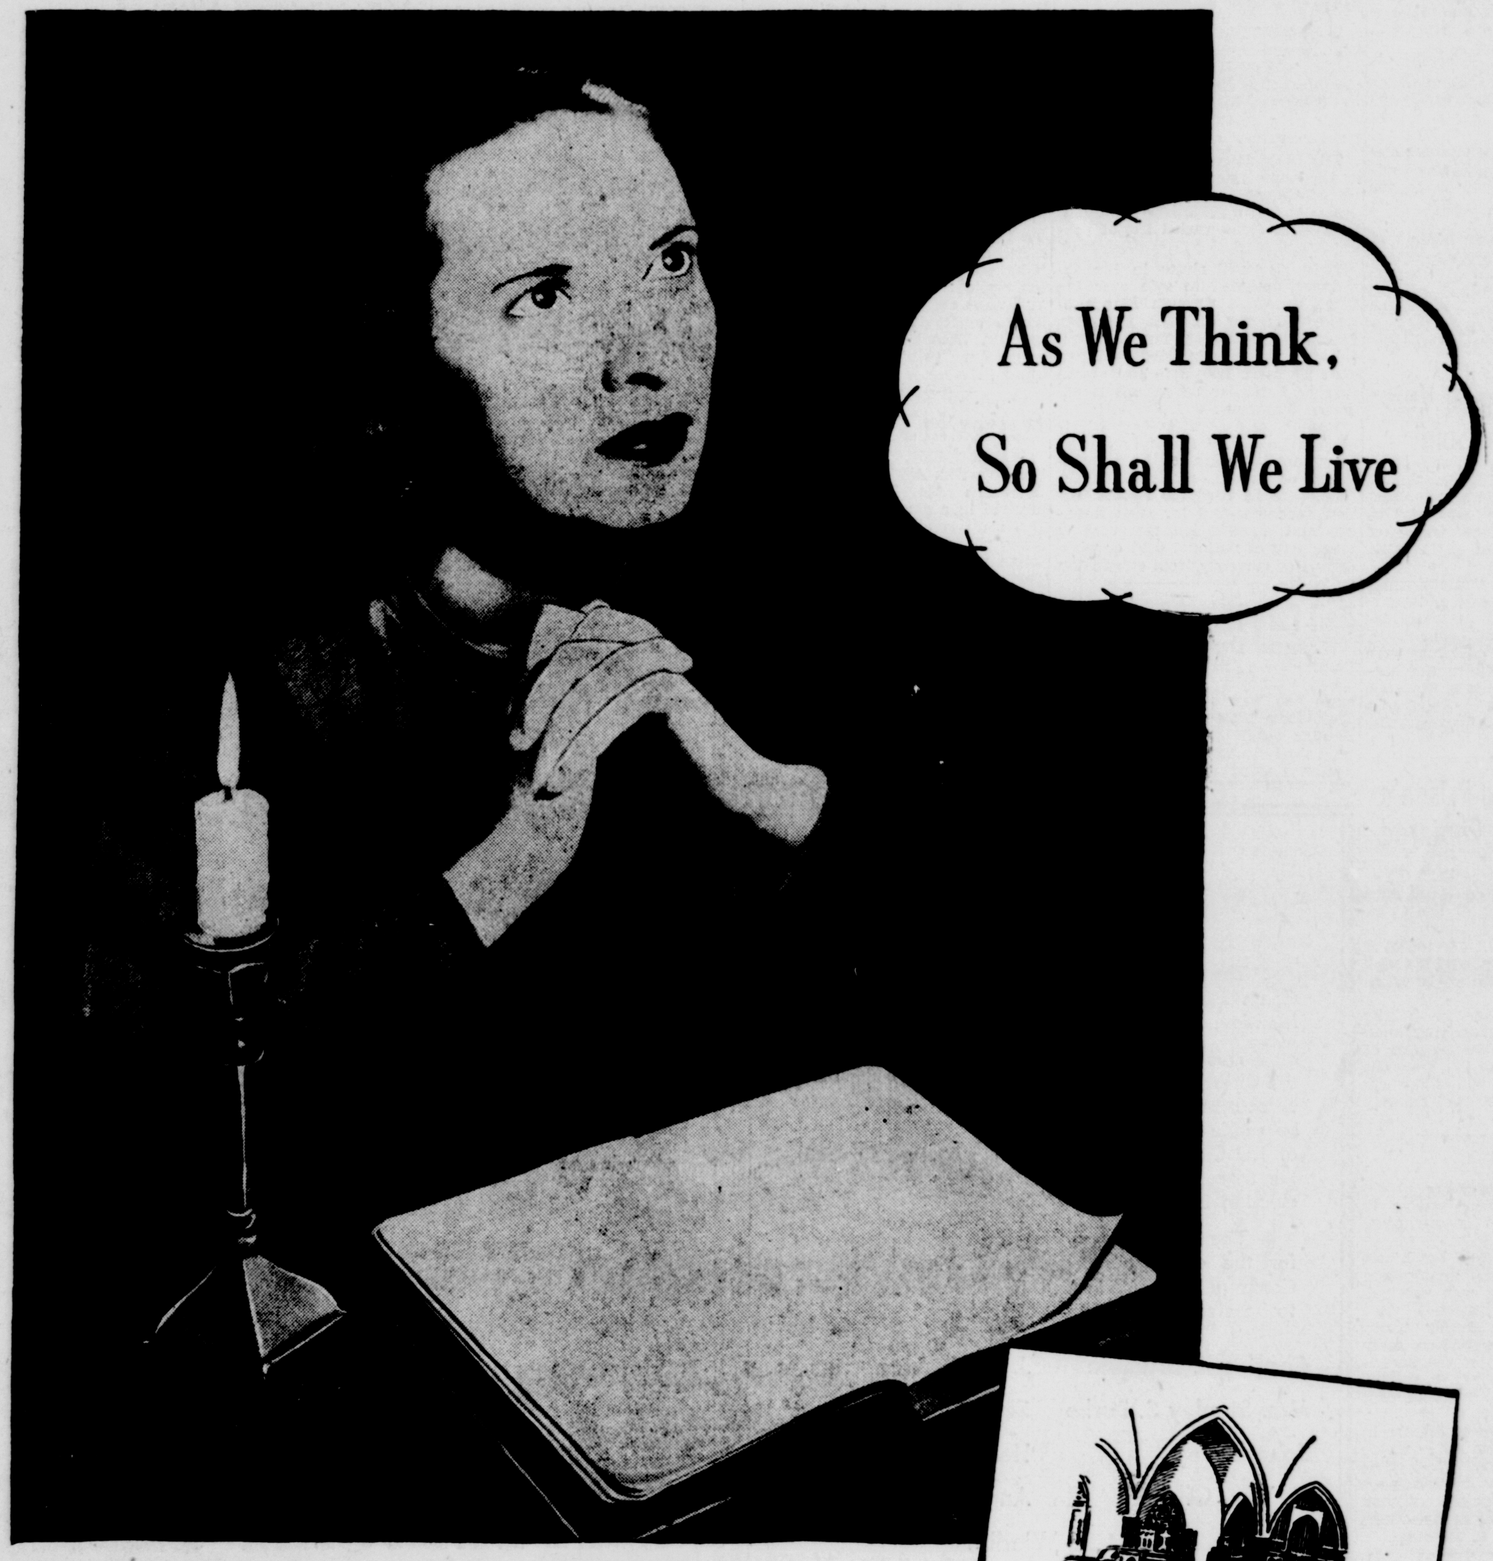
Official Church Board meeting following.

Go to Church this Sunday, your Church, any Church, but go!



Does it really matter what one believes, if he lives within the moral law?

The trouble with the inquiry is that it involves a contradiction. One cannot long live in a socially approved manner unless he thinks straight! What a man thinks or believes eventually determines his course of action. Every action was first a thought! An architect must design the house before he can build it.

No man can continually think wrong and live right. He cannot scheme selfishly and expect to live unselfishly. Conversely, one does not dream and plan and meditate on thoughts that ennoble without sooner or later finding that these thoughts literally chisel themselves into the features of his face. Unselfish thinking soon finds expression in unselfish living.

Jesus preached the memorable Sermon on the Mount in order to clarify man's thinking. When we think His thoughts after Him, we fortify ourselves in the best way possible for courageous, useful and happy living!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend and support the church of his choice. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to Church on Sunday and read your Bible daily

Allegany, LaSalle And Fort Hill Basketeers Score Wins

Campers Take 43-41 Battle From Keyser

Lee's Goal Tossing Highlights Contest

Keyser High School put on a sensational rally in the last half last night, outscoring the opposition 26 to 16 points, but the spurt failed to catch Allegany High School and Walter L. Bowers' Campers walked off with a 43-41 decision before 500 persons at the Campobello gymnasium.

AHS held a 16-6 advantage when the first period ended and held a 12-pjoint lead at intermission, 27-15. In fact, the Blue and White was leading by 14 points at one stage of the third period and when the quarter ended Keyser was trailing 37-29. Coach John Shelton's outfit outscored the home team 12-6 in the last period but fell two points short of tying the score at the final whistle.

Marvin Lee's brilliant shooting was instrumental in making it a close finish. The Keyser forward sank five fielders and three fouls in the last half and accounted for a total of 19 points in the game to capture individual high scoring honors.

The game became rough in the second half but no individual committed enough fouls to be ejected.

Allegany held an 18-16 edge in field goals but was outscored at the charity line, 8 to 7.

Don Lilya tossed six field goals and one foul goal to head the Allegany offensive with 13 points while Ronnie Sterne sank six out of nine shots at the charity line and flipped in three double-deckers for 12 markers.

Allegany's Reserves topped Keyser's Reserves in the preliminary game by the score of 44 to 26. Bob Johnson and Ed Landefeld with 18 and 13 tallies paced the scorers of the winning quint while Emery was high man for Keyser with 11 points. Lineups:

KITTY LEAGUE TEAM VIOLATES BONUS RULE AND IS FINED $1,000

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 2 (AP)—The Fulton Club of the Class D Kitty League was fined $1,000 and its president, K. P. Dalton, was fined $500 for violation of the minor league bonus rule, President George M. Trautman of the American Association of professional baseball leagues disclosed today.

Trautman also said William J. Propst, who played with Fulton last season and was sold to the Greenville, Miss., club in September was a free agent.

Trautman said there had been an oral agreement that Propst would be "treated right" by the Fulton club if his contract was sold, and explained that is was a violation of two rules, one requiring disclosure of all contract agreements and another which requires designation of any player receiving a bonus.

OAKLAND HIGH WINS BY SCORE OF 36-35

OAKLAND, Jan. 2.—Oakland High School shook a five-game losing streak by defeating Fellowsville High School tonight by the score of 36-35. It was Oakland's initial victory of the season.

Pauver's long shot tied the score at 34-34 with a minute to play and after the Preston countians went ahead on a foul goal, Bill Lambert connected with a long shot for the winning basket.

Oakland led at the quarter, 13-9, but the score was 20-20 at the half and 26-26 when the third period ended. Arnold of Oakland and Walls of Fellowsville were high scorers with 15 and 12 points. Lineups:

Injuries Prove Fatal To Fort Ord Gridder

PALO ALTO, Calif., Jan. 2 (AP)—A broken neck received in a New Year's Day football game resulted today in the death of 1st Lt. Thomas Lynch, 30, of Fort Ord, at Palo Alto Hospital.

Lynch was playing with the Fort Ord army team against a Mountain View semi-pro team at Mountain View, in which the Army eleven was overwhelmed 31 to 7.

Lynch was carried from the field in the second quarter after making a tackle.

INDIANA SPEEDWAY CHANGES RULES FOR MEMORIAL DAY RACE

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 2 (AP)—The Indianapolis Motor Speedway announced today a change in a long-established rule which will permit assistance for cars stalled in next May's Memorial Day 500-mile race because of motor trouble.

Under the new rule, a car with the engine dead can be pushed or towed to its pit provided its mechanics believe the trouble can be corrected in time for the car to be kept in the running for prizes.

In past years, any car unable to move under its own power was ruled out of the race.

Mounties Battle Washington-Lee Cagers Tonight

West Virginia Seeks 5th Straight Victory

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Jan. 2—The undefeated West Virginia University Mountaineers resume action on their home court tomorrow night after a holiday vacation that started December 20 in their first basketball meeting with the Generals of Washington and Lee University since 1934.

Game time is 8:30 p. m. and a banner crowd is expected, although tickets still are available and will go on sale at the Field House at 7 p. m. No preliminary is scheduled.

The Generals, who appeared against Quantico Marines at Quantico yesterday, played .500 ball in their first six games of the season. They defeated Danville, Va., Clemson and Maryland while losing to Tennessee, Davidson and Duke.

West Virginia won its first four outings before Christmas. Single victories were scored over Brigham Young and North Carolina State and a double success over Fairmont.

On the basis of records only, the Mountaineers are favored to make W. & L. their fifth victim of the campaign and their 35th in succession at home. West Virginia has not been topped here since February 26, 1944.

The Generals, coached by Carl Wise, will present a roster studded with West Virginia boys, including Bob Goldsmith and Steve Ulaki of Beckley, George Pierson of Charleston and Jim Stark of Mt. Hope. Also in the W. & L. lineup is Joe Auer, now listed as residing at Rich Creek, Va., who was a member of Johnny Brickels' 1945 Mountaineer quint.

Goldsmith led the Generals in their 70-64 triumph over Maryland with 17 points, while Auer bagged 13 and Ulaki 12.

The Mountaineers, at practice since last Monday, do not appear at home again until January 24 against Bethany. Next week they make their annual invasion of New York state to play Manhattan in Madison Square Garden Thursday and Niagara at Buffalo Saturday. The following week they go to Penn State, after which they take 10 days off for semester exams.

Armed Is Winner In Florida Race

Earnings Of Calumet Ace Soar To $763,700

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 2 (AP)—Calumet Farm sent its 1947 champion, Armed, out for his 1948 debut in a six furlong event at Gulfstream Park today and was rewarded with victory and a $2,200 check which pushed the thoroughbred's all-time winnings to $763,700, leaving him $52,360 behind first place Stymie on the world money winning list.

The Warren Wright gelding, destined to be the prima donna of the Florida campaign for the second straight season, made his first start since running third in the Pimlico Special Oct. 31.

The seven year old brown son of Bull Lea picked up some 10 lengths in the last quarter mile and was timed in a fast 1.11 1-5. Carrying 124 pounds and spotting lots of weight to his four rivals, Armed was a 9 to 20 choice. He paid $2.90 and $2.40.

A crowd of 11,136 saw Stageboy, owned by I. Solomon, finish second by three lengths over C. T. Chenery's Mangohick.

Wheeling May Land Catholic Cage Meet

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Jan. 2 (AP)—The state Catholic athletic association will meet at Newman Hall on the West Virginia University campus Sunday, with consideration of a possible change in the site of the annual scholastic basketball tournament the principal item on the agenda.

Father Wanstreet, head of the association explained that the state tournament has been held in Carmichael auditorium in Clarksburg for the last five years, but that there has been a feeling that facilities there are not adequate.

Wheeling has been prominently mentioned in recent months as the city most interested in obtaining the tournament, provided it is moved from Clarksburg.

Wheeling Central Catholic has won the last seven tournaments, and has built up a record of nine titles in the 12 years the cage play has been held.

DAVIS, W. Va., Jan 2—Davis High School's Wildcats defeated Circleville High School on the latter's court tonight by the score of 48-37 in a Potomac Valley Conference game.

Moore was high scorer for Davis with 14 points on six field goals and two foul goals while Zordani was runner-up with 11 points, including five field goals. D. Ruddle, Circleville center, racked up 19 points on six fielders and seven free throws in 13 attempts.

The Sportlight by GRANTLAND RICE

Golf's Hottest Chase

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Jan. 2 — The $10,000 Los Angeles Open, followed by Bing Crosby's $10,000 pro-Amateur Tournament at Pebble Beach, has started golf's hottest pursuit in many years.

The Los Angeles Open is now underway at Riviera, where the U. S. Open will be played next June. The pursuit race consist largely of Ben Hogan and Jimmy Demaret chasing Bobby Locke, with Locke and Hogan after Demaret, the big money winner of 1947.

Back of this trio you will find such stout challengers as Jim Ferrier, P. G. A. champion, Lew Worsham, U. S. Open Champion, Sam Snead, Lloyd Mangrum, and a flock of others who have been crowding in closer and closer as the months slip by.

The appearance of Bobby Locke at Riviera has added a new glow to the Los Angeles show. The South African arrived in this country last April for the Master's at Augusta. When he left for home he was leading money winner and was rated by many as the top golfer of the year.

This ranking was a trifle upsetting to such U. S. golfers as Demaret and Hogan who had been dominating the landscape since Byron Nelson slipped into semi-retiremet. Jimmy and Ben were rated the two headliners left until Locke began lifting patches of hide from Sammy Snead in South Africa, and then traveled some 10,000 miles to prove how good he was.

Locke was no false alarm, no over-ballyhooed swinger. He was the best foreign golfer to land on our shores since Harry Vardon was in his prime. Locke is a steadier golfer than George Duncan was, and a sounder, more consistent player than Ted Ray or Abe Mitchell. Locke happens to be one of the finest putters in golf, a complete essential for anyone hoping to finish in front of today's low-scoring fields.

"They drive for pleasure," as Johnny Farrell says,, "but they putt for money." Bobby Locke knows the road to the cup.

The Test Ahead

Golf excitement around this neighborhood is at steam heat with two $10,000 tournaments to be finished in the next eight days over two such famous courses as Riviera and Pebble Beach. Here one must drive and play his irons and one must putt. Penalties at both courses can run high on a single missed shot.

You don't "scramble" into any 68's or 70's at either place. Power and control are needed where, in both cases, only one of the best golfers should win.

The gaily bedecked Jimmy Demaret hopes to have another big year. "I have never hit the ball better," he says, "and I have never before had as many different colored caps and shirts."

Ben Hogan had a fine year through 1947, but he hopes to make the new year an even better one. "I have had some rest and I am ready to go. You get no rest in one of these shows, however, when a missed shot may cost you first money."

Ellsworth Vines is now hitting the ball better than ever before, and so is Johnny Palmer, a Tarheel war veteran who may move into the first three or four this season.

Tony Penna is playing well again. A year ago he had Ben Hogan close to the ropes on the final ground, when a ghastly six on a short drive-and-pitch hole ditched him down the stretch.

Lloyd Mangrum, Open champion in 1946, recently won his last tournament start at 11 under par and must be considered another threat.

But the three that will carry the galleries the remainder of the next thre days at Riviera will be Locke, Demaret and Hogan. They are the men the rest of the field will have to beat.

In addition to being fine swingers, this trio understands the art of concentration, of finishing out the hole and the round. They have all been under pressure too long to bother about the strain that only affects those with a chance to win.

With this trio it is largely a matter of how the putts will act. They won't miss many drives or many long or short irons. All three can use the wedge with deadly effect.

But no one can tell what will happen to any putt from six to fifteen feet in length. Last summer in St. Louis, Snead holed a 20 footer to reach the National Open play-off. Then he blew a less than a two-and a-half foot putt to lose the play-off.

The L. A. Open and the Bing Crosby Open, played over such championship courses, will be followed by millions of golfers from all the famous cliche surroundings — ocean to ocean — lakes to gulf — Maine to Texas and ten on to helengone.

For 1948 gets away with two of the best shows golf has ever known.

Jackie Cranford Scores Knockout

Capital City Fighter Stops Reynolds In 5th

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 (AP)—Jackie Cranford, a blond stylist from Washington, D. C., flattened Bernie Reynolds, 21-year-old Fair Field, Conn., scrapper at 2:08 of the second round of their scheduled 10-rounder tonight at Madison Square Garden, climaxing an all-heavyweight card. Cranford weighed 181, Reynolds 178.

After taking the slow first round by a scant margin, Cranford stepped into the class of important heavyweight contenders by driving Reynolds to the floor with a left hook followed by a right to the jaw.

If the all-heavy card, that was intended to uncover a possible future heavyweight champion after Joe Louis has retired, produced anything of note it was Cranford. The young Coast Guard vet with the crew haircut sent Reynolds down on his back for the full count by Referee Ruby Goldstein.

Cranford showed clear superiority over the New England prospect in winning the rubber match of their series. Each had won by a decision in two earlier scraps.

Gino Buonovino, an unbeaten invader from Bari, Italy, won a split 10-round decision over Gene Gosney of Seminole, Oklahoma in an earlier scrap, and Tommy Gomez, Tampa, Fla., slugger, knocked out Fidel Arciniega, Bilbao, Spain ,in 47 seconds of the second round of their scheduled 10-rounder.

Matty Begovich Blames Coaches For Too Much Whistle Blowing

Mentors Make Rules, Gotham Arbiter Says

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK, Jan 2 (AP)—There may be too much whistle blowing at college basketball games but the fault lies not with the officials as has been charged by court mentors, but with the coaches themselves, Matty Begovich, leading eastern referee, declared today.

"If you want to eliminate some of the whistle tooting," Begovich suggested, "don't hint to the officials to overlook fouls as some coaches have been quoted recently as asking, but do something about the rules. That is where the fault lies—in the rule book. And who makes the rules? The coaches' rules committee."

Begovich's heated reply was directed mainly at coaches Wilbur Johns of UCLA and Jack Gray of Texas. Johns, who also happens to be chairman of the rules committee, stated at a luncheon here last week that in his opinion "the officials were ruining the game for the fans with too much whistle blowing." Gray, in viewing a game between Pennsylvania and Illinois two weeks ago, remarked "I thought one of the officials would swallow his whistle. It hardly ever left his mouth."

"It is unfair to criticize the officials as spoiling the game for the fans," Begovich protested. "It's those new rules that cause all that whistle blowing. What people don't consider is that basketball as played today is far different from what it used to be years ago. It has been speeded up tremendously. x x x.

"Consequently many more violations are being committed than previously," he added.

"Johns' statement that officials often anticipate fouls and blow their whistles as a matter of course is ridiculous. Officials don't cause fouls and no competent official blows the whistle except when necessary. In fact, top-notch referees try to avoid namby-pamby fouls in order not to spoil the game for the fans."

"Let all those who are sniping at the officials consider this point," Begovich warned. "If we overlooked some infractions, it would only cause some players to commit more fouls and before you know it the game would be out of control and a player might become injured. Remember there is nothing a referee would like more than to officiate a game in which no whistle need be blown."

Explorers Win Over Tunnelton In 26-25 Game

Murray's Foul Goal Is Deciding Point

Bob Murray's foul goal in the closing minute of play broke a tie score and gave LaSalle High School's Explorers a 26 to 25 victory over Tunnelton High School of Preston County, W. Va., last night on SS. Peter and Paul court before 250 persons.

The underrated West Virginia team made a battle of it all the way, trailing at the quarter, 7-6, and leading at the half, 13-11 and also at the end of the third stanza, 23-19, only to have Coach John J. Long's passers knot things up in the final period and register their fifth straight triumph of the season on Murray's one-point basket. It marked the second time within a week that LaSalle emerged victorious by a one-point margin, the locals having defeated Altoona Catholic High School here Sunday to the tune of 35-34.

Jack Stotler, Explorer center, grabbed high scoring honors with seven field goals and 14 points while Williams and Plum were the chief scoring threats for Coach Feather's quint with ten and eight points.

Bob McGreevy showed the way with ten points as LaSalle's Jayvees defeated St. Luke's Lutheran of the Central YMCA Sunday School League by the score of 36 to 23 in the preliminary contest. Lineups:

Paw Paw Passers Win Over Romney

Score First Victory Of Season, 39 To 33

PAW PAW, W. Va., Jan. 2 — Coach Plummer Pride's Paw Paw High School cagers made their home debut tonight with a 39-33 victory over Romney High School after having dropped their first three games of the season away from home.

The Mountaineers led throughout, the quarter scores being 10-7, 24-20 and 32-26.

Neil Taylor was the "big gun" for the home team with 18 points on nine field goals while Baird collected an even dozen markers to head the Pioneers' attack.

Paw Paw will play its next game at Capon Bridge next Friday night. Lineups:

KELLER TO UNDERGO PHYSICAL CHECKUP

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 (AP)—Charlie Keller, New York Yankee outfielder who was benched last season by a back ailment, arrived from his Frederick, Md., home today to undergo a physical checkup by Dr. Sidney S. Gaynor at Lenox Hill Hospital.

Looking fit, Keller said he weighed 185 pounds and felt fine, although he had not done any running since he was operated on for the removal of a broken disc from his spine in midseason.

Keller will leave Monday for Bartow, Fla., where he will serve as an instructor in a baseball school conducted by George Stirnweiss, Yankee outfielder.

ROBY WILL OFFICIATE IN MORGANTOWN GAME

Clifton Van Roby, physical director of the Central YMCA and well known basketball official, will act as umpire in the West Virginia-Washington and Lee game tonight in Morgantown, W. Va.

Roby worked several Mountaineer home games last season.

Tonight's game will be refereed by A. L. Walsh of Pittsburgh.

On January 31, Roby will officiate in the West Virginia-Virginia Military Institute game at Morgantown.

Harden Posts 67 In First Round At Los Angeles

Bill Spiller, Negro, Ties Hogan With 68

By BOB MYERS

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 2. — (AP) — Leading the field with the tournament favorites in close pursuit, Jack Harden, 33-year-old ex-GI from El Paso, Tex., fired a subpar 67 today in the first round of the annual $10,000 Los Angeles Open.

One stroke back of the Texas professional were defending champion Ben Hogan and a Bill Spiller, 34-year-old former Los Angeles red cap, who carded identical nine hole scores of 36-32—68 for the par 35-36—71 layout of the Riviera Country Club.

South Africa's Bobby Locke and former U. S. National Open Champion Lloyd Mangrum of Los Angeles, finishing the round as fog and darkness closed in, matched scores with 70s, three strokes back of the darkhorse setter Harden.

Sam Snead, a former Los Angeles open winner, and Bob Hamilton of Evansville, Ind., one-time PGA titleholder, quit the course at the 12th hole, both even with par, and will finish the round tomorrow.

8,500 See Tourney

A gallery of 8,500, largest opening day throng in the 22-year-old history of the mid-winter fixture, was on hand as the weather turned cloudy and late afternoon fog blanketed the course, hard by the Pacific Ocean.

Several former winners were left in the also-ran class when play for the day ended. Included was the only four-time winner of the open, veteran MacDonald Smith of suburban Glendale, with 78, Craig Wood, 77; Jimmy Hines, 73, and Jimmy Thompson, 76.

Two of the nation's leading amateurs, Marvin (Bud) Ward of Spokane and Frank Stranahan of Toledo, O., had 74's.

Stranahan started out with a birdie four and an eagle two, the latter scored on a screaming iron from around 200 yards. He was even par on the next hole and then went one over on the next five holes. His nine hole scores were 36-38.

Ward, low amateur last year, was putting badly and otherwise would have been even with par.

Locke, who picked up $24,327 in tournament play in this country last year, shot a 34-36 and Mangrum 35-35 — both good scores in view of the hurrying darkness.

Vic Ghezzi, Kansas City, Kans., had a 69. He won the event in 69.

Demaret Equals Par

Even with par 71 were Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., Ellsworth Vines of Pasadena and Ed Furgol of Pontiac, Mich.

Bracketed in the 72s were 10 players, including the low amateur for the day, Bruce McCormick of Los Angeles, who had a 32 going out and blew to a 40 coming back.

Also at 72 were PGA champion Jim Ferrier of San Francisco, Argentina's Roberto De Vincenzo, National Open Champion Lew Worsham and Johnny Palmer of Baden, N. C.

The two surprises, of course, were Harden and Spiller. Harden won the Southwestern Open last year and also placed first in a GI tournament in the Philippines in 1945. He was stationed there as an anti-aircraft sergeant. This is his third appearance in the Los Angeles fixture.

Spiller, a negro, entered for the first time. He turned pro last June and has been playing golf — often with boxing champ Joe Louis — for five years in Los Angeles.

1,000 Five-Man Teams On "Waiting List"

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 2 (AP) — The American Bowling Congress reported today it had a "waiting list" of more than 1,000 five men teams for the 1948 national tournament in Detroit.

Secretary Elmer H. Baumgarten said 6,880 teams can be accommodated during the course of the ten-pin classic which will run from March 11 to May 25, and all dates already have been reserved. In addition, he said, over 1,000 teams still are seeking dates.

Will Meet Tomorrow

A meeting of the Allegany County Tenpin League will be held Sunday at 7:30 p. m. at the Mayfair Tavern on the Winchester Road.

Nelson Rosenmarkle, president, requests all captains and sponsors to attend.

Sentinels Beat Martinsburg Hi Cagers, 48-26

Cavanaugh's Passers Notch 5th Triumph

Fort Hill's Sentinels kept rolling along last night when they took the measure of the Martinsburg (W. Va.) High School Bulldogs on the local court by the score of 48 to 26.

It was the fifth straight triumph for the undefeated warriors of Coach John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh in a game featured by the defensive work of Dean, Cage, Moler and Hardinger.

Martinsburg was limited to seven field goals while the Hilltoppers banged in twenty double-deckers. The winners converted 8 out of 13 shots at the charity line while the West Virginians hooped 12 out of 22 free throws.

Charley Lattimer and Milford Dean led the Sentinels' attack with 11 and 10 points.

In the preliminary game Fort Hill's Reserves downed the Ridgeley Merchants by the score of 29 to 19. Corbin headed the victors with seven tallies while Dicken and Wertz garnered five each. Kesner paced Ridgeley with five markers. Lineups:

Annapolis Movie To Be Shown Here

Ensign Martin Won Six Varsity Letters

A technicolor movie with sound entitled "U. S. Naval Academy" will be shown at the dinner honoring Fort Hill High School's championship football team Thursday, January 8, at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

This information was received yesterday by H. Clifford Spiker, member of the committee on arrangements, from Capt. Thomas J. Hamilton, head coach of the Navy football team.

The film, which depicts life at the Naval Academy, will include highlights of the 1946 Army-Navy game which ended 21-18, and will be brought here by Ensign Ben Martin, freshmen football coach, who will be guest speaker at the dinner.

Ensign Martin was named as an end on the All-East football team of 1944 and received the Thompson Trophy for excellence in athletics.

A native of Prospect Park, Pa., Martin was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1945, standing sixth in his class of 1,045 members. He won six varsity letters, three in football and three in track.

In football he played in every game during the seasons of 1942, 1943 and 1944. Martin was halfback for two years and was shifted to the end position in his final year and was selected on the All-East team. He was high point scorer on the Middies' track team and holds the present Academy high jump record of 6 feet, 3 inches.

Luis Firpo Says Cestac May Fight Joe Louis

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 2 (AP) — Luis Angel Firpo, the old "Wild Bull of the Pampas," told the newspaper Democracia today that efforts were being made to match Argentine heavyweight Abel Cestac with Champion Joe Louis.

Firpo said he and Jack Dempsey held Cestac's contract jointly "despite reports to the contrary."

He added that Dempsey was seeking to match Cestac and Louis this year in the United States, and "there is a very good chance the match will be closed shortly."

Los Angeles Dons Sign Still Of Georgia Tech

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 2 (AP)—Georgia Tech quarterback Jim Still, who tossed three touchdown passes in the Orange Bowl game with Kansas, announced today he had signed a pro contract with the Los Angeles Dons of the All-America Conference.

Still said the contract was one for one year and he would not wait to be graduated from Georgia Tech before reporting to the Dons in July or August. He expects to do academic work for his degree on the west coast after his first season as a professional player.

Allegany, LaSalle And Fort Hill Basketeers Score Wins

Lee's Goal Tossing Highlights Contest

Keyser High School put on a sensational rally in the last half last night, outscoring the opposition 26 to 16 points, but the spurt failed to catch Allegany High School and Walter L. Bowers' Campers walked off with a 43-41 decision before 500 persons at the Campobello gymnasium.

AHS held a 16-6 advantage when the first period ended and held a 12-pjoint lead at intermission, 27-15. In fact, the Blue and White was leading by 14 points at one stage of the third period and when the quarter ended Keyser was trailing 37-29. Coach John Shelton's outfit outscored the home team 12-6 in the last period but fell two points short of tying the score at the final whistle.

Marvin Lee's brilliant shooting was instrumental in making it a close finish. The Keyser forward sank five fielders and three fouls in the last half and accounted for a total of 19 points in the game to capture individual high scoring honors.

The game became rough in the second half but no individual committed enough fouls to be ejected.

Allegany held an 18-16 edge in field goals but was outscored at the charity line, 8 to 7.

Don Lilya tossed six field goals and one foul goal to head the Allegany offensive with 13 points while Ronnie Sterne sank six out of nine shots at the charity line and flipped in three double-deckers for 12 markers.

Allegany's Reserves topped Keyser's Reserves in the preliminary game by the score of 44 to 26. Bob Johnson and Ed Landefeld with 18 and 13 tallies paced the scorers of the winning quint while Emery was high man for Keyser with 11 points. Lineups:

KITTY LEAGUE TEAM VIOLATES BONUS RULE AND IS FINED $1,000

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 2 (AP)—The Fulton Club of the Class D Kitty League was fined $1,000 and its president, K. P. Dalton, was fined $500 for violation of the minor league bonus rule, President George M. Trautman of the American Association of professional baseball leagues disclosed today.

Trautman also said William J. Propst, who played with Fulton last season and was sold to the Greenville, Miss., club in September was a free agent.

Trautman said there had been an oral agreement that Propst would be "treated right" by the Fulton club if his contract was sold, and explained that is was a violation of two rules, one requiring disclosure of all contract agreements and another which requires designation of any player receiving a bonus.

OAKLAND HIGH WINS BY SCORE OF 36-35

OAKLAND, Jan. 2.—Oakland High School shook a five-game losing streak by defeating Fellowsville High School tonight by the score of 36-35. It was Oakland's initial victory of the season.

Fauver's long shot tied the score at 34-34 with a minute to play and after the Preston countians went ahead on a foul goal, Bill Lambert connected with a long shot for the winning basket.

Oakland led at the quarter, 13-9, but the score was 20-20 at the half and 26-26 when the third period ended. Arnold of Oakland and Walls of Fellowsville were high scorers with 15 and 12 points. Lineups:

Injuries Prove Fatal To Fort Ord Gridder

PALO ALTO, Calif., Jan. 2 (AP)—A broken neck received in a New Year's Day football game resulted today in the death of 1st Lt. Thomas Lynch, 30, of Fort Ord, at Palo Alto Hospital.

Lynch was playing with the Fort Ord army team against a Mountain View semi-pro team at Mountain View, in which the Army eleven was overwhelmed 31 to 7.

Lynch was carried from the field in the second quarter after making a tackle.

INDIANA SPEEDWAY CHANGES RULES FOR MEMORIAL DAY RACE

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 2 (AP)—The Indianapolis Motor Speedway announced today a change in a long-established rule which will permit assistance for cars stalled in next May's Memorial Day 500-mile race because of motor trouble.

Under the new rule, a car with the engine dead can be pushed or towed to its pit provided its mechanics believe the trouble can be corrected in time for the car to be kept in the running for prizes.

In past years, any car unable to move under its own power was ruled out of the race.

Mounties Battle Washington-Lee Cagers Tonight

West Virginia Seeks 5th Straight Victory

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Jan. 2—The undefeated West Virginia University Mountaineers resume action on their home court tomorrow night after a holiday vacation that started December 20 in their first basketball meeting with the Generals of Washington and Lee University since 1934.

Game time is 8:30 p. m. and a banner crowd is expected, although tickets still are available and will go on sale at the Field House at 7 p. m. No preliminary is scheduled.

The Generals, who appeared against Quantico Marines at Quantico yesterday, played .500 ball in their first six games of the season. They defeated Danville, Va., Clemson and Maryland while losing to Tennessee, Davidson and Duke.

West Virginia won its first four outings before Christmas. Single victories were scored over Brigham Young and North Carolina State and a double success over Fairmont.

On the basis of records only, the Mountaineers are favored to make W. & L. their fifth victim of the campaign and their 35th in succession at home. West Virginia has not been topped here since February 26, 1944.

The Generals, coached by Carl Wise, will present a roster studded with West Virginia boys, including Bob Goldsmith and Steve Ulaki of Beckley, George Pierson of Charleston and Jim Stark of Mt. Hope. Also in the W. & L. lineup is Joe Auer, now listed as residing at Rich Creek, Va., who was a member of Johnny Brickels' 1945 Mountaineer quint.

Goldsmith led the Generals in their 70-64 triumph over Maryland with 17 points, while Auer bagged 13 and Ulaki 12.

The Mountaineers, at practice since last Monday, do not appear at home again until January 24 against Bethany. Next week they make their annual invasion of New York state to play Manhattan in Madison Square Garden Thursday and Niagara at Buffalo Saturday. The following week they go to Penn State, after which they take 10 days off for semester exams.

Armed Is Winner In Florida Race

Earnings Of Calumet Ace Soar To $763,700

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 2 (AP)—Calumet Farm sent its 1947 champion, Armed, out for his 1948 debut in a six furlong event at Gulfstream Park today and was rewarded with victory and a $2,200 check which pushed the thoroughbred's all-time winnings to $763,700, leaving him $52,360 behind first place Stymie on the world money winning list.

The Warren Wright gelding, destined to be the prima donna of the Florida campaign for the second straight season, made his first start since running third in the Pimlico Special Oct. 31.

The seven year old brown son of Bull Lea picked up some 10 lengths in the last quarter mile and was timed in a fast 1.11 1-5. Carrying 124 pounds and spotting lots of weight to his four rivals, Armed was a 9 to 20 choice. He paid $2.90 and $2.40.

A crowd of 11,136 saw Stageboy, owned by I. Solomon, finish second by three lengths over C. T. Chenery's Mangohick.

Wheeling May Land Catholic Cage Meet

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Jan. 2 (AP)—The state Catholic athletic association will meet at Newman Hall on the West Virginia University campus Sunday, with consideration of a possible change in the site of the annual scholastic basketball tournament the principal item on the agenda.

Father Wanstreet, head of the association explained that the state tournament has been held in Carmichael auditorium in Clarksburg for the last five years, but that there has been a feeling that facilities there are not adequate.

Wheeling has been prominently mentioned in recent months as the city most interested in obtaining the tournament, provided it is moved from Clarksburg.

Wheeling Central Catholic has won the last seven tournaments, and has built up a record of nine titles in the 12 years the cage play has been held.

Golf's Hottest Chase

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Jan. 2 — The $10,000 Los Angeles Open, followed by Bing Crosby's $10,000 pro-Amateur Tournament at Pebble Beach, has started golf's hottest pursuit in many years.

The Los Angeles Open is now underway at Riviera, where the U. S. Open will be played next June. The pursuit race consist largely of Ben Hogan and Jimmy Demaret chasing Bobby Locke, with Locke and Hogan after Demaret, the big money winner of 1947.

Back of this trio you will find such stout challengers as Jim Ferrier, P. G. A. champion, Lew Worsham, U. S. Open Champion, Sam Snead, Lloyd Mangrum, and a flock of others who have been crowding in closer and closer as the months slip by.

The appearance of Bobby Locke at Riviera has added a new glow to the Los Angeles show. The South African arrived in this country last April for the Master's at Augusta. When he left for home he was leading money winner and was rated by many as the top golfer of the year.

This ranking was a trifle upsetting to such U. S. golfers as Demaret and Hogan who had been dominating the landscape since Byron Nelson slipped into semi-retiremet. Jimmy and Ben were rated the two headliners left until Locke began lifting patches of hide from Sammy Snead in South Africa, and then traveled some 10,000 miles to prove how good he was.

Locke was no false alarm, no over-ballyhooed swinger. He was the best foreign golfer to land on our shores since Harry Vardon was in his prime. Locke is a steadier golfer than George Duncan was, and a sounder, more consistent player than Ted Ray or Abe Mitchell. Locke happens to be one of the finest putters in golf, a complete essential for anyone hoping to finish in front of today's low-scoring fields.

"They drive for pleasure," as Johnny Farrell says,, "but they putt for money." Bobby Locke knows the road to the cup.

The Test Ahead

Golf excitement around this neighborhood is at steam heat with two $10,000 tournaments to be finished in the next eight days over two such famous courses as Riviera and Pebble Beach. Here one must drive and play his irons and one must putt. Penalties at both courses can run high on a single missed shot.

You don't "scramble" into any 68's or 70's at either place. Power and control are needed where, in both cases, only one of the best golfers should win.

The gaily bedecked Jimmy Demaret hopes to have another big year. "I have never hit the ball better," he says, "and I have never before had as many different colored caps and shirts."

Ben Hogan had a fine year through 1947, but he hopes to make the new year an even better one. "I have had some rest and I am ready to go. You get no rest in one of these shows, however, when a missed shot may cost you first money."

Ellsworth Vines is now hitting the ball better than ever before, and so is Johnny Palmer, a Tarheel war veteran who may move into the first three or four this season.

Tony Penna is playing well again. A year ago he had Ben Hogan close to the ropes on the final ground, when a ghastly six on a short drive-and-pitch hole ditched him down the stretch.

Lloyd Mangrum, Open champion in 1946, recently won his last tournament start at 11 under par and must be considered another threat.

But the three that will carry the galleries the remainder of the next thre days at Riviera will be Locke, Demaret and Hogan. They are the men the rest of the field will have to beat.

In addition to being fine swingers, this trio understands the art of concentration, of finishing out the hole and the round. They have all been under pressure too long to bother about the strain that only affects those with a chance to win.

With this trio it is largely a matter of how the putts will act. They won't miss many drives or many long or short irons. All three can use the wedge with deadly effect.

But no one can tell what will happen to any putt from six to fifteen feet in length. Last summer in St. Louis, Snead holed a 20 footer to reach the National Open play-off. Then he blew a less than a two-and a-half foot putt to lose the play-off.

The L. A. Open and the Bing Crosby Open, played over such championship courses, will be followed by millions of golfers from all the famous cliche surroundings — ocean to ocean — lakes to gulf — Maine to Texas and ten on to helengone.

For 1948 gets away with two of the best shows golf has ever known.

Jackie Cranford Scores Knockout

Capital City Fighter Stops Reynolds In 5th

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 (AP)—Jackie Cranford, a blond stylist from Washington, D. C., flattened Bernie Reynolds, 21-year-old Fair Field, Conn., scrapper at 2:08 of the second round of their scheduled 10-rounder tonight at Madison Square Garden, climaxing an all-heavyweight card. Cranford weighed 181, Reynolds 178.

After taking the slow first round by a scant margin, Cranford stepped into the class of important heavyweight contenders by driving Reynolds to the floor with a left hook followed by a right to the jaw.

If the all-heavy card, that was intended to uncover a possible future heavyweight champion after Joe Louis has retired, produced anything of note it was Cranford. The young Coast Guard vet with the crew haircut sent Reynolds down on his back for the full count by Referee Ruby Goldstein.

Cranford showed clear superiority over the New England prospect in winning the rubber match of their series. Each had won by a decision in two earlier scraps.

Gino Buonovino, an unbeaten invader from Bari, Italy, won a split 10-round decision over Gene Gosney of Seminole, Oklahoma in an earlier scrap, and Tommy Gomez, Tampa, Fla., slugger, knocked out Fidel Arciniega, Bilbao, Spain ,in 47 seconds of the second round of their scheduled 10-rounder.

Matty Begovich Blames Coaches For Too Much Whistle Blowing

Mentors Make Rules, Gotham Arbiter Says

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK, Jan 2 (AP)—There may be too much whistle blowing at college basketball games but the fault lies not with the officials as has been charged by court mentors, but with the coaches themselves, Matty Begovich, leading eastern referee, declared today.

"If you want to eliminate some of the whistle tooting," Begovich suggested, "don't hint to the officials to overlook fouls as some coaches have been quoted recently as asking, but do something about the rules. That is where the fault lies—in the rule book. And who makes the rules? The coaches' rules committee."

Begovich's heated reply was directed mainly at coaches Wilbur Johns of UCLA and Jack Gray of Texas. Johns, who also happens to be chairman of the rules committee, stated at a luncheon here last week that in his opinion "the officials were ruining the game for the fans with too much whistle blowing." Gray, in viewing a game between Pennsylvania and Illinois two weeks ago, remarked "I thought one of the officials would swallow his whistle. It hardly ever left his mouth."

"It is unfair to criticize the officials as spoiling the game for the fans," Begovich protested. "It's those new rules that cause all that whistle blowing. What people don't consider is that basketball as played today is far different from what it used to be years ago. It has been speeded up tremendously. x x x.

"Consequently many more violations are being committed than previously," he added.

"Johns' statement that officials often anticipate fouls and blow their whistles as a matter of course is ridiculous. Officials don't cause fouls and no competent official blows the whistle except when necessary. In fact, top-notch referees try to avoid namby-pamby fouls in order not to spoil the game for the fans."

"Let all those who are sniping at the officials consider this point," Begovich warned. "If we overlooked some infractions, it would only cause some players to commit more fouls and before you know it the game would be out of control and a player might become injured. Remember there is nothing a referee would like more than to officiate a game in which no whistle need be blown."

Explorers Win Over Tunnelton In 26-25 Game

Murray's Foul Goal Is Deciding Point

Bob Murray's foul goal in the closing minute of play broke a tie score and gave LaSalle High School's Explorers a 26 to 25 victory over Tunnelton High School of Preston County, W. Va., last night on SS. Peter and Paul court before 250 persons.

The underrated West Virginia team made a battle of it all the way, trailing at the quarter, 7-6, and leading at the half, 13-11 and also at the end of the third stanza, 23-19, only to have Coach John J. Long's passers knot things up in the final period and register their fifth straight triumph of the season on Murray's one-point basket. It marked the second time within a week that LaSalle emerged victorious by a one-point margin, the locals having defeated Altoona Catholic High School here Sunday to the tune of 35-34.

Jack Stotler, Explorer center, grabbed high scoring honors with seven field goals and 14 points while Williams and Plum were the chief scoring threats for Coach Feather's quint with ten and eight points.

Bob McGreevy showed the way with ten points as LaSalle's Jayvees defeated St. Luke's Lutheran of the Central YMCA Sunday School League by the score of 36 to 23 in the preliminary contest. Lineups:

Paw Paw Passers Win Over Romney

Score First Victory Of Season, 39 To 33

PAW PAW, W. Va., Jan. 2 — Coach Plummer Pride's Paw Paw High School cagers made their home debut tonight with a 39-33 victory over Romney High School after having dropped their first three games of the season away from home.

The Mountaineers led throughout, the quarter scores being 10-7, 24-20 and 32-26.

Neil Taylor was the "big gun" for the home team with 18 points on nine field goals while Baird collected an even dozen markers to head the Pioneers' attack.

Paw Paw will play its next game at Capon Bridge next Friday night. Lineups:

KELLER TO UNDERGO PHYSICAL CHECKUP

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 (AP)—Charlie Keller, New York Yankee outfielder who was benched last season by a back ailment, arrived from his Frederick, Md., home today to undergo a physical checkup by Dr. Sidney S. Gaynor at Lenox Hill Hospital.

Looking fit, Keller said he weighed 185 pounds and felt fine, although he had not done any running since he was operated on for the removal of a broken disc from his spine in midseason.

Keller will leave Monday for Bartow, Fla., where he will serve as an instructor in a baseball school conducted by George Stirnweiss, Yankee outfielder.

ROBY WILL OFFICIATE IN MORGANTOWN GAME

Clifton Van Roby, physical director of the Central YMCA and well known basketball official, will act as umpire in the West Virginia-Washington and Lee game tonight in Morgantown, W. Va.

Roby worked several Mountaineer home games last season.

Tonight's game will be refereed by A. L. Walsh of Pittsburgh.

On January 31, Roby will officiate in the West Virginia-Virginia Military Institute game at Morgantown.

Harden Posts 67 In First Round At Los Angeles

By BOB MYERS

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 2. — (AP) — Leading the field with the tournament favorites in close pursuit, Jack Harden, 33-year-old ex-GI from El Paso, Tex., fired a subpar 67 today in the first round of the annual $10,000 Los Angeles Open.

One stroke back of the Texas professional were defending champion Ben Hogan and a Bill Spiller, 34-year-old former Los Angeles red cap, who carded identical nine hole scores of 36-32—68 for the par 35-36—71 layout of the Riviera Country Club.

South Africa's Bobby Locke and former U. S. National Open Champion Lloyd Mangrum of Los Angeles, finishing the round as fog and darkness closed in, matched scores with 70s, three strokes back of the darkhorse setter Harden.

Sam Snead, a former Los Angeles open winner, and Bob Hamilton of Evansville, Ind., one-time PGA titleholder, quit the course at the 12th hole, both even with par, and will finish the round tomorrow.

8,500 See Tourney

A gallery of 8,500, largest opening day throng in the 22-year-old history of the mid-winter fixture, was on hand as the weather turned cloudy and late afternoon fog blanketed the course, hard by the Pacific Ocean.

Several former winners were left in the also-ran class when play for the day ended. Included was the only four-time winner of the open, veteran MacDonald Smith of suburban Glendale, with 78, Craig Wood, 77; Jimmy Hines, 73, and Jimmy Thompson, 76.

Two of the nation's leading amateurs, Marvin (Bud) Ward of Spokane and Frank Stranahan of Toledo, O., had 74's.

Stranahan started out with a birdie four and an eagle two, the latter scored on a screaming iron from around 200 yards. He was even par on the next hole and then went one over on the next five holes. His nine hole scores were 36-38.

Ward, low amateur last year, was putting badly and otherwise would have been even with par.

Locke, who picked up $24,327 in tournament play in this country last year, shot a 34-36 and Mangrum 35-35 — both good scores in view of the hurrying darkness.

Vic Ghezzi, Kansas City, Kans., had a 69. He won the event in 69.

Demaret Equals Par

Even with par 71 were Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., Ellsworth Vines of Pasadena and Ed Furgol of Pontiac, Mich.

Bracketed in the 72s were 10 players, including the low amateur for the day, Bruce McCormick of Los Angeles, who had a 32 going out and blew to a 40 coming back.

Also at 72 were PGA champion Jim Ferrier of San Francisco, Argentina's Roberto De Vincenzo, National Open Champion Lew Worsham and Johnny Palmer of Baden, N. C.

The two surprises, of course, were Harden and Spiller. Harden won the Southwestern Open last year and also placed first in a GI tournament in the Philippines in 1945. He was stationed there as an anti-aircraft sergeant. This is his third appearance in the Los Angeles fixture.

Spiller, a negro, entered for the first time. He turned pro last June and has been playing golf — often with boxing champ Joe Louis — for five years in Los Angeles.

1,000 Five-Man Teams On "Waiting List"

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 2 (AP) — The American Bowling Congress reported today it had a "waiting list" of more than 1,000 five men teams for the 1948 national tournament in Detroit.

Secretary Elmer H. Baumgarten said 6,880 teams can be accommodated during the course of the ten-pin classic which will run from March 11 to May 25, and all dates already have been reserved. In addition, he said, over 1,000 teams still are seeking dates.

Will Meet Tomorrow

A meeting of the Allegany County Tenpin League will be held Sunday at 7:30 p. m. at the Mayfair Tavern on the Winchester Road.

Nelson Rosenmarkle, president, requests all captains and sponsors to attend.

Sentinels Beat Martinsburg Hi Cagers, 48-26

Cavanaugh's Passers Notch 5th Triumph

Fort Hill's Sentinels kept rolling along last night when they took the measure of the Martinsburg (W. Va.) High School Bulldogs on the local court by the score of 48 to 26.

It was the fifth straight triumph for the undefeated warriors of Coach John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh in a game featured by the defensive work of Dean, Cage, Moler and Hardinger.

Martinsburg was limited to seven field goals while the Hilltoppers banged in twenty double-deckers. The winners converted 8 out of 13 shots at the charity line while the West Virginians hooped 12 out of 22 free throws.

Charley Lattimer and Milford Dean led the Sentinels' attack with 11 and 10 points.

In the preliminary game Fort Hill's Reserves downed the Ridgeley Merchants by the score of 29 to 19, Corbin headed the victors with seven tallies while Dicken and Wertz garnered five each. Kesner paced Ridgeley with five markers. Lineups:

Annapolis Movie To Be Shown Here

Ensign Martin Won Six Varsity Letters

A technicolor movie with sound entitled "U. S. Naval Academy" will be shown at the dinner honoring Fort Hill High School's championship football team Thursday, January 8, at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

This information was received yesterday by H. Clifford Spiker, member of the committee on arrangements, from Capt. Thomas J. Hamilton, head coach of the Navy football team.

The film, which depicts life at the Naval Academy, will include highlights of the 1946 Army-Navy game which ended 21-18, and will be brought here by Ensign Ben Martin, freshmen football coach, who will be guest speaker at the dinner.

Ensign Martin was named as an end on the All-East football team of 1944 and received the Thompson Trophy for excellence in athletics.

A native of Prospect Park, Pa., Martin was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1945, standing sixth in his class of 1,045 members. He won six varsity letters, three in football and three in track.

In football he played in every game during the seasons of 1942, 1943 and 1944. Martin was halfback for two years and was shifted to the end position in his final year and was selected on the All-East team. He was high point scorer on the Middies' track team and holds the present Academy high jump record of 6 feet, 3 inches.

Luis Firpo Says Cestac May Fight Joe Louis

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 2 (AP) — Luis Angel Firpo, the old "Wild Bull of the Pampas," told the newspaper Democracia today that efforts were being made to match Argentine heavyweight Abel Cestac with Champion Joe Louis.

Firpo said he and Jack Dempsey held Cestac's contract jointly "despite reports to the contrary."

He added that Dempsey was seeking to match Cestac and Louis this year in the United States, and "there is a very good chance the match will be closed shortly."

Los Angeles Dons Sign Still Of Georgia Tech

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 2 (AP)—Georgia Tech quarterback Jim Still, who tossed three touchdown passes in the Orange Bowl game with Kansas, announced today he had signed a pro contract with the Los Angeles Dons of the All-America Conference.

Still said the contract was one for one year and he would not wait to be graduated

Double Wedding Ceremony Held In Frostburg Church

Misses Hill, Uphold Become Brides

By RUDOLPH NICKEL

FROSTBURG—Salem Evangelical and Reformed Church, Broadway, was the scene of an impressive double wedding ceremony New Year's day, when Miss Alice Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall E. Hill, 38 Linden Street, this city, became the bride of Elwood Uphold, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Elwood Uphold, and Miss Grace Thelma Uphold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Elwood Uphold, became the bride of Donald Swearman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Swearman, Meyersdale, Pa.

Preceding the double ring ceremony, which was performed by Rev. George L. Wehler, pastor, before an altar decorated with palms and white chrysanthemums, Mrs. George Griffith sang "At Dawning" and "I Love You Truly," with Mrs. Virgil Atkinson playing the organ accompaniments and the traditional wedding marches.

The brides were given in marriage by their respective fathers. Miss Hill was attired in a powder blue street length dress with white accessories and wore a corsage of yellow rosebuds. Miss Uphold wore a medium blue street length dress with matching accessories. A corsage of talisman rosebuds completed her costume.

Miss Hill's mother chose an emerald green dress with matching accessories and a corsage of yellow rosebuds. Miss Uphold's mother wore a dark blue ensemble and a corsage of pink rosebuds.

The ushers were Ralph Hill and Robert Heckler, brother and cousin of the brides.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Hill residence, 38 Linden Street. Refreshments were served from a table centered with two three-tiered wedding cakes. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Dorothy Muir, Mrs. Bertha Arnold, Mrs. Helen Lehr, Mrs. Emma Arnold and Mrs. Earl Boyer, aunts of Miss Hill.

The couples left Thursday afternoon to spend their honeymoon in Pennsylvania. Both brides wore dark brown traveling suits with brown accessories and corsages of yellow rosebuds.

Mr. and Mrs. Uphold will reside in Mechanicsburg, Pa., where the former is manager of a poultry farm. Mr. and Mrs. Swearman will make their home in Meyersdale, Pa., where the bridegroom is employed as an automobile mechanic.

Mrs. Uphold, a graduate of Beall High School with the class of 1944, had been employed in the office of the Cumberland and Westernport Transit Company. Mrs. Swearman, a graduate of Meyersdale High School with the class of 1946, is employed by the G. C. Murphy Company in Meyersdale.

Marriage Announced

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Susan Laura Haney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Haney, Kingwood, W. Va., to Jacob Irvin Scott, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Scott of Val- Summit.

The ceremony was performed Christmas Eve at the parsonage of Eckhart Methodist Church, with Rev. Charles Meade, pastor, officiating.

Attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Haney, brother and sister-in-law of the bride.

The bride wore a suit of winter white with black accessories and a corsage of pink rosebuds. The matron of honor chose a gray suit with black accessories and a corsage of pink rosebuds.

Following the reception a ceremony was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Haney, Bowery Street.

The bride is employed at the Cel-

C. And A. Gas Company Is Authorized To Sell Notes

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 2 (AP)—The Public Service Commission gave two subsidiary firms of Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation authority today to sell promissory notes to the parent company in refinancing operations designed to meet costs of 1947 expansion programs.

Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company, which has offices in Pittsburgh and holdings in West Virginia areas, including Tucker and Mineral Counties, was granted permission to sell Columbia $600,000 of the notes.

Natural Gas Company of West Virginia, with facilities in Wetzel, Marshall and Ohio Counties and offices in Wheeling, received authority to sell notes to Columbia valued at $200,000 to meet part of construction program outlays estimated at $407,742 for the year.

Rev. Luther Hare Begins Pastorate At Oakland Church

By GEORGE H. HANST

OAKLAND— Rev. and Mrs. Luther Lee Hare and family arrived in Oakland this week where the former is to begin his pastorate in St. Mark's Lutheran church. Rev. Hare, formerly of Clear Springs, succeeds Rev. George D. Birk, who accepted a call to a Lutheran church in Williamsport, Pa., about two months ago. His first service on Sunday morning, January 4, will be a communion service.

Rev. Hare was born May 16, 1903, in Baltimore, a son of William L. and Laura F. Hare. He attended Gettysburg Academy, receiving his A. B. degree from Gettysburg college in 1935, and his B. D. degree from the Seminary in 1937.

He was licensed in the Maryland synod in 1936 and ordained by the same synod in his home church, St. Luke's, Baltimore, June 30, 1937. He was called to the parish at Clear Spring, Md., June 13, 1937. During his ministry there he was vice-president of the Washington county ministerial association, secretary-treasurer of the Lutheran ministerial association, secretary, western conferenc, president of the same conference, chairman of the Maryland synod committee on stewardship and benevolence, member of the executive committee of the Maryland synod and was elected as delegate of the Maryland synod to the United Lutheran church convention in Cleveland in 1946. The church increased in all departments and many improvements were made during his work there.

His wife is the former Winifred Lee Edwards, R. N., and their children are Orison Richard and Philip Wayne.

Teachers Transferred

Several changes in teaching positions were announced this week by F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent of schools, when schools reopen on Monday, January 5.

Mrs. Alta Hanline Duling has been transferred to the Oakland Elementary school as teacher of the 5th grade. This vacancy is to take effect on Monday morning. Mrs. Duling has been teacher for several years of the 4th and 5th grades in the Red House School.

Mrs. Gwendolyn Chisholm Warnick has been appointed as teacher of the fourth and fifth grades in the Red House school, due to Mrs. Duling's transfer. Mrs. Warnick was a teacher in the schools of the county for 10 years until recently and is a graduate of Frostburg State Teachers College.

A. B. Dean, Buckhannon, W. Va., has been appointed principal of Bear Hill school near Bittinger. Mr. Dean is a graduate of West Virginia Wesleyan College. He fills the vacancy created due to the resignation of Hugh Rexrode.

Mrs. Mildred Stemple Alstetter, who has been teaching in the Oakland Elementary school for a year or more, has resigned, effective January 15, and will go to Williamsburg, Pa., to reside with her husband.

Waters, Pensacola, Florida, served as best man for his brother. Ushers included William Meyers, student of the University of Maryland, and Wayne Meissner, Gordon Wills and George Wenzell, all classmates of the bridegroom at Johns Hopkins University.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in the traditional white slipper satin wedding gown which fell in a long train. She wore a fingertip veil of illusion and carried a bouquet of white roses. The maid of honor wore a gown of pale rose faille and the identical gowns of the bridesmaids were of aqua faille. All the bride's attendants carried old fashioned bouquets.

Following the church ceremony a reception was held, after which the couple went by plane to New York. After today they will be at home in their apartment, 3600 Parkside Drive, Baltimore.

The bride is a graduate of Eastern High School, Baltimore, and last June completed her studies at Church Home and Infirmary Nursing School. The bridegroom is a graduate of Beall High School, Frostburg, and having served three years in the army, is now studying electrical engineering at Johns Hopkins University.

Piedmont Church Plans Universal Week Of Prayer

Trinity Methodist To Open Event Sunday

By GEORGE W. DADDYSMAN

WESTERNPORT—Observance of the "Universal Week of Prayer" will begin tomorrow evening at Piedmont Trinity Methodist Church and continue through January 9, marking the 101st anniversary of the observance initiated by the Evangelical Alliance.

The topic for the week is "Prayer Changes Things." The program prepared by Dr. Hillyer Stratton, minister of First Baptist Church, Malden, Mass., will be used.

Sunday night the pastor, Rev. Raymond L. Moore, will speak on "Prayer Honors God."

Monday night Rev. Franklin G. Senger, pastor of the Evangelical United Brethren Church, Westernport, will speak on "Prayer Changes Things."

On Tuesday, Rev. Richard Clifford, pastor of Waldon M. E. Church, Piedmont, will discuss "When A Man Prays."

Wednesday, "Things Wrought By God" will be the theme of Rev. J. E. Dettra, pastor of the Westernport Church of the Brethren.

Rev. G. Stanley Schwind, rector of St. James Episcopal Church, Westernport, will speak Thursday night on "The Power of Prayer."

Friday night, Rev. Philip M. Cory, pastor of Piedmont Presbyterian Church, will discuss "Jesus Prayed for His Disciples."

Thomas Largent Service

A funeral service for Thomas E. Largent, 70, Fisher Street, Piedmont, retired paper maker of the Luke Plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, who died Thursday morning at his home, will be held tomorrow at 3:30 p. m. at the Boal Funeral Home, Westernport.

Rev. Raymond L. Moore, pastor of Piedmont Trinity Methodist Church, will officiate and interment will be in Philos Cemetery, Westernport.

Mr. Largent, who suffered a cerebral hemorrhage Wednesday, was a native of Gore, Va., and had lived at Piedmont 50 years. He was retired from the Luke paper mill in 1944 after 45 years' service.

A charter member of Black Hawk Tribe No. 131, Improved Order of Red Men, Mr. Largent also belonged to Philos Lodge No. 91, IOOF, Westernport, and Piedmont Trinity Methodist Church.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Mertie Ellen Shoemaker Largent, he is survived by one son, Edward Thomas Largent, at home; two daughters, Mrs. Robert L. Poling, Connelsville, Pa., and Mrs. Henry M. Bremer, Raleigh, N. C.; and one sister, Mrs. Mamie Grimm, Winchester, Va.

The body is at the Boal Funeral Home.

Water Tank Destroyed

The water tank formerly used by the Cumberland and Pennsylvania Railroad Company at Franklin, near Westernport, was destroyed by fire early Thursday morning.

The fire, which was discovered about 2 a. m., lit up the sky in a wide area. The cause of its origin has not been determined.

Volunteer firemen of Potomac Fire Company No. 2, Westernport, and Tri-Towns Fire Company No. 1, Piedmont, attached their hose to a fire plug on Kolberg's Hill, Westernport, 600 feet away and fought the fire for two hours to prevent it from damaging the former car shops of the company, 25 feet from the blaze.

Mrs. Kyle Dies

Mrs. Martha Jane Kyle, 60, died suddenly at her home in Barton Thursday night at 10:50 o'clock, following a heart attack.

A native of Barton, Mrs. Kyle was a daughter of the late Joseph and Martha McGinnsy Bradley. She was a member of the Barton Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star; Barton Presbyterian Church and the Ladies Guild of the church.

Besides her husband, Harrison M. Kyle, Mrs. Kyle is survived by six daughters, Mrs. John Robertson, Lonaconing; Mrs. Herbert Spiker, Piedmont; Mrs. Leroy Pringle, Baltimore; Mrs. Lee Wilson, Westernport, and Misses Dora and Emily Kyle, at home; seven sons, Harrison B. Double Wedding Ceremony Held In Frostburg Church

By RUDOLPH NICKEL

FROSTBURG—Salem Evangelical and Reformed Church, Broadway, was the scene of an impressive double wedding ceremony New Year's day, when Miss Alice Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall E. Hill, 38 Linden Street, this city, became the bride of Elwood Uphold, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Elwood Uphold, and Miss Grace Thelma Uphold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Elwood Uphold, became the bride of Donald Swearman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Swearman, Meyersdale, Pa.

Preceding the double ring ceremony, which was performed by Rev. George L. Wehler, pastor, before an altar decorated with palms and white chrysanthemums, Mrs. George Griffith sang "At Dawning" and "I Love You Truly," with Mrs. Virgil Atkinson playing the organ accompaniments and the traditional wedding marches.

The brides were given in marriage by their respective fathers. Miss Hill was attired in a powder blue street length dress with white accessories and wore a corsage of yellow rosebuds. Miss Uphold wore a medium blue street length dress with matching accessories. A corsage of talisman rosebuds completed her costume.

Miss Hill's mother chose an emerald green dress with matching accessories and a corsage of yellow rosebuds. Miss Uphold's mother wore a dark blue ensemble and a corsage of pink rosebuds.

The ushers were Ralph Hill and Robert Heckler, brother and cousin of the brides.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Hill residence, 38 Linden Street. Refreshments were served from a table centered with two three-tiered wedding cakes. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Dorothy Muir, Mrs. Bertha Arnold, Mrs. Helen Lehr, Mrs. Emma Arnold and Mrs. Earl Boyer, aunts of Miss Hill.

The couples left Thursday afternoon to spend their honeymoon in Pennsylvania. Both brides wore dark brown traveling suits with brown accessories and corsages of yellow rosebuds.

Mr. and Mrs. Uphold will reside in Mechanicsburg, Pa., where the former is manager of a poultry farm. Mr. and Mrs. Swearman will make their home in Meyersdale, Pa., where the bridegroom is employed as an automobile mechanic.

Mrs. Uphold, a graduate of Beall High School with the class of 1944, had been employed in the office of the Cumberland and Westernport Transit Company. Mrs. Swearman, a graduate of Meyersdale High School with the class of 1946, is employed by the G. C. Murphy Company in Meyersdale.

Marriage Announced

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Susan Laura Haney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Haney, Kingwood, W. Va., to Jacob Irvin Scott, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Scott of Val- Summit.

The ceremony was performed Christmas Eve at the parsonage of Eckhart Methodist Church, with Rev. Charles Meade, pastor, officiating.

Attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Haney, brother and sister-in-law of the bride.

The bride wore a suit of winter white with black accessories and a corsage of pink rosebuds. The matron of honor chose a gray suit with black accessories and a corsage of pink rosebuds.

Following the reception a ceremony was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Haney, Bowery Street.

The bride is employed at the Cel-

C. And A. Gas Company Is Authorized To Sell Notes

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 2 (AP)—The Public Service Commission gave two subsidiary firms of Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation authority today to sell promissory notes to the parent company in refinancing operations designed to meet costs of 1947 expansion programs.

Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company, which has offices in Pittsburgh and holdings in West Virginia areas, including Tucker and Mineral Counties, was granted permission to sell Columbia $600,000 of the notes.

Natural Gas Company of West Virginia, with facilities in Wetzel, Marshall and Ohio Counties and offices in Wheeling, received authority to sell notes to Columbia valued at $200,000 to meet part of construction program outlays estimated at $407,742 for the year.

Rev. Luther Hare Begins Pastorate At Oakland Church

By GEORGE H. HANST

OAKLAND— Rev. and Mrs. Luther Lee Hare and family arrived in Oakland this week where the former is to begin his pastorate in St. Mark's Lutheran church. Rev. Hare, formerly of Clear Springs, succeeds Rev. George D. Birk, who accepted a call to a Lutheran church in Williamsport, Pa., about two months ago. His first service on Sunday morning, January 4, will be a communion service.

Rev. Hare was born May 16, 1903, in Baltimore, a son of William L. and Laura F. Hare. He attended Gettysburg Academy, receiving his A. B. degree from Gettysburg college in 1935, and his B. D. degree from the Seminary in 1937.

He was licensed in the Maryland synod in 1936 and ordained by the same synod in his home church, St. Luke's, Baltimore, June 30, 1937. He was called to the parish at Clear Spring, Md., June 13, 1937. During his ministry there he was vice-president of the Washington county ministerial association, secretary-treasurer of the Lutheran ministerial association, secretary, western conferenc, president of the same conference, chairman of the Maryland synod committee on stewardship and benevolence, member of the executive committee of the Maryland synod and was elected as delegate of the Maryland synod to the United Lutheran church convention in Cleveland in 1946. The church increased in all departments and many improvements were made during his work there.

His wife is the former Winifred Lee Edwards, R. N., and their children are Orison Richard and Philip Wayne.

Teachers Transferred

Several changes in teaching positions were announced this week by F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent of schools, when schools reopen on Monday, January 5.

Mrs. Alta Hanline Duling has been transferred to the Oakland Elementary school as teacher of the 5th grade. This vacancy is to take effect on Monday morning. Mrs. Duling has been teacher for several years of the 4th and 5th grades in the Red House School.

Mrs. Gwendolyn Chisholm Warnick has been appointed as teacher of the fourth and fifth grades in the Red House school, due to Mrs. Duling's transfer. Mrs. Warnick was a teacher in the schools of the county for 10 years until recently and is a graduate of Frostburg State Teachers College.

A. B. Dean, Buckhannon, W. Va., has been appointed principal of Bear Hill school near Bittinger. Mr. Dean is a graduate of West Virginia Wesleyan College. He fills the vacancy created due to the resignation of Hugh Rexrode.

Mrs. Mildred Stemple Alstetter, who has been teaching in the Oakland Elementary school for a year or more, has resigned, effective January 15, and will go to Williamsburg, Pa., to reside with her husband.

PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose

Sometimes it doesn't pay to win a silver loving cup.

But let me take it from the top.

Billy Rose

Fourteen years ago, Eva and Joe Twiller moved to Maplehurst. They made a down payment on a small house. (You could find a house in those days.)

At first, Maplehurst didn't pay much attention to the Twillers. Then one afternoon a next-door neighbor asked Mrs. Twiller if she'd mind taking care of her youngsters for a day or two. Her mother was ill in New York and she had to catch the five o'clock train.

"We'd love to have them," Eva Twiller said. "And I hope your mother pulls through all right."

By the time the neighbor returned, her kids had adopted the Twillers. For days they talked of nothing but how nice Mrs. Twiller was, the goodies in her kitchen and the bedtime stories she had told them.

"It's none of my business," said the neighbor one day, "but you ought to have some children yourself. You have a way with them."

A year later, Eva followed this advice and gave birth of a girl. And the year after that, a boy.

By this time the Twillers were part of Maplehurst. Joe's general contracting business was doing nicely. The men at the Rotary Club liked him and the Mayor had asked him to serve on the town planning committee. And without anyone specially noticing it, Mrs. Twiller had become active in most of the female goings-on in the community. When there was a church social, her mocha cake was generally the hit of the evening. When the Civic League wanted an odd job done, the first name that came to mind as Eva Twiller. When somebody's child was ill, Eva would insist on sitting up all night with the worried mother.

And as they grew up, the Twiller kids became just as popular as their parents. They were quiet, well-mannered, and nice to look at. The girl had a flair for the piano, and the boy gave a good account of himself on his class basketball team.

The Twillers entertained moderately and their guests couldn't help noticing how well the couple got along. They acted as if life were a kind of gentle, warm, private joke. Maplehurst knew that Joe had a standing order with the florist to send a dollar bunch of cut flowers to Eva at least once a week. The girls in Joe's office used to hear him call Eva in the middle of a busy day just to tell her he was stuck on her. Once a year, whether times were good or bad, Joe would take Eva to New York to see the new shows.

A few months ago, Eva didn't show up at the monthly meeting of the Civic Club. She phoned to explain that her boy had come down with a cold.

Before the League meeting went into session, someone mentioned seeing an item about the Perfect Wife and Mother Contest which the State Chamber of Commerce was going to run.

"If you should ask me," said the chairman, "the person who ought to get that award is Eva Twiller."

Well, it began as a joke, but half an hour later a committee was appointed to draft a letter to the Chamber of Commerce and place the name of Eva Twiller in nomination. The forty-two women present agreed to sign it. As one of them said, "I wouldn't know what to write first. There are so many nice things to say about Eva. There isn't a family in this town she hasn't done something for."

A week after the letter was sent to the capital, the secretary of the State Chamber of Commerce arrived in Maplehurst and did some quiet checking. He seemed to like what he heard. Eva, of course, knew nothing about all of this.

And then the Civic League got the letter it had hoped for. Eva Twiller had been selected as the perfect mate and mom of the year, and the Governor himself was coming to Maplehurst to present her with the silver loving cup which would make it official.

Shortly after that, the Governor and a committee of Eva's best friends rang the Twiller doorbell. With them were several reporters and photographers. Eva came to the door wearing an old house dress and an apron. There was a smudge of flour on her cheek.

"This is the Governor," said the committee chairman. "And don't look so frightened, Eva. It's all in your honor."

"Would you mind standing next to the Governor?" one of the photographers said.

Eva looked scared. "Will somebody please tell me what this is all about?"

"Mrs. Twiller," said the Governor, "you've been selected as the perfect wife and mother for the year. And judging from what these ladies have been telling me, the choice is an excellent one."

Eva sat down slowly. "I'd rather no one took any pictures," she said in almost a whisper.

"Oh come now," said the Governor. Don't be so modest. The judges have checked your qualifications very carefully. This lovely house, your children, and the high regard the town has for you indicate that their selection is a wise one."

A committee member took a large loving cup from its chamois case and handed it to the Governor. The photographers got their cameras ready.

Eva sat there, playing with the pleats in her apron. And then she stood up—more like a soldier facing a firing squad than a woman facing some old friends who had come to honor her.

"I'm sorry," she said, "but I can't accept. For the past fifteen years, Mrs. Twiller has been in an insane asylum. I am Mr. Twiller's former secretary."

Beware Coughs Following Flu

After the flu is over and gone, the cough that follows may develop into chronic bronchitis if neglected. Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

Beware Coughs Following Flu

After the flu is over and gone, the cough that follows may develop into chronic bronchitis if neglected. Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

'Suspense' Drama Becomes An Hour Show On Columbia

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—Suspense, a six-year-old mystery series of CBS specializing in the eerie kind, becomes an hour broadcast on Saturday night, expanding from its former 30 minutes. In doing so it takes the time at 8 p. m., which means the Bill Goodwin show, which had been at 8:30 is to disappear for the time being.

The new Suspense will have Robert Montgomery as host and chief actor each week. The new series starts out with "The Black Curtain."

Also the CBS Saturday night list now has Abe Burrows and his zanny song at 7:30 with a sponsor, followed by Hoagy Carmichael's style of singing at 7:45. Hoagy formerly was Sunday's.

Cross Section, the CBS interview series at 3:30, has lined up this asking-question: "What Should Congress Do for Business, Agriculture and Labor in 1948?"

Saturday's supply of music will provide these items:

ABC 2 p. m. Helen Traubel and Lauritz Melchoir in "Tristan and Isolde," running an hour longer than the usual opera time.

NBC 3 Orchestras of the Nation out of the Kansas City Philharmonic orchestra.

CBS 5 Philadlephia orchestra playing the Caesar Franck symphony.

NBC 6:30 Erich Kleiber guest conducting the NBC Symphony hour in Tchailkovsky's Fourth symphony.

A Ray Brannaman talk for NBC at 12:15 p. m. is on "The Veterans Plan to Win the Peace." He's commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Physicians under 45 years old have a much lower death rate than the general U. S. population of the same ages but later in life physicians have a higher death rate than the rest of the population of the same ages.

WIFE PRESERVERS

When you are serving whipped cream with your company dessert, put the bowl containing the cream and the beater in the refrigerator until ready to serve, then whip. It will take but a minute.

RADIO IN REVIEW

By JOHN CROSBY

Who's Dreaming of a White Christmas?

A radio is a great comfort when you're snowbound. We were isolated by snow for twenty-four hours and in that time I developed a new feeling toward the broadcasting industry. Isolation is nothing new to us country dwellers but snowboundedness, it ought to be explained, is a special form of isolation, a circumstance that is both frightening and in an obscure way comforting because you can't do anything about it. The emotion changes hands frequently during the course of the day, depending on whether you're worrying about the state of the Pablum supply (low) or the enforced and luxurious suspension of activity.

John Crosby

Into this comforting and frightening isolation, undeterred by two feet of snow or sleet or rain or dark of night, came the radio bringing contact, comfort and a strange form of cheer which, I'm sure, wasn't planned exactly that way. For hours on end the Andrews Sisters (by transcription) were carolling something about a winter wonderland the gist of which is that it's fun to get your feet in the pretty snow. There was something so grimly inappropriate about this song that it was funny. At least to me, it was. Not to my wife. She had been to get the mail—it's a quarter mile down a steep hill through drifts waist high and there wasn't any mail anyway since the mailman has more sense than to go out in weather like this in spite of any postal propaganda to the contrary—and consequently her feelings about snow were to put it mildly, unpoetic.

"A beautiful sight. We're happy tonight.

"Walking through the winter wonderland," declared the Andrews girls spiritedly.

"I think your point of view is a little detached," my wife remarked with just a hint of exasperation. Arguing with a radio is a habit you get into out in the country. Since I don't like hard feelings to creep into the relations between my wife and the radio, I switched to another station where a disk jockey, hour after hour, spins records.

"I'm dreaming of a White Christmas," rumbled Bing Crosby. Outside the snow, now driven by a brisk west wind, was encroaching slowly but menacingly on my car, which was beginning to disappear under a mantle of winter wonderland. "Jingle bells. Jingle bells. Jingle all the way." Mr. Crosby was now teamed up with the Andrews Sisters.

"There's something indecent about the way those girls go in for winter sports," remarked my wife.

"I think these disk jockeys are a little out of touch with the customers," I said. 'They've heard about the storm but they haven't seen it yet. There'll be a chance of attitude."

The change came about noon when the beauties of snow were replaced by its terrors, an aspect that never creeps into popular songs though it should. "The snow shows no signs of abating," said a news man with that grim relish which newsmen reserve for catastrophes. "It's the first snowfall since the turn of the century. New York is buried under fourteen inches and all the city's snow removal equipment has been mobilized."

There was no more nonsense about jingle bells or winter wonderland; there were just bulletins. The Long Island Railroad was hours behind schedule. The New York, New Haven & Hartford was stalled completely. Commuters everywhere struggled home and failed. Hotels were overflowing. My wife's exasperation vanished and, I'm afraid I too felt an unseemly elation. The strangulation of a city the size of New York is a terrible thing but it has a certain fascination, if you look at it in a detached way. (We're seventy miles from New York and we were, at the moment, feeling extraordinarily detached.)

Outside the snow crept past the fenders of the car and headed for the windshield. The Merritt Parkway was closed, said the radio, the East River Drive was not closed but it was in such terrible shape that it was inadvisable to proceed along it. The We Don't Tell Girls basket picnic in Central Park was cancelled till further notice. Just at that point, from my lawn there arose such a clatter I sprang to the window to see what was the matter. It wasn't Santa Claus; it was Frank Bennett, who lives on the next farm, and his snowplow, which had just swept clear my driveway. He came in snorting and steaming and pounding his palms together.

"Cold," said Mr. Bennett, a man not given to loquacity. I warmed him with Bourbon, a Christmas gift, I explained, from the National Broadcasting Company. "Good," exclaimed Mr. Bennett, bestowing upon my radio a glance of appreciation which would have gladdened the heart of every vice-president of N. B. C.

The radio was advising its listeners to stay home, for heaven's sake, and not put any extra burden on the railroads, the roads, the buses, anything. "I'm going to town," announced my wife—to the radio, not to me. "Jingle bells, jingle bells, jingle all the way," she was singing as she left.

A radio, as I remarked earlier, is a great comfort when you're snowbound but an even greater comfort when someone else is.

A radio is a great comfort when you're snowbound. We were isolated by snow for twenty-four hours and in that time I developed a new feeling toward the broadcasting industry. Isolation is nothing new to us country dwellers but snowboundedness, it ought to be explained, is a special form of isolation, a circumstance that is both frightening and in an obscure way comforting because you can't do anything about it. The emotion changes hands frequently during the course of the day, depending on whether you're worrying about the state of the Pablum supply (low) or the enforced and luxurious suspension of activity.

John Crosby

Into this comforting and frightening isolation, undeterred by two feet of snow or sleet or rain or dark of night, came the radio bringing contact, comfort and a strange form of cheer which, I'm sure, wasn't planned exactly that way. For hours on end the Andrews Sisters (by transcription) were carolling something about a winter wonderland the gist of which is that it's fun to get your feet in the pretty snow. There was something so grimly inappropriate about this song that it was funny. At least to me, it was. Not to my wife. She had been to get the mail—it's a quarter mile down a steep hill through drifts waist high and there wasn't any mail anyway since the mailman has more sense than to go out in weather like this in spite of any postal propaganda to the contrary—and consequently her feelings about snow were to put it mildly, unpoetic.

"A beautiful sight. We're happy tonight.

"Walking through the winter wonderland," declared the Andrews girls spiritedly.

"I think your point of view is a little detached," my wife remarked with just a hint of exasperation. Arguing with a radio is a habit you get into out in the country. Since I don't like hard feelings to creep into the relations between my wife and the radio, I switched to another station where a disk jockey, hour after hour, spins records.

"I'm dreaming of a White Christmas," rumbled Bing Crosby. Outside the snow, now driven by a brisk west wind, was encroaching slowly but menacingly on my car, which was beginning to disappear under a mantle of winter wonderland. "Jingle bells. Jingle bells. Jingle all the way." Mr. Crosby was now teamed up with the Andrews Sisters.

"There's something indecent about the way those girls go in for winter sports," remarked my wife.

"I think these disk jockeys are a little out of touch with the customers," I said. "They've heard about the storm but they haven't seen it yet. There'll be a chance of attitude."

The change came about noon when the beauties of snow were replaced by its terrors, an aspect that never creeps into popular songs though it should. "The snow shows no signs of abating," said a news man with that grim relish which newsmen reserve for catastrophes. "It's the first snowfall since the turn of the century. New York is buried under fourteen inches and all the city's snow removal equipment has been mobilized."

There was no more nonsense about jingle bells or winter wonderland; there were just bulletins. The Long Island Railroad was hours behind schedule. The New York, New Haven & Hartford was stalled completely. Commuters everywhere struggled home and failed. Hotels were overflowing. My wife's exasperation vanished and, I'm afraid I too felt an unseemly elation. The strangulation of a city the size of New York is a terrible thing but it has a certain fascination, if you look at it in a detached way. (We're seventy miles from New York and we were, at the moment, feeling extraordinarily detached.)

Outside the snow crept past the fenders of the car and headed for the windshield. The Merritt Parkway was closed, said the radio, the East River Drive was not closed but it was in such terrible shape that it was inadvisable to proceed along it. The We Don't Tell Girls basket picnic in Central Park was cancelled till further notice. Just at that point, from my lawn there arose such a clatter I sprang to the window to see what was the matter. It wasn't Santa Claus; it was Frank Bennett, who lives on the next farm, and his snowplow, which had just swept clear my driveway. He came in snorting and steaming and pounding his palms together.

"Cold," said Mr. Bennett, a man not given to loquacity. I warmed him with Bourbon, a Christmas gift, I explained, from the National Broadcasting Company. "Good," exclaimed Mr. Bennett, bestowing upon my radio a glance of appreciation which would have gladdened the heart of every vice-president of N. B. C.

The radio was advising its listeners to stay home, for heaven's sake, and not put any extra burden on the railroads, the roads, the buses, anything. "I'm going to town," announced my wife—to the radio, not to me. "Jingle bells, jingle bells, jingle all the way," she was singing as she left.

A radio, as I remarked earlier, is a great comfort when you're snowbound but an even greater comfort when someone else is.

Late Rally By Rail Issues Buoys Otherwise Weather-Beaten Market

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 (AP)—A late burst of strength in the rails buoyed an otherwise weather-beaten stock market today on its initial 1948 session although many leaders elsewhere failed to respond and dealings were among the slowest of the past four months.

The ticker tape dozed during most of the day, only 380,000 shares appearing in the first four hours. Transfers for the day totalled 700,000 shares against 1,540,000 Wednesday and were a minimum for a full stretch since September 26.

Ahead a point or more were Illinois Central at 32¾ and Gulf Mobile and Ohio at 15½, both touching tops for the past year; Santa Fe 96¼, New York Central 15⅜, Pennsylvania Railroad 19⅝, Southern Pacific 51, Southern Railway 41, Great Northern Railway 42½, Northern Pacific 21⅜, Chesapeake and Ohio 44⅝ and Atlantic Coast Line 50⅞.

Improved were Bethlehem Steel, Youngstown, Spiegel, Lockheed, Douglas Aircraft, Consolidated Edison, Public Service of New Jersey, Kennecott, Johns-Manville, Philip Morris, Radio Corporation, Pepsi-Cola, West Indies Sugar, Twentieth Century-Fox, Mission Corporation, Pan American Airways and Sinclair Oil.

Stumblers included United States Steel, General Motors, United States Steel, General Motors, United States Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, J. I. Case, Consolidated Natural Gas, American Smelting, American Can, Dow Chemical, Union Carbide, Allied Chemical, Du Pont, United States Gypsum, Gillette, International Paper, Nickel Plate preferred, Paramount Pictures, Loew's Superior Oil and Standard Oil (NJ.).

Forward Curb movers were Aluminum of America, Electric Bond and Share, Gleaner Harvester, Humble Oil and American Gas. Backward were Cities Service, Consolidated Gas of Baltimore, Kaiser - Frazer and United Shoe Machinery. Turnover here was 150,000 shares versus 370,000 in the preceding session.

Railroad issues started the new year with a sprint that added fractions to around three points for favored liens on the bond market.

Although the rails carried through the December 31 rally with considerable dash, total volume amounted to only $3,892,000. This compared with $6,390,000 Wednesday.

United States government issues showed new strength in the over-the-counter market. Demand developed, particularly in the short-term and intermediate maturities, at above federal reserve support levels. The 27⅞s of 1955-'60, for instance, managed the widest advance with a gain of 12/32 of a point.

Mrs. Martha Kyle Dies Suddenly

By DAVID E. KIRK

BARTON — Mrs. Martha Jane Kyle, 60, wife of Harrison M. Kyle, died suddenly at 11:45 New Year's Night at her home.

Mrs. Kyle became ill after retiring for the day and a doctor was summoned. She died from a heart attack shortly after the doctor arrived.

Born and reared in Barton, she was the daughter of the late Joseph and Martha Bradley. She was a member of Barton Chapter No. 37, Order of Eastern Star, Barton Presbyterian Church and the Ladies' Guild of the church.

Surviving, besides her husband, are six daughters, Mrs. John Robertson Lonaconing; Mrs. Herbert Spiker, Piedmont; Mrs. Leroy Pringle, Baltimore; Mrs. Lee Wilson, Westernport, and Misses Dora and Emily Kyle, at home, and seven sons, Harrison B. and William E. Kyle, Barton; James Kyle, Los Angeles; Richard Kyle, Youngstown, Ohio; Floyd Kyle, Baltimore, and Clarence and Melvin Kyle, at home.

She is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. Floyd Russell and Mrs. St. Clair Miller, Barton; four brothers, Joseph, John, Dewey and James Bradley, all of Barton, and nine grandchildren.

The body will be taken to the home of her son, Harrison, on High Street.

Will Install Officers

Henry Howell will be installed president of Barton Hose Co. No. 1 Monday evening when the company holds its annual installation of officers.

A supper will be served in the armory at 6 o'clock and following installation a meeting will be held.

Women's club, the Lions club and the Rotary club—are jointly sponsoring a "Go To Church" movement for Oakland and vicinity during the month of January, using as their slogan, "Begin the New Year Right—Go to Church."

Such a movement was sponsored by the three service clubs last year with such success that it is being undertaken again this year with much enthusiasm by these groups, according to a member of the committee.

The officers of the clubs and the committees are not only urging their members to attend church but they are entering upon a campaign of publicity through which they are calling upon the people of the community to attend church services regularly, especially during the month of January. They are reminding members and the public at large that they should attend the services in their own churches

The committee members are: for the B. P. W., Mrs. Walter E. Dawson, president; Mrs. A. M. Humbertson, and Mrs. F. R. Shaffer; for the Lions club, Herbert C. Leighton, president, Lewis R. Jones and Robert Ruckert; and for the Rotary club, Mason Glotfelty, N. A. Coplin and William M. Ellinghaus.

Dr. Otaneseck, professor of polington, D. C., will be in Oakland for the next dinner meeting of the Mt. Top Chamber of Commerce scheduled for the William-James hotel on Tuesday, January 15, at 6:30.

She will be accompanied by Catherine O. Gaule, Baltimore, administrative director to the state chairman for the National Foundation for the Infantile Paralysis. Both will speak about the coming March of Dimes campaign.

Tickets for this dinner meeting are being distributed by W. O. Davis, secretary of the organization, and a corps of workers.

Sharps Child Dies

The death of Donald William Sharps, aped one year, occurred in a hospital in Moultrie, Ga., on Monday evening, December 29, at 10 o'clock, from pneumonia. He was born on December 30, 1946.

The child had been in ill health since birth having a heart condition. Children in similar conditions have been known in recent years as "blue babies," through improper circulation of the blood through the heart.

Mr. and Mrs. John Sharps, the parents, and their family, had gone to Pavo, Georgia, about the middle of December to spend Christmas with members of her family.

A funeral service was scheduled to be held at Pavo Wednesday. The body will be brought to Oakland for burial.

44 W. Va. Flying Schools Issued 1948 Licenses

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 2 (AP)—Forty-four flight training schools throughout the state were licensed on December 31 for the year 1948 in compliance with a 1947 act, Director Hubert H. Stark, of the State Aeronautics Commission, announced today. They include Baker's Air Park, Burlington.

Certificate for operating on a 90-day permit was issued to Mountaineer Aviation Service, Terra Alta.

Late Rally By Rail Issues Buoys Otherwise Weather-Beaten Market

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 (AP)—A late burst of strength in the rails buoyed an otherwise weather-beaten stock market today on its initial 1948 session although many leaders elsewhere failed to respond and dealings were among the slowest of the past four months.

The ticker tape dozed during most of the day, only 380,000 shares appearing in the first four hours. Transfers for the day totalled 700,000 shares against 1,540,000 Wednesday and were a minimum for a full stretch since September 26.

Ahead a point or more were Illinois Central at 32¾ and Gulf Mobile and Ohio at 15½, both touching tops for the past year; Santa Fe 96¼, New York Central 15⅜, Pennsylvania Railroad 19⅝, Southern Pacific 51, Southern Railway 41, Great Northern Railway 42½, Northern Pacific 21⅜, Chesapeake and Ohio 44⅝ and Atlantic Coast Line 50⅞.

Improved were Bethlehem Steel, Youngstown, Spiegel, Lockheed, Douglas Aircraft, Consolidated Edison, Public Service of New Jersey, Kennecott, Johns-Manville, Philip Morris, Radio Corporation, Pepsi-Cola, West Indies Sugar, Twentieth Century-Fox, Mission Corporation, Pan American Airways and Sinclair Oil.

Stumblers included United States Steel, General Motors, United States Steel, General Motors, United States Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, J. I. Case, Consolidated Natural Gas, American Smelting, American Can, Dow Chemical, Union Carbide, Allied Chemical, Du Pont, United States Gypsum, Gillette, International Paper, Nickel Plate preferred, Paramount Pictures, Loew's Superior Oil and Standard Oil (NJ).

Forward Curb movers were Aluminum of America, Electric Bond and Share, Gleaner Harvester, Humble Oil and American Gas. Backward were Cities Service, Consolidated Gas of Baltimore, Kaiser - Frazer and United Shoe Machinery. Turnover here was 150,000 shares versus 370,000 in the preceding session.

Railroad issues started the new year with a sprint that added fractions to around three points for favored liens on the bond market.

Although the rails carried through the December 31 rally with considerable dash, total volume amounted to only $3,892,000. This compared with $6,390,000 Wednesday.

United States government issues showed new strength in the over-the-counter market. Demand developed, particularly in the short-term and intermediate maturities, at above federal reserve support levels. The 27⅞s of 1955-'60, for instance, managed the widest advance with a gain of 12/32 of a point.

Mrs. Martha Kyle Dies Suddenly

By DAVID E. KIRK

BARTON — Mrs. Martha Jane Kyle, 60, wife of Harrison M. Kyle, died suddenly at 11:45 New Year's Night at her home.

Mrs. Kyle became ill after retiring for the day and a doctor was summoned. She died from a heart attack shortly after the doctor arrived.

Born and reared in Barton, she was the daughter of the late Joseph and Martha Bradley. She was a member of Barton Chapter No. 37, Order of Eastern Star, Barton Presbyterian Church and the Ladies' Guild of the church.

Surviving, besides her husband, are six daughters, Mrs. John Robertson Lonaconing; Mrs. Herbert Spiker, Piedmont; Mrs. Leroy Pringle, Baltimore; Mrs. Lee Wilson, Westernport, and Misses Dora and Emily Kyle, at home, and seven sons, Harrison B. and William E. Kyle, Barton; James Kyle, Los Angeles; Richard Kyle, Youngstown, Ohio; Floyd Kyle, Baltimore, and Clarence and Melvin Kyle, at home.

She is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. Floyd Russell and Mrs. St. Clair Miller, Barton; four brothers, Joseph, John, Dewey and James Bradley, all of Barton, and nine grandchildren.

The body will be taken to the home of her son, Harrison, on High Street.

Will Install Officers

Henry Howell will be installed president of Barton Hose Co. No. 1 Monday evening when the company holds its annual installation of officers.

A supper will be served in the armory at 6 o'clock and following installation a meeting will be held.

Other officers to be installed will be Adolph Howell, vice-president; Roy Snyder, recording secretary; Jack Saville, financial secretary; Joseph Shuhart, treasurer for the 20th consecutive term; John Bradley, chief; Howard Wilkes, assistant chief; Ernest Poland, captain; Forrest Mowbray, captain of reels; and Forrest Mowbray, Russell Kiddy, Gilbert Warnick, Sherman Hyde and Inving Neilson, executive committee.

During the meeting, Howell will make the appointment of hall manager, house, amusement and kitchen committee.

Calls From Germany

Mrs. Harmon Gannon received a telephone call yesterday morning from her son, Pvt. Ralph C. Lashbaugh, who is stationed with the signal corps of the United States Army in Australia, Germany.

Pvt. Lashbaugh wished his mother a happy New Year and said he was sending her a surprise package.

He served in World War II and re-enlisted shortly after being discharged.

His wife and children live at 95 Bowery Street, Frostburg.

Auxiliary To Meet

The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Barton Post No. 189, American Legion, will meet Monday evening, 7:30, in the legion's home.

Allegany Lodge No. 157, A. F. & A. M., will meet in the Odd Fellow's hall, Hall Street, Monday at 7:30 p. m.

Women's club, the Lions club and the Rotary club—are jointly sponsoring a "Go To Church" movement for Oakland and vicinity during the month of January, using as their slogan, "Begin the New Year Right—Go to Church."

Such a movement was sponsored by the three service clubs last year with such success that it is being undertaken again this year with much enthusiasm by these groups, according to a member of the committee.

The officers of the clubs and the committees are not only urging their members to attend church but they are entering upon a campaign of publicity through which they are calling upon the people of the community to attend church services regularly, especially during the month of January. They are reminding members and the public at large that they should attend the services in their own churches

The committee members are: for the B. P. W., Mrs. Walter E. Dawson, president; Mrs. A. M. Humbertson, and Mrs. F. R. Shafer; for the Lions club, Herbert C. Leighton, president, Lewis R. Jones and Robert Ruckert; and for the Rotary club, Mason Glotfelty, N. A. Coplin and William M. Ellinghaus.

City Election Attracts First 3 Candidates

Eves Expected To Enter Mayor's Race

The first political hats were "tossed into the ring" last night as the campaign for the municipal primary March 2 began to take shape, with two incumbent councilmen and one newcomer to city politics declaring themselves as candidates, while Mayor Thomas S. Post and several other persons remained on the "probable" list.

Roy W. Eves, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad man, appeared a definite candidate for the mayoralty position, with information indicating that he will make his announcement in the next couple of days.

Joseph G. Jackson, secretary of the Independent Food Dealers of Western Maryland, was understood to have been considering nomination but up to last night had arrived at no decision.

William J. Edwards and Clifton E. Fuller, incumbent councilmen, both confirmed reports that they will seek re-election, while Myers G. Light, present Commissioner of Streets, declared he is still "turning the matter over" but will probably run.

William V. Keegan, Commissioner of Police and Firemen, earlier in the week indicated that he will again seek the council post. He has been mentioned as a possible candidate for mayor.

William H. Buckholtz confirmed reports linked with his name, by announcing that he will seek a position in the city council.

W. E. McDonald, candidate for mayor two years ago, admitted he has been "contacted" but said he still is doubtful about entering the race this time. William L. Wilson, Jr., local attorney, would neither confirm nor deny reports mentioned with his name, but definitely was leaving the door open for future action.

H. Frank Hintz, unsuccessful council candidate in the last municipal election, said last night he did not care to make a statement this early but promised "I may have something to say in a few days."

Former Chief of Police Oscar A. Eyerman, frequently mentioned as a possible candidate for either mayor or councilman, is still visiting in California, but close associates are holding to an earlier statement of Eyerman's that he "is considering the possibility."

James Orr, who served as Commissioner of Police and Fire, has also been mentioned as a candidate but has not made a public move, nor have the political dopesters connected him definitely with either the mayor or council positions.

NEW YEAR'S BABY—Jane Elizabeth Howser, the first baby born in Cumberland in 1948, is seen resting happily in the arms of her mother, Mrs. Arvella M. Eshbaugh Howser, wife of Walter A. Howser, B. and O. carman, 124 Arch Street. The pretty seven pound, 14 ounce girl was born at 12:40 a. m. Thursday in Memorial Hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Howser are the parents of five other children. The second baby of 1948, a boy, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Galen Harvey, Kitzmiller, in Memorial Hospital Thursday at 4:03 a. m. and weighed seven pounds, four and one-half ounces. A six-pound, five and one-fourth ounce son was born to Richard F. and Margaret Elizabeth Geatz Boyle, 45 Henderson Avenue, in Allegany Hospital Thursday at 5:40 a. m.

Snow In Garrett County Is Topped By Freezing Rain

River Receding After Downpour

Freezing rain was falling in Garrett County last night on top of two and a half to three inches of snow, and State Police advised motorists to use chains and drive with caution west of Frostburg.

Cumberland was hit by one of the heaviest rainstorms in years with 2.09 inches falling between 7 a. m. New Year's Day and 8 a. m. yesterday, but farther west the rain turned to snow early yesterday morning.

The State Roads Commission reported from one to one and a half inches of snow in Frostburg to as much as three inches on Meadow Mountain.

A State Roads spokesman said Route 40 west of Frostburg was "icy in spots" and added that cindering crews stopped work at 5 p. m. yesterday after being on the job since 7 a. m. in their efforts to alleviate the situation.

Snow Flurries Forecast

Snow flurries were forecast for this section today along with cloudiness and somewhat colder weather, and snow flakes were blowing about late last night. The temperature, however, had gone up one degree from 31 at 6 p. m. to 32 four hours later.

The New Year's Day rain which flooded gutters and caused water in basements of some homes, also resulted in the Potomac River rising to a crest of 14.10 feet here, only a few feet under flood stage, but it had dropped to 11.45 feet at 7 p. m.

Raising altogether 10.75 feet, a six-foot jump in five hours preceded the crest at 5 a. m. Wills Creek also rose proportionately to give that stream its first "flushing" since last spring.

Water from the Potomac River topped the toll bridge at Oldtown and flooded low areas near Green Springs, W. Va. Georges Creek flowed brim full and other streams had crests near the top of their banks.

Up to two inches of snow in the Georges Creek section delayed traffic there until roads were cindered yesterday morning.

A light snow fell in Bedford County yesterday morning but Pennsylvania State Police said roads were icy only in spots in mountainous sections.

From one to one and a half inches of snow fell in Somerset County, Pa., and a fine, freezing mist was falling last night.

State Police said Somerset County roads were getting slick again but road crews were busy ashing them.

Icy In Spots

In West Virginia, State Police at Romney said roads were icy in spots as a result of melting snow of Thursday freezing yesterday.

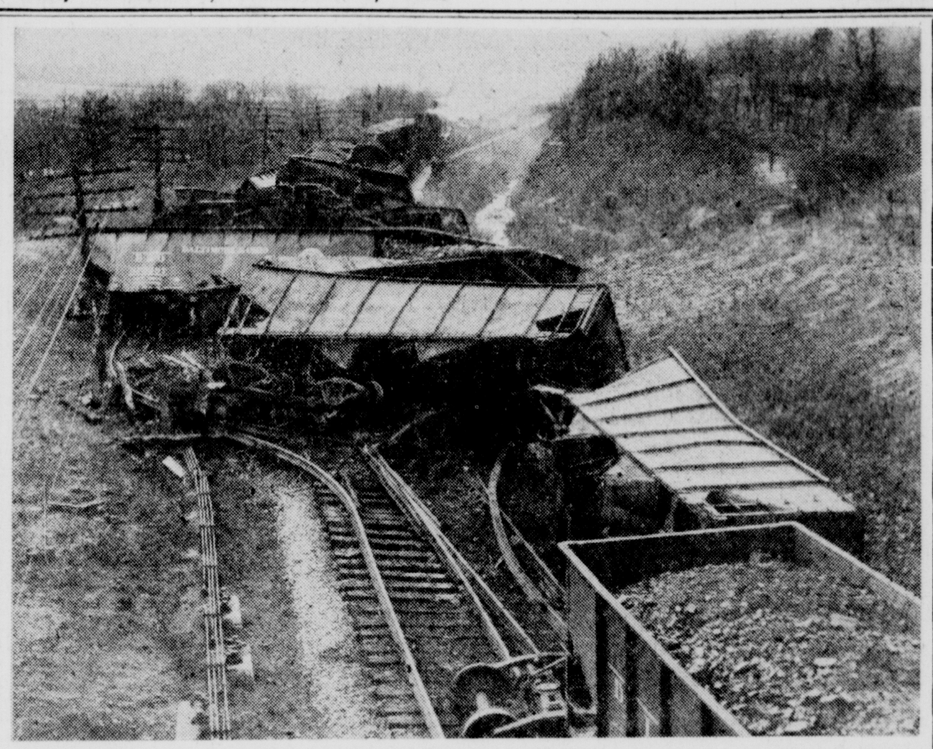
Bad driving conditions were reported in the Preston County, W. Va., area, especially on U. S. Route 50 and State Route 7. Even though the roads had been well cindered, State Road Commission officials said chains were recommended.

East of Cumberland highways were reported in good shape.

In Frederick County, the Monocacy River, after receding from an overflow Thursday night, had spilled over its banks again, blocking a section of State Route 80 between Buckeystown and Urbana.

Because of the swollen river, a tributary, Israel's Creek, backed up and washed over a section of the Liberty Road between Frederick and Baltimore. Traffic was halted for more than five hours in several sections.

Evidence that Thursday's all-day rain was state-wide was contained in reports of heavy precipitation. Hagerstown had 2.28 inches while 2.47 inches were measured at Salisbury on the Eastern Shore.



HOPPERS HOP TRACK—Twenty-one of the 30 Baltimore and Ohio coal hoppers which wrecked at McKenzie, near Pinto yesterday morning shortly before 11 o'clock, are seen here as crews begin the task of clearing the right of way. Caused by a broken bar on a truck under a coal car, one-third of the 90 car train piled up tearing out both tracks, part of the interlocking plant and blocking traffic all day and well into the night. B. & O. trains through the cut-off were detoured over Western Maryland lines and were reported running as much as an hour late. Officials said it was "one of the worst pile-ups in years."

Plans To Enlarge LaVale Water Co. Are Announced

Meeting Is Set For January 15

Plans to enlarge the LaVale Water Company in order to secure a water supply sufficient to meet present demands of the community as well as future requirements were announced yesterday by D. Clifford Goodfellow, secretary-treasurer of the company.

The present capitalization of the company is $33,500 and while the amount capitalization will be increased is indefinite, Goodfellow said it will depend largely on a survey and estimate of the cost of expansion of the system.

This survey is to be made by the Small-Paye Engineering Company in conjunction with a firm of Baltimore consultants, and preliminary studies already are underway.

At a meeting December 30 of 30 residents of LaVale, members of the board of directors of the water company authorized appointment of a committee of LaVale residents to contact an engineer to make the survey for an additional water supply.

This committee is composed of Roy C. Lottig, chairman; George E. Baughman, Elmer P. Bachtell, John W. Burkett and Harry B. Klosterman.

Lottig said yesterday that a meeting open to all residents of LaVale will be held at the LaVale Fire Hall at 7:30 p. m. Thursday, January 15, when a representative of the engineering firm will be present and outline plans for expansion of the system.

The committee headed by Lottig was authorized at the meeting Tuesday to have the preliminary survey made in the interest of the additional source of supply, and Lottig pointed out that plans are being made through the committee to give LaVale a sufficient water supply.

He added that when present plans are carried out "all indications point to an adequate water supply for LaVale."

The committee already has written to Dr. Joseph T. Singewald, director of the State Department of Geology, Mines and Water Resources, requesting assistance in investigating potential underground water sources to relieve the present situation.

This assistance was asked in order to avoid repetition of what happened last summer when the company drilled a well in LaVale Orchard for a depth of 250 feet and got no water.

At the present time the company's supply comes from Laber Spring at the foot of Red Hill, from two drilled wells, and from Sand Spring on Braddock Road.

There are two main reservoirs, one at Red Hill and another just below the C. and P. Railroad on Braddock Road. There are now 536 taps on the line.

Leasure To Seek $25,000 Damages For Loss Of Leg

Run Down By Engine On B & O Crossing

Robert G. Leasure, in his suit against the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company filed in Circuit Court here, will ask $25,000 damages for the loss of his leg, suffered when run over by an engine on the Baltimore Street crossing, November 12, last, according to James Alfred Avirett, his attorney.

Suit by titling was docketed, so the case can be heard at the April term of Court, Avirett said.

Leasure, who is 78 years of age and lives at 223 Harrison Street, had been employed at Crystal Laundry for some time and was on his way to a Queen City Pavement restaurant when he crossed in the path of a steam shifter which was pulling one coach.

The man's right foot was torn off by wheels of the train and railroad employes used a pick and shovel to extricate him. Later at Allegany Hospital, the leg was amputated between the knee and ankle, and Leasure was also treated for lacerations about his head and other injuries.

A suit by titling was also docketed by Edward J. Ryan, attorney for Raymond Twigg, vs. the Yellow Cab Company. No details were available.

In three other suits, filed by William H. Geppert, attorney, a total of $17,500 will be asked. Geppert said the suits result from injuries suffered by a Cumberland woman and her daughter last October 11, when struck by a car in front of Allegany Hospital.

The plaintiffs are Mrs. Christine McBride, 604 Virginia Avenue, who suffered fractures of both legs; her daughter, Louise McBride, 11; and the husband, Arthur F. McBride, who is asking compensation for hospital bills and loss of services of his wife as a result of her injuries. The daughter was hurt about the head.

Defendant in the three suits is Dewey D. Thompson, 26, of 1906 Bedford Street, driver of the car which allegedly struck the woman and her daughter. The accident occurred near the Fulton Street intersection of Decatur Street.

Damages of $10,000 will be asked for Mrs. McBride, $5,000 by the husband and $2,500 by the daughter.

Mayor, Council And CAA Officials Confer On Airport

City Management Plan Is Outlined

The Mayor and Council conferred yesterday with officials of the Civil Aeronautics Administration and gave strong indication afterward that the airport may be operated under city management.

Should this action be taken, the council would be rejecting the recommendation of the Municipal Airport Commission which proposed leasing the port on a non-exclusive basis to the Jenkins-Delagrange Corporation for two years.

While Robert J. Dunahoe, Washington, chief of the CAA airport management section, told council members the CAA does not advise concerning what management policy should be followed by a city, he pointed out that half of the 1,200 city-owned ports are city-managed, that 67 recently reported a profit and that 180 are at the break-even point.

Explaining in some detail how the city management plan operates, Dunahoe said the city should not sell or repair planes, teach students or perform certain other similar functions, but should retain exclusive rights for the sale of gasoline and oil and should act as a landlord in renting buildings.

He added that in event the city does not desire to spend more money to erect buildings, it could lease ground and private operators could erect their own structures. The job of selling planes, teaching students and performing other airport functions would be done by individual private operators.

The first five steps to be taken under a city management plan Dunahoe listed as formation of policy and rates, employment of a full-time manager, preparation of a budget, preparation of a master plan and adoption of a traffic pattern.

He likewise outlined the duties and powers of a city manager and said that such a man should not be afraid to work.

Manager Important

John E. Cowles, Baltimore, acting CAA district airport engineer, said too many cities just hire a caretaker as a manager. Dunahoe said a manager should be paid according to his merit and that in the event a trained and experienced man cannot be found, a local man should be hired. He also recommended the naming of an assistant manager who would live at the port.

Thomas B. Finan, recently named city attorney, attended his first meeting of the council in an official capacity, and asked Dunahoe what percentage of an airport's success is based on the manager. The CAA official said "99 per cent". Several weeks ago at a council meeting Dunahoe said trained managers are very hard to get as the demand exceeds the supply.

Dunahoe said a manager could be paid $3,600 and the assistant $2,400 with a portion of the latter being paid through living quarters.

Gets Keegan Backing

Commissioner William V. Keegan said he believes the local field has many possibilities. He indicated he favors city management and said more hangars should be built at the field.

Dunahoe, who was manager of the port at Roanoke, Va., for a number of years, outlined his experience there and said city management had proved successful.

Commissioner Clifton E. Fuller said that direct city management would call for more responsibility on the part of the Mayor and Council. Dunahoe said that "the effort pays off."

There was some discussion regarding possible income and expenses under city management. While no definite figure was reached, there was indication that the cost would be $15,000 as against a possible $11,000 income.

Under the lease arrangement proposed by the commission the city would receive at least $2,000 yearly and would have to do maintenance work.

Amvets Take Lease On Old Belvedere Theatre Building

Plan To Move Club Within Two Weeks

J. Louis Wolford Post No. 1, Amvets, voted approval of a plan to move their post home from its present location in the old Citizens Bank Building to the second floor of the old Belvedere Theatre building, 139 Baltimore Street, according to Commander Henry Gerdeman.

The executive and housing committees, for several weeks have been negotiating for a new location where larger and more adequate facilities for the organization will be possible, Gerdeman said. At last night's meeting, membership approved a recommendation of the executive, that a lease be signed for the new location.

The Amvets, organized since the end of World War II, and composed entirely of World War II veterans, was the first Amvets Post in Maryland, and State Department headquarters are also located here.

Gerdeman said the organization has been increasing in membership, an auxiliary has been formed and larger quarters have become necessary.

The Belvedere building is a familiar structure here, and for many years housed a theatre and motion picture house. After the Belvedere was closed, the place was converted into a dance hall for a time, but later became the home of the Woodmen of the World, until they moved into their new structure on Union Street, over a year ago. More recently, Belvedere Hall housed a privately operated club known as the Belvedere Ex-Servicemens Club, where dances were held. This place was operated only a few months.

Gerdeman said a satisfactory lease arrangement has been made, and the Amvets expect to retain the equipment in the building, moving what they now own to the new location to augment it. Some remodeling may be necessary to provide necessary meeting, recreation and conference rooms and offices, he said. It is planned to move the club within the next two weeks, the commander asserted.

Audit Completed, Mayor "Understands"

Mayor Thomas S. Post said last night he "understands" a special audit of the tax collector's office has been completed by the accounting firm of Berman, Goldman, Levin and Company.

The Mayor added that while the report of the audit will be submitted to him he has not yet received it. He said he hopes to get it next week.

The audit was authorized to review city tax assessments on real and personal property within the city limits during 1944, 1945 and 1946.

Decline Noticed In Licenses To Wed Issued Here

Total For 1947 Listed At 4,661

According to statisticians, Leap Year, contrary to general belief is a year of fewer marriages, and Court House attaches here anticipate a further drop in marriage licenses this year.

During 1947, 4,661 marriage licenses were issued here, most of them to couples from out of the state. This was a decline over the 1946 figure, attaches said. In the months just after the end of the war the number of licenses hovered around 500 per month, but in 1946, the decline started. Last month 351 couples obtained marriage permits.

From June to October the number of licenses averaged over 400 per month. The lowest month of the year was February with 266 issued.

The largest number issued in any single month during the past 10 years was in August 1937, when 660 couples received licenses. The 1937-38 period was the best on record with 5,916 licenses sold here.

Licenses issued yesterday are as follows:

William Henry Smith, Jr., 414 Maryland Avenue, and Ruth Ellen Rice, 310 Harrison Street.

Warren Isaac Bookheimer, Bedford, Pa., and Alice Virginia Clay, 225 Fayette Street.

Homer Quentin Suder, Corriganville, and Cecelia Bessie Christopoulus, Baltimore.

John Joseph Dick, Westernport, and Evelyn Mae Freeman, Piedmont, W. Va.

Harry McIntyre Burkett, Frostburg, and Leona Marie Brooke, Wiley Ford, W. Va.

Emmet Byron Haer, Garrett, Pa., and Ogda Ruth Sherman, Meyersdale, Pa.

George Washington Hansberry, Jr., Somerset, Pa., and Dorothy Garrett, 225 Glenn Street.

B & O Coal Train Wreck Blocks Dual Tracks Near Pinto

30 Cars Pile-Up; Trains Are Detoured

The Baltimore and Ohio railroad experienced one of its worst freight wrecks yesterday, when 30 loaded coal hoppers piled into a jumbled heap at McKenzie, near Pinto, about 10 miles from Cumberland. The wreck occurred at 10:52 a. m. as train No. 6128, bearing 90 loaded coal cars passed the McKenzie tower. Traffic between Keyser, W. Va., and this city was expected to be blocked for at least 24 hours. All B. & O. trains between here and Keyser are being detoured over Western Maryland tracks, at the Rawlings junction.

Railroad officials at the wreck said it was the worst pile-up they had seen. They estimated at first, that tracks would not be open for 15 hours, and later revised the estimates to at least 24 hours.

Extra Coal Train

The train was an extra coal train and its 90 cars were fully loaded with more than 50 tons of coal each. The wreck is believed to have been caused by a broken beam or side piece on a truck of one of the cars, which dropped, throwing the car from the rails. The other wrecked hoppers, telescoped, twisted sideways, ran up on each other, and generally turned topsy-turvy, with the center ones mashed together like tin cans.

The scene of the wreck is just about opposite the Allegany Ballistics plant which is across the Potomac River from McKenzie and Pinto. The wreckage lies partially under a single lane highway bridge which crosses the dual tracks at that point, and can be reached from the Pinto road leading from Cresaptown.

The tower is alongside the bridge, and the wreckage is strewn on both sides of the tower. There is a high bank on one side of the wreck and only a scant amount of room to work on the other. Wreck trains from Keyser and Cumberland were working last night on both ends of the debris, in an effort to clear the right of way, so tracks can be relayed. Several hundred feet of both tracks were torn up or damaged.

H. F. Wyatt, superintendent of the Cumberland division, and other B. & O. officials were at the scene last night and indicated that they would remain there until tracks were cleared.

Traffic Rerouted

Officials said traffic is being rerouted over the Western Maryland Railway between Cumberland and Keyser with trains headed toward Cumberland, changing over at Rawlings to North Branch. Westbound traffic is being transferred at City Junction and thence to North Branch and Rawlings. The first trains detoured were Passenger Train No. 11, west bound to St. Louis and Train No. 30, an express, eastbound.

Trains were running about an hour late, according to the B. & O. ticket agent.

The caller's office said crew members on the wrecked train included E. W. Keech, engineer, C. R. Viney, firemen, and J. T. Guthridge, conductor, all of this city; W. L. Reedy flagman and J. W. Lamp, brakeman, both of Brunswick. No one was injured in the crash.

Freight Hits Auto

A B. and O. freight train struck a stalled car on the crossing at Mt. Savage Junction near Corriganville at 1 a. m. New Year's Day but no one was hurt in the crash.

The accident occurred on the same crossing at which another car was struck December 23 by a freight train. The locomotive and five gondolas were derailed in the December 23 mishap.

The accident New Year's was caused when a car owned and operated by Lee Linn Nicol, 33, 122 Jackson Street, Lonaconing, stalled on the crossing. Nicol told State Trooper George Coddington that he tried to push the car from the tracks but was unable to move the vehicle.

Freight Train No. 7114 crashed into the stalled car and the machine was damaged beyond repair. Nicol was standing clear of the tracks and was not hurt.

Damage estimated at between $250 and $300 was caused to switches and the locomotive but the train was not derailed. Nicol's car was a 1935 Chevrolet coupe and he was alone at the time of the accident.

Local Boy Injured When Struck By Car

Julian Schonter, Jr., 5, 310 Jefferson Street, was injured early yesterday afternoon when he was struck by a car near the intersection of Maryland Avenue and Spring Street.

The lad was taken to Memorial Hospital at 2:30 p. m. by George Norris, Akron, Ohio, a passing motorist who witnessed the accident.

He was later taken to a local physician where he was treated for a lacerated tongue, brush burns on the ribs and legs and for shock. The family said he was advised to return today for futrher treatment.

Sgt. Frank A. Shober, who investigated, said the lad was injured when he was struck by a car driven by Carl Henry Myers, Route 2, this city. Sgt. Shober said Norris reported the child ran against the car which was not being driven at an excessive speed.

The family said the child was knocked unconscious by the impact and police said they were told both the lad's shoes were knocked off when he was struck by the vehicle.

He had crossed the street in the 700 block of Maryland Avenue to escort to safety a dog which was annoying one of his playmates and was returning when the accident occurred, the News was told.

Philip Christ, 43, 603 Frederick Street, was admitted to Allegany Hospital early yesterday afternoon for treatment of electric shock. His condition was good last night.

Mr. Christ was shocked while helping to test the electric coil of a direct current motor while working at the Queen City Electric Company shop.

28 Join Army Here In December

The local Army recruiting office during December sent 28 men to Baltimore for processing into the Regular Army, according to Capt. Laurence M. Bairstow, commanding officer.

Fourteen of the recruits applied for duty with the Air Force, while four veterans enlisted for service in the Second Army Area.

Four men signed with the Army Ground Forces while the 82nd Airborne Division, the Armored Force, ETO, unassigned, and Infantry each received three enlistments. Three men also joined for three years unassigned.

All of the recruits enlisted for three years. Thirteen veterans enlisted while the remaining 15 had no prior service.

Yesterday two men joined at the local office. They are:

Russell Lawrence Hanlon, 642 North Centre Street, this city and John Henry Davis, Lonaconing.

Temperature Reading

Cold weather, snow flurries and cloudiness are forecast for today by the weatherman, but the temperature was going up last night instead of down. At 6 p. m. the mercury stood at 31; four hours later it was 32. The maximum yesterday was 37 and the low was 33. A brisk wind of the early afternoon had died down somewhat last night.

Shoemaker Heads Finance Group Of Rawlings Church

William Shoemaker was elected chairman of the finance committee at a meeting of the official board of Rawlings Methodist Church last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Psimer. Shoemaker succeeds the late Caleb J. White.

The committee plans to start a fund raising program for the project of installing a new basement under the main church building to house Sunday School and recreation rooms, a kitchen and a new heating plant.

The contract for the work, which is estimated to cost about $5,000, will probably be let at the next official board meeting, scheduled for January 26 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Brownlee Armstrong, Judy Apartments, Cresaptown.

Volunteer workers from among the congregation have nearly completed excavation work for the new basement.

The board voted to have the ceiling of the church insulated. That contract was let to M. J. Livengood, Pinto.

Ashby Lawrence was elected chairman of the building committee. He will be assisted by Clement R. Armstrong and C. L. Kemp.

Mrs. Floyd Shepherd, by virtue of her recent election as president of the Rawlings WSCS, was named a member of the official board, effective January 1.

Rev. Louis P. Chastain, pastor, presided at the meeting.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE IMPOSED ON WELSH

HAGERSTOWN, Jan. 2 (AP) — Arthur C. Welsh, 34, whose planned crime career as a "tough guy" to please his wife ended in arrest before it was started, pleaded guilty today to stealing $66 worth of hotel equipment here.

Circuit Judge Joseph D. Mish imposed a two-year sentence, but suspended it upon condition that Welsh leave the state.

Previously, Mrs. Ruth R. Welsh, 24, charged with stealing a fur coat in Cumberland, was given a similar one-year suspended sentence and had returned to the couple's home in Union, N. J.

Welsh and his wife were arrested at a tourist cabin at Cumberland last month. Detective Lt. Edwin R. Lilya said a "small arsenal" including blackjacks, revolvers, and hypodermic syringes were found in the cabin.

Welsh was accused of taking a radio, towels, and other equipment from the hotel.

George Nimick Shows Improvement

George Nimick, 57, of 210 Charles Street, who was admitted to Allegany Hospital Tuesday night suffering from injuries sustained when he was struck by a car at Henderson Avenue and Bond Street, is reported improving.

He had been in a semi-conscious condition, hospital attaches said, but showed a little improvement last night.

A caretaker at SS. Peter and Paul Cemetery, Nimick was enroute home when struck. He suffered a compound fracture of the right leg and a fractured skull.

Cumberland Firemen Answer 525 Calls In 1947, Damage Decreases

Although the Cumberland Fire Department answered a total of 525 calls, an increase of 95 over 1946 calls, fire losses here during the year were far below the average of cities of comparable size, Fire Chief Reid C. Hoenicka, announced yesterday.

The record number of 1947 fires, 83, occurred in March. Calls answered for the rest of the year were: January, 39; February, 63; April, 79; May, 31; June, 27; July, 20; August, 22; September, 15; October, 60; November, 29, and December, 57.

Last year was the worst, from the standpoint of number, since 1943, when firemen made 528 runs. Recent yearly totals are 1945, 333; 1944, 335; 1942, 367.

Dwelling fires numbering 183 accounted for the largest number of runs last year and was the highest number of home fires reported during the past five years. In 1946, only 118 dwelling fires were reported while the 1945 total was 131. The 1944 total was 129; 1943, 179, and 1942, 125.

Other types of fires reported here last year were grass, 110; automobiles, 61; rubbish, 11; apartments, seven; garages, seven; dumps, seven; stores, six; sheds, six; hotels, five; stores and apartments, four.

Railroad cars, four; taverns, three; restaurants, three; factories, three; gasoline stations, three; cleaning plants, two; auto laundries, two; clubs, two; lodge halls, two, and trees, two.

One call each was reported from a bank, planing mill, repair shop, tire shop, motorcycle, transformer, bridge, roller and trash can.

False alarms accounted for 80 of the calls. Police apprehended a number of those responsible for setting off the alarms.

It was also the most tragic year the fire department has had for years, since four persons lost their lives in dwelling fires in Cumberland during 1947.

Two negro boys were burned to death and their sister fatally burned when a fire of undetermined origin broke out in the Beckwith home on Hill Street late in January and Charles Allamong, 50, died in a blaze which damaged his home on Waverly Terrace early in March.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Haberlen, Frostburg, a son.

Other births reported here yesterday were:

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Beck, Santa Monica, Calif., announce the birth of a daughter Thursday. Mrs. Beck is the former Mary Emma Chaires, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Bates Chaires, 203 Greene Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Milberg, LaVale, a son, December 31 in Doctor's Hospital, New York City. Mr. Milberg is manager of the Cumberland Undergarment Company here.

W. Dwight Stover Is Named Garrett State's Attorney

Young WW II Veteran Succeeds W.W. Dawson

W. Dwight Stover, 27 Oakland attorney, appointed to succeed Walter W. Dawson as state's attorney for Garrett county, took his oath of office here yesterday, before Chief Judge William A. Huster, in the Judge's chambers. He is to fill Dawson's unexpired term.

Dawson submitted his resignation to the court a couple of days ago, and it came as a surprise to most court officials and members of the Garrett and Allegany County Bar Associations. Stover was appointed almost immediately by the court upon the recommendation of the Garrett County Bar Association. The Circuit Court order appointing Stover was signed by Chief Judge Huster, Associate Judge George Henderson and Associate Judge Joseph D Mish.

Stover, was born in Garrett county. He was educated in elementary schools at Oakland and graduated from Oakland High School, in 1936. He attended Eastern University in Baltimore and was admitted to the Maryland Bar April 7, 1942.

On April 10, 1942, he enlisted in the Army and served until April 4, 1946. When released to inactive duty he held the rank of captain and retains a captain's commission in the Officers Reserve Corps. During his army service he was with the 791st military police battalion. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell W. Stover, formerly of Garrett county, now residing in Terra Alta, W. Va.

Dawson was elected to the office in November 1946, for a four-year term, after having previously served as state's attorney from 1930 until 1934.

In submitting his resignation to the Circuit Court judges, Dawson stated: "It is with sincere regret that I feel that I should take this action and I have done so only after careful consideration. It is my desire to give my undivided time and attention to my private practice."

AHEPA To Install Officers Jan. 25

Officers of Cumberland Chapter No. 301, AHEPA, will be installed Jan. 25 at 7:30 o'clock in the Odd Fellows hall by Soterios Versis, Washington, district governor of the American Hellenic Educational Progressive Association.

The officers are Peter Koumanis, president; Nick Makris, vice-president; Peter Dendrenos, secretary and Louis Soterakos, treasurer. Nick Spano, chaplain; Christ Parsoudis, warden; Paul Harris, captain of the guard; Harry Curtis and Constantine Pappas, sentinels. Governors will be Richard Diamond, James Crom, George Katsanis and Paul Katsanis.

City Election Attracts First 3 Candidates

Eves Expected To Enter Mayor's Race

The first political hats were "tossed into the ring" last night as the campaign for the municipal primary March 2 began to take shape, with two incumbent councilmen and one newcomer to city politics declaring themselves as candidates, while Mayor Thomas S. Post and several other persons remained on the "probable" list.

Roy W. Eves, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad man, appeared a definite candidate for the mayoralty position, with information indicating that he will make his announcement in the next couple of days.

Joseph G. Jackson, secretary of the Independent Food Dealers of Western Maryland, was understood to have been considering nomination but up to last night had arrived at no decision.

William J. Edwards and Clifton E. Fuller, incumbent councilmen, both confirmed reports that they will seek re-election, while Myers G. Light, present Commissioner of Streets, declared he is still "turning the matter over" but will probably run.

William V. Keegan, Commissioner of Police and Firemen, earlier in the week indicated that he will again seek the council post. He has been mentioned as a possible candidate for mayor.

William H. Buckholtz confirmed reports linked with his name, by announcing that he will seek a position in the city council.

W. E. McDonald, candidate for mayor two years ago, admitted he has been "contacted" but said he still is doubtful about entering the race this time. William L. Wilson, Jr., local attorney, would neither confirm nor deny reports mentioned with his name, but definitely was leaving the door open for future action.

H. Frank Hintz, unsuccessful council candidate in the last municipal election, said last night he did not care to make a statement this early but promised "I may have something to say in a few days."

Former Chief of Police Oscar A. Eyerman, frequently mentioned as a possible candidate for either mayor or councilman, is still visiting in California, but close associates are holding to an earlier statement of Eyerman's that he "is considering the possibility."

James Orr, who served as Commissioner of Police and Fire, has also been mentioned as a candidate but has not made a public move, nor have the political dopesters connected him definitely with either the mayor or council positions.

NEW YEAR'S BABY—Jane Elizabeth Howser, the first baby born in Cumberland in 1948, is seen resting happily in the arms of her mother, Mrs. Arvella M. Eshbaugh Howser, wife of Walter A. Howser, B. and O. carman, 124 Arch Street. The pretty seven pound, 14 ounce girl was born at 12:40 a. m. Thursday in Memorial Hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Howser are the parents of five other children. The second baby of 1948, a boy, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Galen Harvey, Kitzmiller, in Memorial Hospital Thursday at 4:03 a. m. and weighed seven pounds, four and one-half ounces. A six-pound, five and one-fourth ounce son was born to Richard F. and Margaret Elizabeth Geatz Boyle, 45 Henderson Avenue, in Allegany Hospital Thursday at 5:40 a. m.

Leasure To Seek $25,000 Damages For Loss Of Leg

Run Down By Engine On B & O Crossing

Robert G. Leasure, in his suit against the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company filed in Circuit Court here, will ask $25,000 damages for the loss of his leg, suffered when run over by an engine on the Baltimore Street crossing, November 12, last, according to James Alfred Avirett, his attorney.

Suit by titling was docketed, so the case can be heard at the April term of Court, Avirett said.

Leasure, who is 78 years of age and lives at 223 Harrison Street, had been employed at Crystal Laundry for some time and was on his way to a Queen City Pavement restaurant when he crossed in the path of a steam shifter which was pulling one coach.

The man's right foot was torn off by wheels of the train and railroad employes used a pick and shovel to extricate him. Later at Allegany Hospital, the leg was amputated between the knee and ankle, and Leasure was also treated for lacerations about his head and other injuries.

A suit by titling was also docketed by Edward J. Ryan, attorney for Raymond Twigg, vs. the Yellow Cab Company. No details were available.

In three other suits, filed by William H. Geppert, attorney, a total of $17,500 will be asked. Geppert said the suits result from injuries suffered by a Cumberland woman and her daughter last October 11, when struck by a car in front of Allegany Hospital.

The plaintiffs are Mrs. Christine McBride, 604 Virginia Avenue, who suffered fractures of both legs; her daughter, Louise McBride, 11; and the husband, Arthur F. McBride, who is asking compensation for hospital bills and loss of services of his wife as a result of her injuries. The daughter was hurt about the head.

Defendant in the three suits is Dewey D. Thompson, 26, of 1906 Bedford Street, driver of the car which allegedly struck the woman and her daughter. The accident occurred near the Fulton Street intersection of Decatur Street.

Damages of $10,000 will be asked for Mrs. McBride, $5,000 by the husband and $2,500 by the daughter.

Mayor, Council And CAA Officials Confer On Airport

City Management Plan Is Outlined

The Mayor and Council conferred yesterday with officials of the Civil Aeronautics Administration and gave strong indication afterward that the airport may be operated under city management.

Should this action be taken, the council would be rejecting the recommendation of the Municipal Airport Commission which proposed leasing the port on a non-exclusive basis to the Jenkins-Delagrange Corporation for two years.

While Robert J. Dunahoe, Washington, chief of the CAA airport management section, told council members the CAA does not advise concerning what management policy should be followed by a city, he pointed out that half of the 1,200 city-owned ports are city-managed, that 67 recently reported a profit and that 180 are at the break-even point.

Explaining in some detail how the city management plan operates, Dunahoe said the city should not sell or repair planes, teach students or perform certain other similar functions, but should retain exclusive rights for the sale of gasoline and oil and should act as a landlord in renting buildings.

He added that in event the city does not desire to spend more money to erect buildings, it could lease ground and private operators could erect their own structures. The job of selling planes, teaching students and performing other airport functions would be done by individual private operators.

The first five steps to be taken under a city management plan Dunahoe listed as formation of policy and rates, employment of a full-time manager, preparation of a budget, preparation of a master plan and adoption of a traffic pattern.

He likewise outlined the duties and powers of a city manager and said that such a man should not be afraid to work.

Manager Important

John E. Cowles, Baltimore, acting CAA district airport engineer, said too many cities just hire a caretaker as a manager. Dunahoe said a manager should be paid according to his merit and that in the event a trained and experienced man cannot be found, a local man should be hired. He also recommended the naming of an assistant manager who would live at the port.

Thomas B. Finan, recently named city attorney, attended his first meeting of the council in an official capacity, and asked Dunahoe what percentage of an airport's success is based on the manager. The CAA official said "99 per cent". Several weeks ago at a council meeting Dunahoe said trained managers are very hard to get as the demand exceeds the supply.

Dunahoe said a manager could be paid $3,600 and the assistant $2,400 with a portion of the latter being paid through living quarters.

The Washington CAA official said strong consideration should be given to the intangible benefits a city receives from a well-managed port.

Gets Keegan Backing

Commissioner William V. Keegan said he believes the local field has many possibilities. He indicated he favors city management and said more hangars should be built at the field.

Dunahoe, who was manager of the port at Roanoke, Va., for a number of years, outlined his experience there and said city management had proved successful.

Commissioner Clifton E. Fuller said that direct city management would call for more responsibility on the part of the Mayor and Council. Dunahoe said that "the effort pays off."

There was some discussion regarding possible income and expenses under city management. While no definite figure was reached, there was indication that the cost would be $15,000 as against a possible $11,000 income.

Under the lease arrangement proposed by the commission the city would receive at least $2,000 yearly and would have to do maintenance work.

Snow In Garrett County Is Topped By Freezing Rain

River Receding After Downpour

Freezing rain was falling in Garrett County last night on top of two and a half to three inches of snow, and State Police advised motorists to use chains and drive with caution west of Frostburg.

Cumberland was hit by one of the heaviest rainstorms in years with 2.09 inches falling between 7 a. m. New Year's Day and 8 a. m. yesterday, but farther west the rain turned to snow early yesterday morning.

The State Roads Commission reported from one to one and a half inches of snow in Frostburg to as much as three inches on Meadow Mountain.

A State Roads spokesman said Route 40 west of Frostburg was "icy in spots" and added that cindering crews stopped work at 5 p. m. yesterday after being on the job since 7 a. m. in their efforts to alleviate the situation.

Snow Flurries Forecast

Snow flurries were forecast for this section today along with cloudiness and somewhat colder weather, and snow flakes were blowing about late last night. The temperature, however, had gone up one degree from 31 at 6 p. m. to 32 four hours later.

The New Year's Day rain which flooded gutters and caused water in basements of some homes, also resulted in the Potomac River rising to a crest of 14.10 feet here, only a few feet under flood stage, but it had dropped to 11.45 feet at 7 p. m.

Raising altogether 10.75 feet, a six-foot jump in five hours preceded the crest at 5 a. m. Wills Creek also rose proportionately to give that stream its first "flushing" since last spring.

Water from the Potomac River topped the toll bridge at Oldtown and flooded low areas near Green Springs, W. Va. Georges Creek flowed brim full and other streams had crests near the top of their banks.

Up to two inches of snow in the Georges Creek section delayed traffic there until roads were cindered yesterday morning.

A light snow fell in Bedford County yesterday morning but Pennsylvania State Police said roads were icy only in spots in mountainous sections.

From one to one and a half inches of snow fell in Somerset County, Pa., and a fine, freezing mist was falling last night.

State Police said Somerset County roads were getting slick again but road crews were busy ashing them.

Icy In Spots

In West Virginia, State Police at Romney said roads were icy in spots as a result of melting snow of Thursday freezing yesterday.

Bad driving conditions were reported in the Preston County, W. Va., area, especially on U. S. Route 50 and State Route 7. Even though the roads had been well cindered, State Road Commission officials said chains were recommended.

East of Cumberland highways were reported in good shape.

In Frederick County, the Monocacy River, after receding from an overflow Thursday night, had spilled over its banks again, blocking a section of State Route 80 between Buckeystown and Urbana.

Because of the swollen river, a tributary, Israel's Creek, backed up and washed over a section of the Liberty Road between Frederick and Baltimore. Traffic was halted for more than five hours in several sections.

Evidence that Thursday's all-day rain was state-wide was contained in reports of heavy precipitation. Hagerstown had 2.28 inches while 2.47 inches were measured at Salisbury on the Eastern Shore.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE IMPOSED ON WELSH

HAGERSTOWN, Jan. 2 (AP) — Arthur C. Welsh, 34, whose planned crime career as a "tough guy" to please his wife ended in arrest before it was started, pleaded guilty today to stealing $66 worth of hotel equipment here.

Circuit Judge Joseph D. Mish imposed a two-year sentence, but suspended it upon condition that Welsh leave the state.

Previously, Mrs. Ruth R. Welsh, 24, charged with stealing a fur coat in Cumberland, was given a similar one-year suspended sentence and had returned to the couple's home in Union, N. J.

Welsh and his wife were arrested at a tourist cabin at Cumberland last month. Detective Lt. Edwin R. Lilya said a "small arsenal" including blackjacks, revolvers, and hypodermic syringes were found in the cabin.

Welsh was accused of taking a radio, towels, and other equipment from the hotel.

Cumberland Firemen Answer 525 Calls In 1947, Damage Decreases

Although the Cumberland Fire Department answered a total of 525 calls, an increase of 95 over 1946 calls, fire losses here during the year were far below the average of cities of comparable size, Fire Chief Reid C. Hoenicka, announced yesterday.

The record number of 1947 fires, 83, occurred in March. Calls answered for the rest of the year were: January, 39; February, 63; April, 79; May, 31; June, 27; July, 20; August, 22; September, 15; October, 60; November, 29, and December, 57.

Last year was the worst, from the standpoint of number, since 1943, when firemen made 528 runs. Recent yearly totals are 1945, 333; 1944, 335; 1942, 367.

Dwelling fires numbering 183 accounted for the largest number of runs last year and was the highest number of home fires reported during the past five years. In 1946, only 118 dwelling fires were reported while the 1945 total was 131. The 1944 total was 129; 1943, 179, and 1942, 125.

Other types of fires reported here last year were grass, 110; automobiles, 61; rubbish, 11; apartments, seven; garages, seven; dumps, seven; stores, six; sheds, six; hotels, five; stores and apartments, four.

Railroad cars, four; taverns, three; restaurants, three; factories, three; gasoline stations, three; cleaning plants, two; auto laundries, two; clubs, two; lodge halls, two, and trees, two.

One call each was reported from a bank, planing mill, repair shop, tire shop, motorcycle, transformer, bridge, roller and trash can.

False alarms accounted for 80 of the calls. Police apprehended a number of those responsible for setting off the alarms.

It was also the most tragic year the fire department has had for years, since four persons lost their lives in dwelling fires in Cumberland during 1947.

Two negro boys were burned to death and their sister fatally burned when a fire of undetermined origin broke out in the Beckwith home on Hill Street late in January and Charles Aliamong, 50, died in a blaze which damaged his home on Waverly Terrace early in March.

HOPPERS HOP TRACK—Twenty-one of the 30 Baltimore and Ohio coal hoppers which wrecked at McKenzie, near Pinto yesterday morning shortly before 11 o'clock, are seen here as crews begin the task of clearing the right of way. Caused by a broken bar on a truck under a coal car, one-third of the 90 car train piled up tearing out both tracks, part of the interlocking plant and blocking traffic all day and well into the night. B. & O. trains through the cut-off were detoured over Western Maryland lines and were reported running as much as an hour late. Officials said it was "one of the worst pile-ups in years."

Amvets Take Lease On Old Belvedere Theatre Building

Plan To Move Club Within Two Weeks

J. Louis Wolford Post No. 1, Amvets, voted approval of a plan to move their post home from its present location in the old Citizens Bank Building to the second floor of the old Belvedere Theatre building, 139 Baltimore Street, according to Commander Henry Gerdeman.

The executive and housing committees, for several weeks have been negotiating for a new location where larger and more adequate facilities for the organization will be possible, Gerdeman said. At last night's meeting, membership approved a recommendation of the executive, that a lease be signed for the new location.

The Amvets, organized since the end of World War II, and composed entirely of World War II veterans, was the first Amvets Post in Maryland, and State Department headquarters are also located here.

Gerdeman said the organization has been increasing in membership, an auxiliary has been formed and larger quarters have become necessary.

The Belvedere building is a familiar structure here, and for many years housed a theatre and motion picture house. After the Belvedere was closed, the place was converted into a dance hall for a time, but later became the home of the Woodmen of the World, until they moved into their new structure on Union Street, over a year ago. More recently, Belvedere Hall housed a privately operated club known as the Belvedere Ex-Servicemens Club, where dances were held. This place was operated only a few months.

Gerdeman said a satisfactory lease arrangement has been made, and the Amvets expect to retain the equipment in the building, moving what they now own to the new location to augment it. Some remodeling may be necessary to provide necessary meeting, recreation and conference rooms and offices, he said. It is planned to move the club within the next two weeks, the commander asserted.

George Nimick Shows Improvement

George Nimick, 57, of 210 Charles Street, who was admitted to Allegany Hospital Tuesday night suffering from injuries sustained when he was struck by a car at Henderson Avenue and Bond Street, is reported improving.

He had been in a semi-conscious condition, hospital attaches said, but showed a little improvement last night.

A caretaker at SS. Peter and Paul Cemetery, Nimick was enroute home when struck. He suffered a compound fracture of the right leg and a fractured skull.

Audit Completed, Mayor "Understands"

Mayor Thomas S. Post said last night he "understands" a special audit of the tax collector's office has been completed by the accounting firm of Berman, Goldman, Levin and Company.

The Mayor added that while the report of the audit will be submitted to him he has not yet received it. He said he hopes to get it next week.

The audit was authorized to review city tax assessments on real and personal property within the city limits during 1944, 1945 and 1946.

Decline Noticed In Licenses To Wed Issued Here

Total For 1947 Listed At 4,661

According to statisticians, Leap Year, contrary to general belief is a year of fewer marriages, and Court House attaches here anticipate a further drop in marriage licenses this year.

During 1947, 4,661 marriage licenses were issued here, most of them to couples from out of the state. This was a decline over the 1946 figure, attaches said. In the months just after the end of the war the number of licenses hovered around 500 per month, but in 1946, the decline started. Last month 351 couples obtained marriage permits.

From June to October the number of licenses averaged over 400 per month. The lowest month of the year was February with 266 issued.

The largest number issued in any single month during the past 10 years was in August 1937, when 660 couples received licenses. The 1937-38 period was the best on record with 5,916 licenses sold here.

Licenses issued yesterday are as follows:

William Henry Smith, Jr., 414 Maryland Avenue, and Ruth Ellen Rice, 310 Harrison Street.

Warren Isaac Bookheimer, Bedford, Pa., and Alice Virginia Clay, 225 Fayette Street.

Homer Quentin Suder, Corriganville, and Cecelia Bessie Christopoulus, Baltimore.

John Joseph Dick, Westernport, and Evelyn Mae Freeman, Piedmont, W. Va.

Harry McIntyre Burkett, Frostburg, and Leona Marie Brooke, Wiley Ford, W. Va.

Emmet Byron Haer, Garrett, Pa., and Ogda Ruth Sherman, Meyersdale, Pa.

George Washington Hansberry, Jr., Somerset, Pa., and Dorothy Garrett, 225 Glenn Street.

B & O Coal Train Wreck Blocks Dual Tracks Near Pinto

30 Cars Pile-Up; Trains Are Detoured

The Baltimore and Ohio railroad experienced one of its worst freight wrecks yesterday, when 30 loaded coal hoppers piled into a jumbled heap at McKenzie, near Pinto, about 10 miles from Cumberland. The wreck occurred at 10:52 a. m. as train No. 6128, bearing 90 loaded coal cars passed the McKenzie tower. Traffic between Keyser, W. Va., and this city was expected to be blocked for at least 24 hours. All B. & O. trains between here and Keyser are being detoured over Western Maryland tracks, at the Rawlings junction.

Railroad officials at the wreck said it was the worst pile-up they had seen. They estimated at first, that tracks would not be open for 15 hours, and later revised the estimates to at least 24 hours.

Extra Coal Train

The train was an extra coal train and its 90 cars were fully loaded with more than 50 tons of coal each. The wreck is believed to have been caused by a broken beam or side piece on a truck of one of the cars, which dropped, throwing the car from the rails. The other wrecked hoppers, telescoped, twisted sideways, ran up on each other, and generally turned topsy-turvy, with the center ones mashed together like tin cans.

The scene of the wreck is just about opposite the Allegany Ballistics plant which is across the Potomac River from McKenzie and Pinto. The wreckage lies partially under a single lane highway bridge which crosses the dual tracks at that point, and can be reached from the Pinto road leading from Cresaptown.

The tower is alongside the bridge, and the wreckage is strewn on both sides of the tower. There is a high bank on one side of the wreck and only a scant amount of room to work on the other. Wreck trains from Keyser and Cumberland were working last night on both ends of the debris, in an effort to clear the right of way, so tracks can be relayed. Several hundred feet of both tracks were torn up or damaged.

H. F. Wyatt, superintendent of the Cumberland division, and other B. & O. officials were at the scene last night and indicated that they would remain there until tracks were cleared.

Traffic Rerouted

Officials said traffic is being rerouted over the Western Maryland Railway between Cumberland and Keyser with trains headed toward Cumberland, changing over at Rawlings to North Branch. Westbound traffic is being transferred at City Junction and thence to North Branch and Rawlings. The first trains detoured were Passenger Train No. 11, west bound to St. Louis and Train No. 30, an express, eastbound.

Trains were running about an hour late, according to the B. & O. ticket agent.

The caller's office said crew members on the wrecked train included E. W. Keech, engineer, C. R. Viney, firemen, and J. T. Guthridge, conductor, all of this city; W. L. Reedy flagman and J. W. Lamp, brakeman, both of Brunswick. No one was injured in the crash.

Freight Hits Auto

A B. and O. freight train struck a stalled car on the crossing at Mt. Savage Junction near Corriganville at 1 a. m. New Year's Day but no one was hurt in the crash.

The accident occurred on the same crossing at which another car was struck December 23 by a freight train. The locomotive and five gondolas were derailed in the December 23 mishap.

The accident New Year's was caused when a car owned and operated by Lee Linn Nicol, 33, 122 Jackson Street, Lonaconing, stalled on the crossing. Nicol told State Trooper George Coddington that he tried to push the car from the tracks but was unable to move the vehicle.

Freight Train No. 7114 crashed into the stalled car and the machine was damaged beyond repair. Nicol was standing clear of the tracks and was not hurt.

Damage estimated at between $250 and $300 was caused to switches and the locomotive but the train was not derailed. Nicol's car was a 1935 Chevrolet coupe and he was alone at the time of the accident.

Plans To Enlarge LaVale Water Co. Are Announced

Meeting Is Set For January 15

Plans to enlarge the LaVale Water Company in order to secure a water supply sufficient to meet present demands of the community as well as future requirements were announced yesterday by D. Clifford Goodfellow, secretary-treasurer of the company.

The present capitalization of the company is $33,500 and while the amount capitalization will be increased is indefinite, Goodfellow said it will depend largely on a survey and estimate of the cost of expansion of the system.

This survey is to be made by the Small-Paye Engineering Company in conjunction with a firm of Baltimore consultants, and preliminary studies already are underway.

At a meeting December 30 of 30 residents of LaVale, members of the board of directors of the water company authorized appointment of a committee of LaVale residents to contact an engineer to make the survey for an additional water supply.

This committee is composed of Roy C. Lottig, chairman; George E. Baughman, Elmer P. Bachtell, John W. Burkett and Harry B. Klosterman.

Lottig said yesterday that a meeting open to all residents of LaVale will be held at the LaVale Fire Hall at 7:30 p. m. Thursday, January 15, when a representative of the engineering firm will be present and outline plans for expansion of the system.

The committee headed by Lottig was authorized at the meeting Tuesday to have the preliminary survey made in the interest of the additional source of supply, and Lottig pointed out that plans are being made through the committee to give LaVale a sufficient water supply.

He added that when present plans are carried out "all indications point to an adequate water supply for LaVale."

The committee already has written to Dr. Joseph T. Singewald, director of the State Department of Geology, Mines and Water Resources, requesting assistance in investigating potential underground water sources to relieve the present situation.

This assistance was asked in order to avoid repetition of what happened last summer when the company drilled a well in LaVale Orchard for a depth of 250 feet and got no water.

At the present time the company's supply comes from Laber Spring at the foot of Red Hill, from two drilled wells, and from Sand Spring on Braddock Road.

There are two main reservoirs, one at Red Hill and another just below the C. and P. Railroad on Braddock Road. There are now 538 taps on the line.

W. Dwight Stover Is Named Garrett State's Attorney

Young WW II Veteran Succeeds W.W. Dawson

W. Dwight Stover, 27 Oakland attorney, appointed to succeed Walter W. Dawson as state's attorney for Garrett county, took his oath of office here yesterday, before Chief Judge William A. Huster, in the Judge's chambers. He is to fill Dawson's unexpired term.

Dawson submitted his resignation to the court a couple of days ago, and it came as a surprise to most court officials and members of the Garrett and Allegany County Bar Associations. Stover was appointed almost immediately by the court upon the recommendation of the Garrett County Bar Association. The Circuit Court order appointing Stover was signed by Chief Judge Huster, Associate Judge George Henderson and Associate Judge Joseph D Mish.

Stover, was born in Garrett county. He was educated in elementary schools at Oakland and graduated from Oakland High School, in 1936. He attended Eastern University in Baltimore and was admitted to the Maryland Bar April 7, 1942.

On April 10, 1942, he enlisted in the Army and served until April 4, 1946. When released to inactive duty he held the rank of captain and retains a captain's commission in the Officers Reserve Corps. During his army service he was with the 791st military police battalion. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell W. Stover, formerly of Garrett county, now residing in Terra Alta, W. Va.

Dawson was elected to the office in November 1946, for a four-year term, after having previously served as state's attorney from 1930 until 1934.

In submitting his resignation to the Circuit Court judges, Dawson stated: "It is with sincere regret that I feel that I should take this action and I have done so only after careful consideration. It is my desire to give my undivided time and attention to my private practice."
